

THE NATIONALIST TIMES

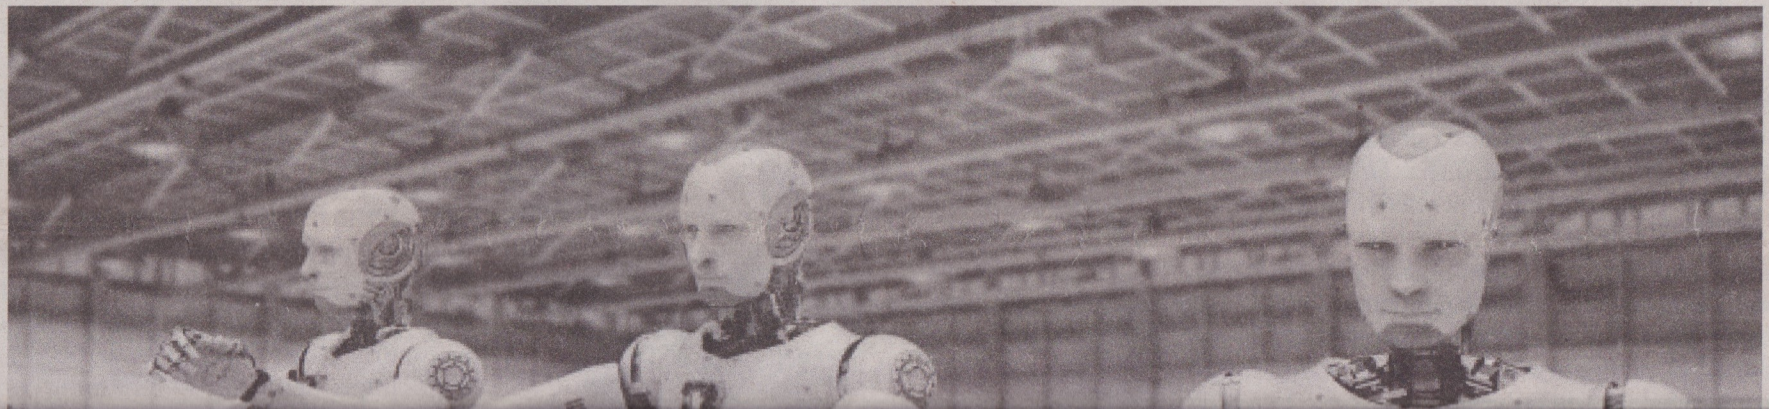

Voice of the Real America

No. 377

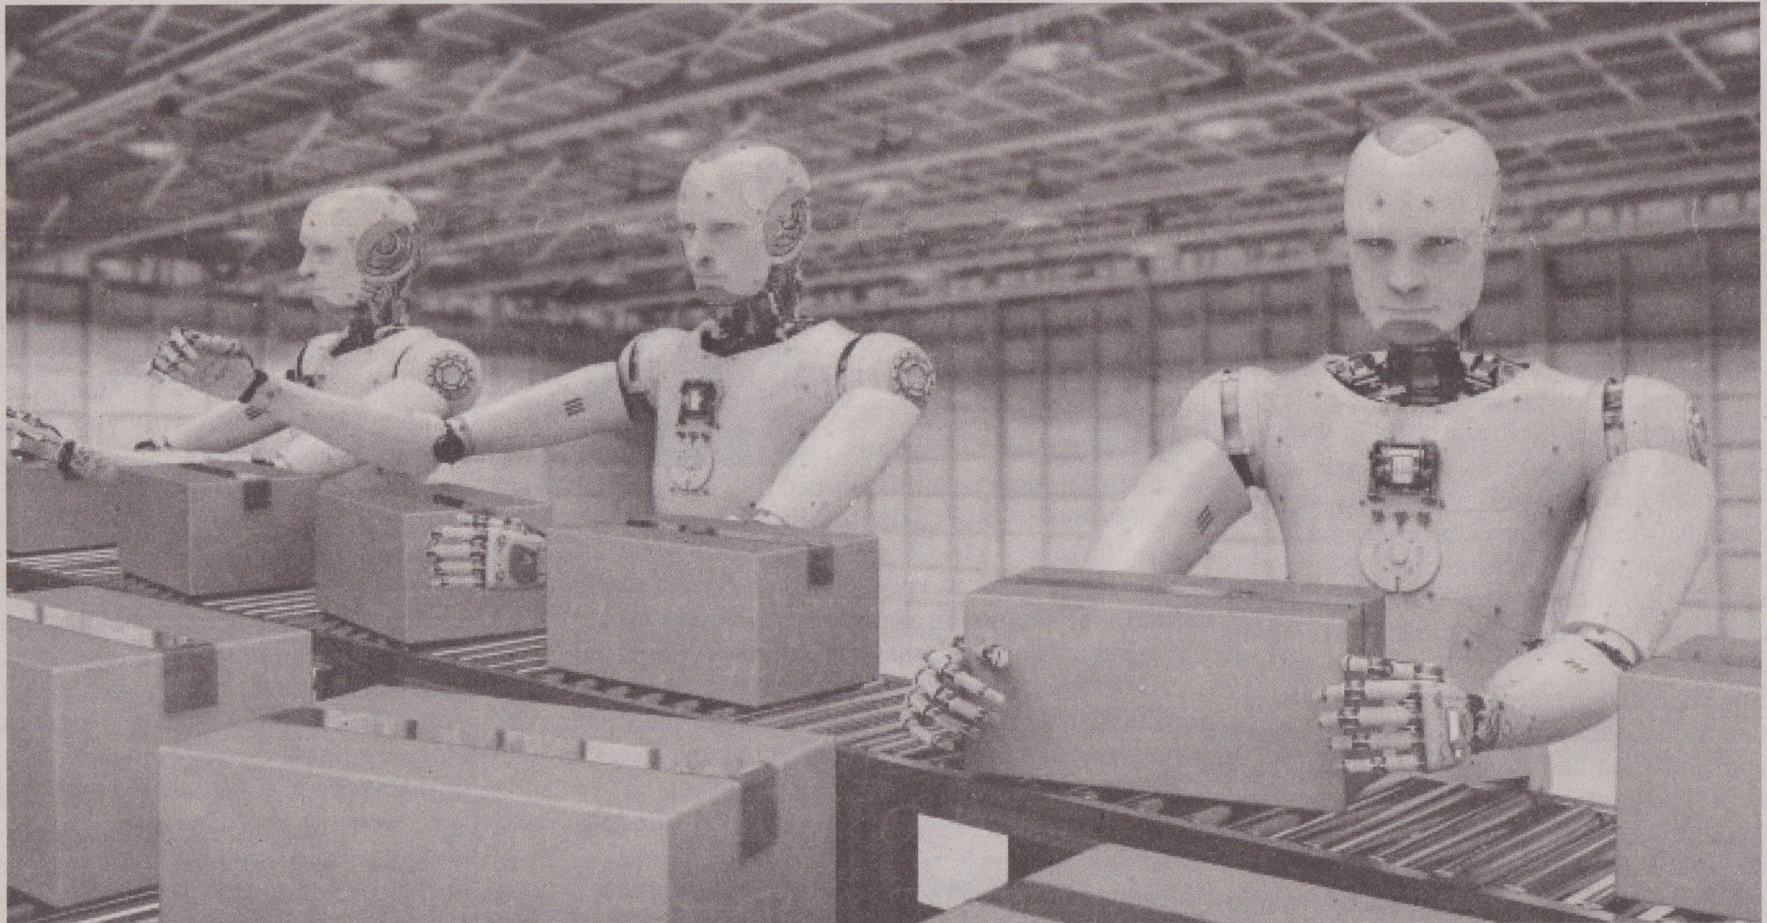

May 2020

Published since 1985

Automation and Artificial Intelligence Portend Bleak Future for Most Americans

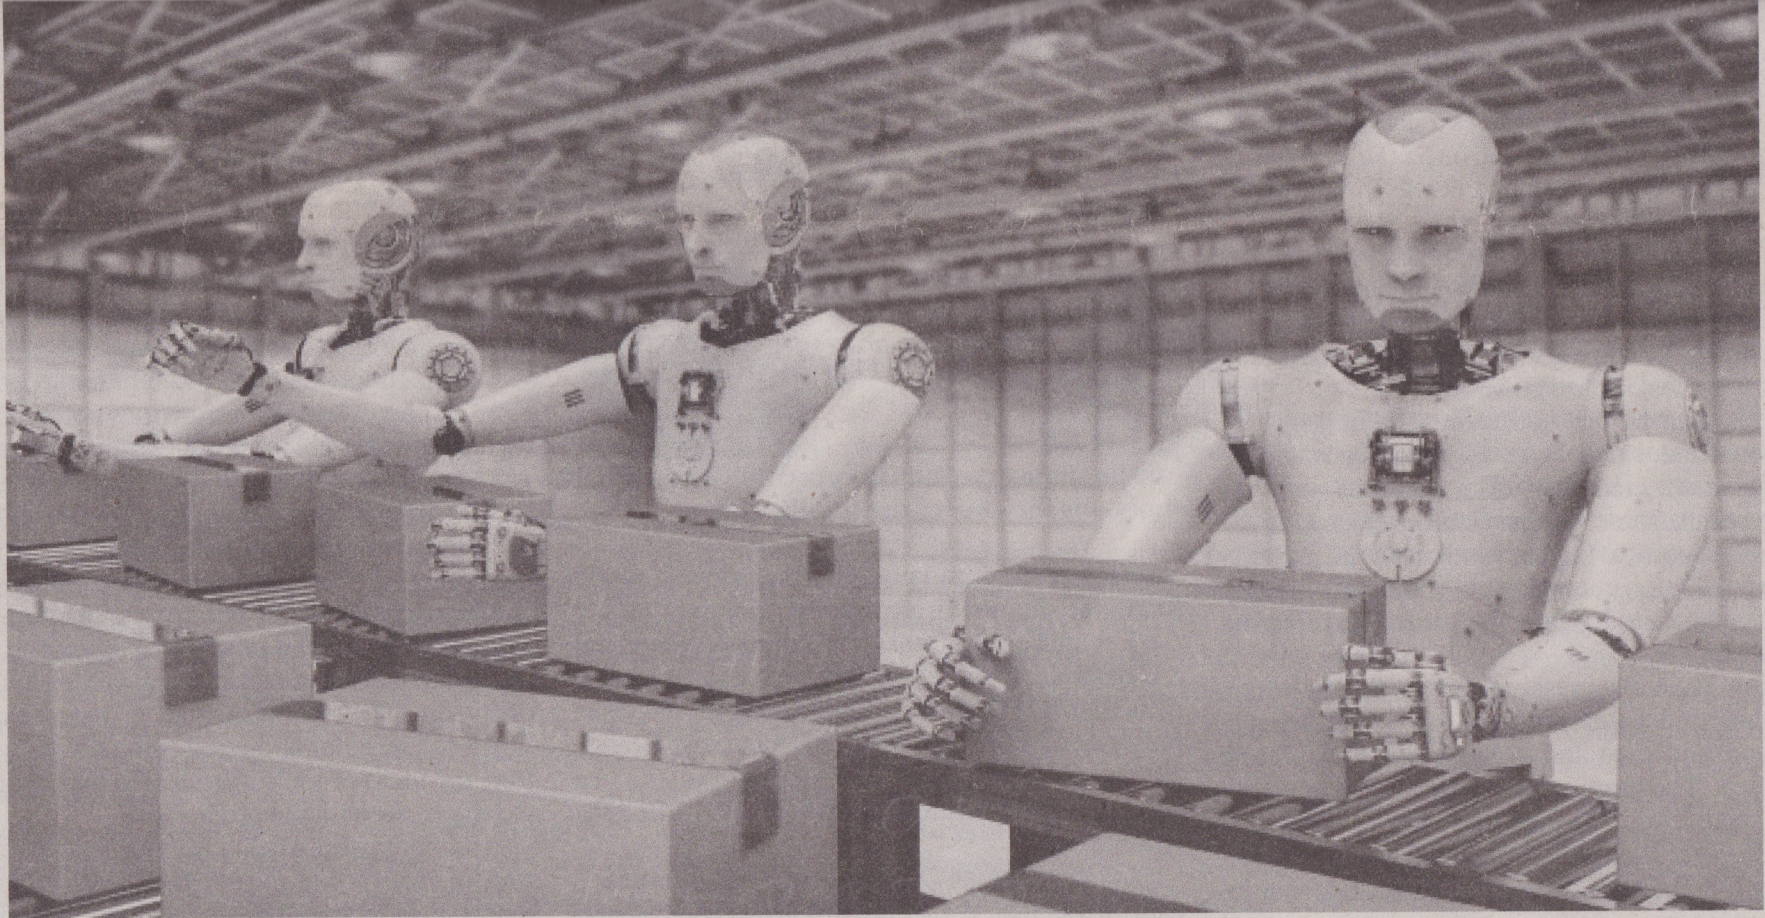

Automation and Artificial Intelligence Portend Bleak Future for Most Americans

The hysterical decision to shut down the American economy is only speeding up already existing trends, such as robots replacing millions of U.S. workers.

- See Page 2

The hysterical decision to shut down the American economy is only speeding up already existing trends, such as robots replacing millions of U.S. workers.

- See Page 2

Totalitarianism for Dummies

- Page 4

Trump Derangement
vs. Trump Enablement

- Page 13

Intelligence Report

- Page 20

The Oligarchy Intends to Eliminate Most Americans' Jobs

by Dr. Adrian Krieg

To consider where we are going, we must consider our past; namely the Industrial Revolution. If we were to draw a graph of our development, we would envision a relatively flat line in pre-history through the Stone Age, say from about 8700 BC to 2000 BC.

We see by this, that for about 6,700 years mankind was stagnant. Then began the ages of metals, first copper then bronze and lastly iron. These overlapped the Stone Age geographically whereby Asia and Mesopotamia and then Egypt preceded the rest of the world.

The Bronze Age did not come to Africa until the 17th century as introduced by Islamic slave traders. We now see that there was a minor bump in our graph with the development of each of the metals, mind you a very small bump.

Things rolled along at a slightly elevated level in the Iron Age and the subsequent development of steel. This would be cast iron, wrought iron, and the development of steel that finally replaced bronze as the primary tool-making substance. This began in about the 12th century BC. In each instance the graph demonstrates a slight upward bump. Which brings us to modern man.

The first great development was the steam engine of James Watt in the 1800s and the beginning of the Western Industrial Revolution, beginning in England. It was revolutionary in that it released man and beast from most physical labor, by replacing muscle power with water,

The determining factor of time is relevant because man's technological advances keep speeding up. It took man 5,300 years to reach his ability to work metals, then another 3,200 years for steel and other alloys, then just 560 years to the Industrial Revolution. And now at the beginning of the 21st century, AI with massive robotic usage took just another 225 years to develop. Converted into a statistical graph we may assume that by 2080, AI in robots and or androids will be the predominant form of labor and perhaps "life" on earth.

The impact on the existing world population will not only be dramatic, it will shatter all previously held ideas and concepts, social, political, legal, economic and manufacturing. Our classic concepts of Austrian school economics and Keynesian monetary policies that have been in use since 1944; dating from the Breton Woods Conference, will all be gone. The NWO (New World Order) that started the economic and monetary changes, and now with the structured most everywhere and that has no noticeable side effects?

Around the entire world, without exception, the virus has been used to implement draconian social and economic constraints and to expand centralized government and political power. For decades, one of the primary social problems has been the centralization of political power. This is no less visible in Brussels than in Washington. It is this ongoing worldwide centralization of power that represents — when combined with AI and the new American information storage operation in Bluffton Utah — a nominally "free" society's greatest challenge. This simply mirrors Chinese centralization in Beijing, from which we can surmise the NWO to be a worldwide phenomenon.

The significance and effects of the secular NWO power system has been the leading impact of misinformation in the formation of people's thinking.

There is presently an economic and technology war between China and America, in which the coming age of AI is playing a major role. Europe is basically out of the loop, they are into robotics but far behind in AI, which will be the most important part of robotics in the second quarter of this century.

When AI is mature and incorporated with robotics, manual labor will no longer be done by man. Today, set-up-men have replaced machinists, CAD (Computer Aided Design) has replaced, or more correctly, changed design and drafting. The greatest change this brought is in the quality of the final product, because machines improve quality — if running correctly.

could envision a relatively flat line in pre-history through the Stone Age, say from about 8700 BC to 2000 BC.

We see by this, that for about 6,700 years mankind was stagnant. Then began the ages of metals, first copper then bronze and lastly iron. These overlapped the Stone Age geographically whereby Asia and Mesopotamia and then Egypt preceded the rest of the world.

The Bronze Age did not come to Africa until the 17th century as introduced by Islamic slave traders. We now see that there was a minor bump in our graph with the development of each of the metals, mind you a very small bump.

Things rolled along at a slightly elevated level in the Iron Age and the subsequent development of steel. This would be cast iron, wrought iron, and the development of steel that finally replaced bronze as the primary tool-making substance. This began in about the 12th century BC. In each instance the graph demonstrates a slight upward bump. Which brings us to modern man.

The first great development was the steam engine of James Watt in the 1800s and the beginning of the Western Industrial Revolution, beginning in England. It was revolutionary in that it released man and beast from most physical labor, by replacing muscle power with water, steam and then electric power.

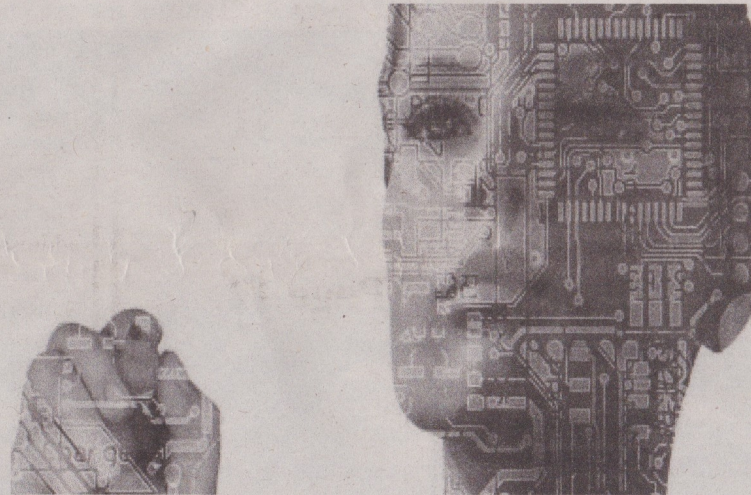

This sparked the Luddite movement in opposition to industrialization by steam then water and then later electricity. The Luddites were convinced that these new machine developments would lay waste to the land and make the majority of the population unemployed. About the same sort of stuff we hear today from the uneducated environmentalists.

Now we had a massive change on our graph, with the rapid development of industrialization in England and then subsequently in Europe and America. The graph demonstrates a massive upward spike, over 100-times that of everything that came before. This we can surmise was the first of what would be huge changes in society, consumption and labor.

We are now in the beginning of the 21st century at the cusp of another spike in the graph. This one will make the industrial revolution look like a girl scout picnic. This time the spike, which is now in development, will be 1,000 times more than mankind century, AI with massive robotic usage took just another 225 years to develop. Converted into a statistical graph we may assume that by 2080, AI in robots and or androids will be the predominant form of labor and perhaps "life" on earth.

The impact on the existing world population will not only be dramatic, it will shatter all previously held ideas and concepts, social, political, legal, economic and manufacturing. Our classic concepts of Austrian school economics and Keynesian monetary policies that have been in use since 1944; dating from the Breton Woods Conference, will all be gone. The NWO (New World Order) that started the economic and monetary changes, and now with the structured outbreak of the coronavirus and subsequent world economic shutdown, are the new operators.

Transhumanism -- microchipped half-human half-robots -- is the goal of the totalitarians

Let me be very frank! The entire development and reporting of the coronavirus epidemic is a hoax. French Nobel Prize Winner Luc Montagnier said: "The presence of HIV and germs of malaria in Covid-19, makes it clear that Covid-19 was created in a lab." Luc was the scientist who first identified the AIDS virus.

UV (Ultraviolet Light) will kill any virus in less than 30 seconds — why has this been kept from us? Hydroxychloroquine has been proven to defeat coronavirus in 98.7% of uses in France (over 1,000 tested cases). Why would the FDA pay for a test of that drug by Swiss Novartis of 440 test cases to determine the efficacy of an already proven and tested of the primary social problems has been the centralization of political power. This is no less visible in Brussels than in Washington. It is this ongoing worldwide centralization of power that represents — when combined with AI and the new American information storage operation in Bluffton Utah — a nominally "free" society's greatest challenge. This simply mirrors Chinese centralization in Beijing, from which we can surmise the NWO to be a worldwide phenomenon.

The significance and effects of the secular NWO power system has been the leading impact of misinformation in the formation of people's thinking.

There is presently an economic and technology war between China and America, in which the coming age of AI is playing a major role. Europe is basically out of the loop, they are into robotics but far behind in AI, which will be the most important part of robotics in the second quarter of this century.

When AI is mature and incorporated with robotics, manual labor will no longer be done by man. Today, set-up-men have replaced machinists, CAD (Computer Aided Design) has replaced, or more correctly, changed design and drafting. The greatest change this brought is in the quality of the final product, because machines improve quality — if running correctly. Computer Aided Design does not make mistakes and is able to work to much better tolerances. Advanced CAD systems used by large manufacturers have abilities far beyond those of humans. They are, for example, able to merge two halves of a designed ship and reveal any mismatches or errors in line before manufacture.

Europe made the mistake of buying in to the Green agenda, the un-scientific approach to the environment. The environmentalists' pipedream of a world run on solar and wind is the dream of children, the ideas of fools uneducated in the sciences and electric generation production.

Germany, whose delinquent leadership remains stuck in 1950s social and environmental approaches to problems, will remain uncompetitive until they change thought and policy.

The dead horse is us, unless we wake up to real science and real issues. If we don't restart our economies soon and end this criminal lockdown, 40% of U.S. small businesses will be bankrupt and I remind and the development of steel that finally replaced bronze as the primary tool-making substance. This began in about the 12th century BC. In each instance the graph demonstrates a slight upward bump. Which brings us to modern man.

The first great development was the steam engine of James Watt in the 1800s and the beginning of the Western Industrial Revolution, beginning in England. It was revolutionary in that it released man and beast from most physical labor, by replacing muscle power with water, steam and then electric power.

This sparked the Luddite movement in opposition to industrialization by steam then water and then later electricity. The Luddites were convinced that these new machine developments would lay waste to the land and make the majority of the population unemployed. About the same sort of stuff we hear today from the uneducated environmentalists.

Now we had a massive change on our graph, with the rapid development of industrialization in England and then subsequently in Europe and America. The graph demonstrates a massive upward spike, over 100-times that of everything that came before. This we can surmise was the first of what would be huge changes in society, consumption and labor.

We are now in the beginning of the 21st century at the cusp of another spike in the graph. This one will make the industrial revolution look like a girl scout picnic. This time the spike, which is now in development stage, will be 1,000 times more than mankind has seen before. It will change everything.

The change is the introduction of AI (Artificial Intelligence) and the rapid expansion of robotics and androids. An android is a robot incorporating AI with human parts and mimicking human anatomy. Androids will be a reality by 2050 and will surpass human abilities by 2100, perhaps considerably sooner.

Transhumanism -- microchipped half-human half-robots -- is the goal of the totalitarians outbreak of the coronavirus and subsequent world economic shutdown, are the new operators.

Let me be very frank! The entire development and reporting of the coronavirus epidemic is a hoax. French Nobel Prize Winner Luc Montagnier said: "The presence of HIV and germs of malaria in Covid-19, makes it clear that Covid-19 was created in a lab." Luc was the scientist who first identified the AIDS virus.

UV (Ultraviolet Light) will kill any virus in less than 30 seconds — why has this been kept from us? Hydroxychloroquine has been proven to defeat coronavirus in 98.7% of uses in France (over 1,000 tested cases). Why would the FDA pay for a test of that drug by Swiss Novartis of 440 test cases to determine the efficacy of an already proven and tested drug that has been in use for over 50 years? Why has the availability of hydroxychloroquine, an over-the-counter drug in most of the world, been blocked in America?

Why is a drug that I used for malaria in the 1970s and '80s, when travelling to the Middle East and Africa, been blocked? Why do I need a doctor's prescription for a drug that is over-the counter already is basically out of the loop, they are into robotics but far behind in AI, which will be the most important part of robotics in the second quarter of this century.

When AI is mature and incorporated with robotics, manual labor will no longer be done by man. Today, set-up-men have replaced machinists, CAD (Computer Aided Design) has replaced, or more correctly, changed design and drafting. The greatest change this brought is in the quality of the final product, because machines improve quality — if running correctly. Computer Aided Design does not make mistakes and is able to work to much better tolerances. Advanced CAD systems used by large manufacturers have abilities far beyond those of humans. They are, for example, able to merge two halves of a designed ship and reveal any mismatches or errors in line before manufacture.

Europe made the mistake of buying in to the Green agenda, the un-scientific approach to the environment. The environmentalists' pipedream of a world run on solar and wind is the dream of children, the ideas of fools uneducated in the sciences and electric generation production.

Germany, whose delinquent leadership remains stuck in 1950s social and environmental approaches to problems, will remain uncompetitive until they change thought and policy.

The dead horse is us, unless we wake up to real science and real issues. If we don't restart our economies soon and end this criminal lockdown, 40% of U.S. small businesses will be bankrupt and I remind you that small business employs 57% or 54.4 million of the total American labor force. No matter how much Bill Gates and George Soros push their vaccination scenario, it will fail.

Dr. Krieg's books are available from Northern Voice Bookstore.

In this issue of The Nationalist Times:

Automation and Artificial Intelligence..... Page 2

-- by Dr. Adrian Krieg

Totalitarianism for Dummies..... Page 4

-- by Fred Reed

Fraudulent Facade for Filching..... Page 5

-- by Sidney Secular

Time to Investigate Bill Gates..... Page 7

-- by Robert Bridge

Editorial..... Page 9

Letters to the Editor..... Page 9

The Cost of Big Pharma's Vaccine..... Page 11

-- by Paul Craig Roberts

World Ruined, Left is Thrilled..... Page 12

-- by Nick Searcy

The Nationalist Times

Voice of the Real America

Issue #377

May 2020

"Men by their constitutions are naturally divided into two parties: 1. Those who fear and distrust the people, and wish to draw all powers from them into the hands of the higher classes; 2. Those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, although not the most wise depository of the public interests.

"In every country these two parties exist, and in every one where they are free to think, speak, or write, they will declare themselves."

- Thomas Jefferson

The Nationalist Times is dedicated to returning Liberty to the Land by helping the American People liberate themselves from the elites who have manipulated and plundered the People and the Constitution in order to attain total power for themselves.

The Nationalist Times is published monthly, except for an occasional double issue, by the American Freedom Union.

Phone: 724-939-7393

E-Mail: mail@americanfreedomunion.com

Internet Domains: AmericanFreedomUnion.com

CasteFootball.us

NorthernVoiceBookstore.com

The Post Office does not forward third class mail. Send all address changes to The Nationalist Times well in advance.

Subscription rates: $49 for one year, $95 for two years, $135 for three years. Outside the U.S.: Canada $65 per year, elsewhere $75 per year. Subscription rate is payable to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. For

-- by Fred Reed

Fraudulent Facade for Filching. Page 5

-- by Sidney Secular

Time to Investigate Bill Gates Page 7

-- by Robert Bridge

Editorial Page 9

Letters to the Editor Page 9

The Cost of Big Pharma's Vaccine. Page 11

-- by Paul Craig Roberts

World Ruined, Left is Thrilled Page 12

-- by Nick Searcy

Trump Derangement vs. Trump Enablement. Page 13

-- by Donald Jeffries

America's Lesbian Sweetheart Page 14

-- by Jim Goad

Virus of Mass Deception. Page 16

-- by C. J. Hopkins

V-E Day and the Corona Scamdemic. Page 17

-- by Antonius Aquinas

classes, and those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, although not the most wise depository of the public interests.

"In every country these two parties exist, and in every one where they are free to think, speak, or write, they will declare themselves."

- Thomas Jefferson

The Nationalist Times is dedicated to returning Liberty to the Land by helping the American People liberate themselves from the elites who have manipulated and plundered the People and the Constitution in order to attain total power for themselves.

The Nationalist Times is published monthly, except for an occasional double issue, by the American Freedom Union.

Phone: 724-939-7393

E-Mail: mail@americanfreedomunion.com

Internet Domains: AmericanFreedomUnion.com

CasteFootball.us

NorthernVoiceBookstore.com

The Post Office does not forward third class mail. Send all address changes to The Nationalist Times well in advance.

Subscription rates: $49 for one year, $95 for two years, $135 for three years. Outside the U.S.: Canada $65 per year, elsewhere $75 per year. Subscription rate is payable to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. For subscriptions outside the U.S. payment must be made by international money order, a check drawn on a U.S. bank, or with U.S. cash.

Advertising is generally on an agreed to reciprocal basis.

EDITOR and FOUNDER: Don Wassall

CONTRIBUTING WRITERS: John W. Altman
Yancey Ames
Ralph A. Brandt
Nancy Hitt
Dr. Adrian H. Krieg
Patrick McCaffrey
Dave Rollins
Sidney Secular
Nelson Waller
Carson Watkins

Letters to the Editor.....Page 9

The Cost of Big Pharma's Vaccine.....Page 11
-- by Paul Craig Roberts

World Ruined, Left is Thrilled.....Page 12
-- by Nick Searcy

Trump Derangement vs. Trump Enablement.....Page 13
-- by Donald Jeffries

America's Lesbian Sweetheart.....Page 14
-- by Jim Goad

Virus of Mass Deception.....Page 16
-- by C. J. Hopkins

V-E Day and the Corona Scamdemic.....Page 17
-- by Antonius Aquinas

The Saints.....Page 18
-- by Nancy Hitt

Intelligence Report.....Page 20
-- by Don Wassall

Phone: 724-939-7393

E-Mail: mail@americanfreedomunion.com

Internet Domains: AmericanFreedomUnion.com

CasteFootball.us

NorthernVoiceBookstore.com

The Post Office does not forward third class mail. Send all address changes to The Nationalist Times well in advance.

Subscription rates: $49 for one year, $95 for two years, $135 for three years. Outside the U.S.: Canada $65 per year, elsewhere $75 per year. Subscription rate is payable to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. For subscriptions outside the U.S. payment must be made by international money order, a check drawn on a U.S. bank, or with U.S. cash.

Advertising is generally on an agreed to reciprocal basis.

EDITOR and FOUNDER: Don Wassall

CONTRIBUTING WRITERS: John W. Altman
Yancey Ames
Ralph A. Brandt
Nancy Hitt
Dr. Adrian H. Krieg
Patrick McCaffrey
Dave Rollins
Sidney Secular
Nelson Waller
Carson Watkins

The Nationalist Times believes strongly in the First Amendment, thus the opinions expressed in each issue are those of the author only and not necessarily endorsed by The Nationalist Times or the American Freedom Union. Nothing may be reprinted from The Nationalist Times that is protected by the author's copyright without that author's permission. Other material contained herein may be reprinted provided The Nationalist Times is identified and full address and subscription rate given.

Totalitarianism for Dummies

by Fred Reed

The genius of America's totalitarian system of government is that it is not totally total, and sometimes not very totalitarian at all. It is just total enough. Truly total government — "Your papers, citizen," stop-and-frisk, permission needed to travel from city to city -- might spark revolt. By contrast, a sufficiency of totalitarianism, but not an excess, keeps the populace in adequate torpidity. Thus done astutely, totalitarianism is hardly noticed.

The founder of this philosophy was that rascal, Abe Lincoln. As we have all heard in what has become almost a cliché, he said, "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." He wisely did not add, "But you can fool enough of the people enough of the time."

Lincoln's Principle of Sufficiency is the First Pillar of Practical Totalitarianism. The Second Pillar is reliance on the private sector for effectuation. This gives the government plausible deniability. For example, Google has all your email for decades back. This is annoying but not truly alarming. If the federal government (openly) collected emails, conservatives would shriek about totalitarianism. But cans. For example, we are told that in China, everything you say or do is monitored. Obviously China is a most terrible place. Who could doubt it?

By contrast, in America, cameras are everywhere, all email is recorded, and every bank transaction, credit card purchase, who you called by telephone and when, and of course criminal records are monitored. Depending on location, traffic lights photograph your license number if you run a light (and for all you know, if you don't), license plate readers check for stolen vehicles and (perhaps) delete legal plates. Cell towers know approximately where you are and Google Maps knows to within a few feet. Locations can be cross-checked with those of other phones to see who you were with. Now face-recognition comes along.

Since little of this is directly done by the federal government, we do not live in a surveillance state.

wars. You cannot doubt accounts of such events as the Trayvon Martin adventure. On the web, sites can be and increasingly are "deplatformed" by the social media.

But as these are not formally part of government, we have freedom of speech. See? No unelected dictator decides what we are permitted to know or say. Mark Zuckerberg does.

This is very different from China in that...in that...wait. I'll think of something.

Here we come to the Fourth Pillar of Sufficient Totalitarianism: Repetition, repetition, repetition. In Mein Kampf (now removed from Amazon), Adolf said that propaganda should not be entrusted to intellectuals. They are, he said, easily bored, like sophisticated ideas, and constantly want to change the message.

Instead, he said, keep it simple enough for the masses to understand, and say it over and over and over, and they will come to believe it. More precisely, enough will come to believe it. The rest don't matter. This is much cheaper than kicking in doors at three a.m. and doesn't arouse potentially dangerous resentment.

We are told, over and over and over, that America is a democracy and virtually choking on freedoms. We to city -- might spark revolt. By contrast, a sufficiency of totalitarianism, but not an excess, keeps the populace in adequate torpidity. Thus done astutely, totalitarianism is hardly noticed.

The founder of this philosophy was that rascal, Abe Lincoln. As we have all heard in what has become almost a cliché, he said, "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." He wisely did not add, "But you can fool enough of the people enough of the time."

Lincoln's Principle of Sufficiency is the First Pillar of Practical Totalitarianism. The Second Pillar is reliance on the private sector for effectuation. This gives the government plausible deniability. For example, Google has all your email for decades back. This is annoying but not truly alarming. If the federal government (openly) collected emails, conservatives would shriek about...totalitarianism. But Google isn't the government — is it?

The Third Pillar: A press not too noticeably controlled, with enough apparent difference of opinion to simulate savage debate of ideas — without touching on any important ones. For example, Rachel Maddow rattles that Trump is a Russian agent while Rush Limbaugh, the Rachel Maddow of the Right, demurs furiously. This allows people to be excited and engaged without endangering either Wall Street or the military budget.

Hermetic control of information isn't needed, and would be noticed. Most people get most of their news from the lobotomy box. Anything that doesn't appear on the flickering screen doesn't exist for most, and these are enough. It is thus possible to suppress monitored. Depending on location, traffic lights photograph your license number if you run a light (and for all you know, if you don't), license plate readers check for stolen vehicles and (perhaps) delete legal plates. Cell towers know approximately where you are and Google Maps knows to within a few feet. Locations can be cross-checked with those of other phones to see who you were with. Now face-recognition comes along.

Since little of this is directly done by the federal government, we do not live in a surveillance state.

After all, none of the entities involved would share their information with the feds — would they?

In China, we are told, there is no freedom of expression. Well, actually there is, as long as you don't say the wrong things about the wrong things. In America we have freedom of speech. It says so in the Constitution.

Well, we have freedom of speech as long as we don't say the wrong things about the wrong things. We all know what we can't say and who we can't know or say. Mark Zuckerberg does. This is very different from China in that...in that...wait. I'll think of something.

Here we come to the Fourth Pillar of Sufficient Totalitarianism: Repetition, repetition, repetition. In Mein Kampf (now removed from Amazon), Adolf said that propaganda should not be entrusted to intellectuals. They are, he said, easily bored, like sophisticated ideas, and constantly want to change the message.

Instead, he said, keep it simple enough for the masses to understand, and say it over and over and over, and they will come to believe it. More precisely, enough will come to believe it. The rest don't matter. This is much cheaper than kicking in doors at three a.m. and doesn't arouse potentially dangerous resentment.

We are told, over and over and over, that America is a democracy and virtually choking on freedoms. We are told three times in a half hour during the Super Bowl, that we need to buy a sandwich from Subway. Same principle, exactly. It works.

And so, unlike China where democracy does not exist and people have no influence, we have democracy but no influence. This is much slicker.

For example, if you oppose the interminable wars, what party do you vote for? There are neither anti-war parties nor serious candidates. Who do you vote for if you want to cut the goiterous military budget? If you are against torture? If you oppose a militarily aggressive foreign policy?

Can you influence what your children are taught in school, what is in their textbooks? If you are against ond Pillar is reliance on the private sector for effectuation. This gives the government plausible deniability. For example, Google has all your email for decades back. This is annoying but not truly alarming. If the federal government (openly) collected emails, conservatives would shriek about...totalitarianism. But Google isn't the government — is it?

The Third Pillar: A press not too noticeably controlled, with enough apparent difference of opinion to simulate savage debate of ideas — without touching on any important ones. For example, Rachel Maddow rattles that Trump is a Russian agent while Rush Limbaugh, the Rachel Maddow of the Right, demurs furiously. This allows people to be excited and engaged without endangering either Wall Street or the military budget.

Hermetic control of information isn't needed, and would be noticed. Most people get most of their news from the lobotomy box. Anything that doesn't appear on the flickering screen doesn't exist for most, and these are enough. It is thus possible to suppress information not by suppressing it, but by ignoring it.

We have now listed the fundamentals of American government. Now let us examine the use and intersection of these principles here and abroad.

China is typically offered as practicing the blackest totalitarianism, the implicit contrast being with the enlightened democracy enjoyed by Ameri-

After all, none of the entities involved would share their information with the feds — would they?

In China, we are told, there is no freedom of expression. Well, actually there is, as long as you don't say the wrong things about the wrong things. In America we have freedom of speech. It says so in the Constitution.

Well, we have freedom of speech as long as we don't say the wrong things about the wrong things. We all know what we can't say and who we can't say it about. In many places, certainly in the media where you might influence others, you can lose your job for saying things that upset blacks, Jews, feminists, homosexuals, LBGQXYZs, hispanics, or Muslims. In the media you cannot say anything in favor of the Second Amendment, against abortion, about black crime, against the military budget or the over, and they will come to believe it. More precisely, enough will come to believe it. The rest don't matter. This is much cheaper than kicking in doors at three a.m. and doesn't arouse potentially dangerous resentment.

We are told, over and over and over, that America is a democracy and virtually choking on freedoms. We are told three times in a half hour during the Super Bowl, that we need to buy a sandwich from Subway. Same principle, exactly. It works.

And so, unlike China where democracy does not exist and people have no influence, we have democracy but no influence. This is much slicker.

For example, if you oppose the interminable wars, what party do you vote for? There are neither anti-war parties nor serious candidates. Who do you vote for if you want to cut the goiterous military budget? If you are against torture? If you oppose a militarily aggressive foreign policy?

Can you influence what your children are taught in school, what is in their textbooks? If you are against the ongoing enstupidation of education, or against the pulling down of statues? Against affirmative action? The list could go on.

Thank God we don't live in China. Their government works, ours doesn't, but at least we have our freedoms.

Fraudulent Facade for a Worldwide Filching

by Sidney Secular

Skipping over the gory stats and details for the moment, suffice it to say that the momentous and nearly global lockdown over the nebulous Covid-19 virus was called for and instituted at the very top of the evil empire pyramid attempting to take over the world in one fell/foul swoop to institute the long predicted and touted totalitarian New World Order via a total elimination of our basic liberties. Fudged and fake stats from the state have been used to add gravitas to a supposedly grave situation which, if the virus is in fact a fact, is nothing more than a seasonal flu.

At the very unlikely maximum, total deaths from those who have supposedly contracted the newly created/fabricated/discovered disease would be 2%. The overwhelming numbers of “recoveries” are never mentioned or placed into perspective by the reporting agencies or their mouthpiece media outlets.

A very large portion of those alleged to have succumbed to the disease are those over 80 years of age who were already suffering from maladies having the same or similar symptoms to the Covid-19 symptoms, or had already very weak immune systems and were “sickly” and so were liable to “catch” any influenza that was making the rounds of the Globe.

Furthermore, to inflate the numbers, the cause of death of anyone in the said age group who shows the usual flu symptoms is always reported as Covid-19 upon the instructions of the authorities, thus renthese instances or in the case of any other disease, for that matter. There are lots of suspicions and questions that need to be addressed and answered here.

There is so much stuff going viral on the not quite fully defined Covid-19 entity that it will fill several volumes in due course; but the essence of the phenomenon, its planned instigation, and the purposeful machinations surrounding it are already clear enough so that one can read between the lines and the lies to see where this massive diversion and subversion is all heading.

The pertinent and pending question is whether the healthy, necessary, and most welcome expanding reaction to the lockdowns via local demonstrations by those with some sense of sanity and urgency can coalesce into a nationwide movement that hits a critical enough mass to hasten the end of this madness. We’re going to hang separately if we don’t stick together to confront this juggernaut that is going for our collective jugular.

The crisis scenario presented to us as a do or die situation by a bunch of scaremongers and bumblerers at first was that two million Americans would die — this was lowered in increments down to 100,000 and then to 60,000. The latter figure dering the numbers invalid. This is typically the case in nursing homes and hospitals, where the word of an authority is the last word.

(continued next page)

Flexing their power, the globalists’ locked down nearly the entire world in a matter of days

This has glaringly been the case in Italy, Spain, and Austria. Meanwhile, the usual seasonal flu typically claims over 60,000 victims each year in the U.S. alone, and there has never been a lockdown in moment, suffice it to say that the momentous and nearly global lockdown over the nebulous Covid-19 virus was called for and instituted at the very top of the evil empire pyramid attempting to take over the world in one fell/foul swoop to institute the long predicted and touted totalitarian New World Order via a total elimination of our basic liberties. Fudged and fake stats from the state have been used to add gravitas to a supposedly grave situation which, if the virus is in fact a fact, is nothing more than a seasonal flu.

ATTENTION!!!

At the very unlikely maximum, total deaths from those who have supposedly contracted the newly created/fabricated/discovered disease would be 2%. The overwhelming numbers of "recoveries" are never mentioned or placed into perspective by the reporting agencies or their mouthpiece media outlets.

A very large portion of those alleged to have succumbed to the disease are those over 80 years of age who were already suffering from maladies having the same or similar symptoms to the Covid-19 symptoms, or had already very weak immune systems and were "sickly" and so were liable to

of death of anyone in the sausage group who shows the usual flu symptoms is always reported as Covid-19 upon the instructions of the authorities, thus rendering the numbers invalid. This is typically the case in nursing homes and hospitals, where the word of an authority is the last word.

Flexing their power, the globalists' locked down nearly the entire world in a matter of days

This has glaringly been the case in Italy, Spain, and Austria. Meanwhile, the usual seasonal flu typically claims over 60,000 victims each year in the U.S. alone, and there has never been a lockdown in

There is so much stuff going viral on the not quite fully defined Covid-19 entity that it will fill several volumes in due course; but the essence of the phenomenon, its planned instigation, and the purposeful machinations surrounding it are already clear enough so that one can read between the lines and the lies to see where this massive diversion and subversion is all heading.

The pertinent and pending question is whether the healthy, necessary, and most welcome expanding reaction to the lockdowns via local demonstrations by those with some sense of sanity and urgency can coalesce into a nationwide movement that hits a critical enough mass to hasten the end of this madness. We're going to hang separately if we don't stick together to confront this juggernaut that is going for our collective jugular.

The crisis scenario presented to us as a do or die situation by a bunch of scaremongers and bumblerers at first was that two million Americans would die — this was lowered in increments down to 100,000 and then to 60,000. The latter figure

(continued next page)

Below is just an example of the 155 images we've tucked inside.

I AM A TRAPPER.

I would like to think among other things I was made up of such stuff as stability and continuity.
I try to teach new trappers about living and about death, and help them understand that some wild things must die so the rest can live. That killing them is fine if it is done for a purpose, with love for them and within the law.
I tell them never to kill a wild critter just to watch it die. I teach them that wild things are beautiful beyond all other beauty, and that they are treasured, honored and saved within the context of solid conservation.
I tell them about mother nature and that she will teach you a lot if you pay attention. Look, listen, and learn about tracks, trails and how weather changes movement.
I try to teach my students how to catch, skin, flesh and stretch each fur bearing species we have in Wisconsin. I teach ethics. Never touch another man's traps or animals. Never cut a fence or leave a gate open, always get permission. Always sit in the middle of the pickup so you don't have to drive or open and close gates.
I like music but the sound of silence is even better. The depth that feelings can run to, that softness and sensitivity, at the right time, are strengths to be cherished.
The marshes, swamps and woodlands of Wisconsin are my passion. I built a log cabin. I am not a carpenter. I am a trapper. I run two service stations in Rice Lake, Wisconsin. I was not a mechanic. I was a parts changer.

I AM A TRAPPER.

I do what I love and love
what I do.

Sneak

ATTENTION!!!

Trappers ... Hunters ... Outdoorsmen

Everybody loves a good story, "Secrets of a Wisconsin Hall of Fame Trapper," the true life history of Hall of Famer Lawrence Boettcher, delivers just that and so much more!

ORDER TODAY!
$29.99
Plus $4 S&H

"Secrets of a Wisconsin Hall of Fame Trapper," subtitled "Trapping for Fun & Profit," is much more than a How-To Guide ... this true life history is chock full of 155 images, including short stories and animal photos. Lawrence Boettcher's experience aboard the USS Wasp, when Lawrence was personally involved in the retrieval of the historic Gemini IV capsule and crew members, Major James A. McDivitt and Major Edward H. White II, from the waters of the Caribbean is worth the price of the book alone.

are never mentioned or placed into perspective by the reporting agencies or their mouthpiece media outlets.

A very large portion of those alleged to have succumbed to the disease are those over 80 years of age who were already suffering from maladies having the same or similar symptoms to the Covid-19 symptoms, or had already very weak immune systems and were "sickly" and so were liable to entire world in a matter of days

dering the numbers invalid. This is typically the case in nursing homes and hospitals, where the word of an authority is the last word.

This has glaringly been the case in Italy, Spain, and Austria. Meanwhile, the usual seasonal flu typically claims over 60,000 victims each year in the U.S. alone, and there has never been a lockdown in is going for our collective jugular.

The crisis scenario presented to us as a do or die situation by a bunch of scaremongers and bumblerers at first was that two million Americans would die — this was lowered in increments down to 100,000 and then to 60,000. The latter figure

(continued next page)

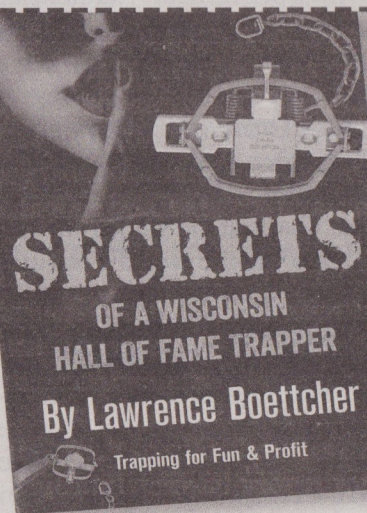

ATTENTION!!!

Trappers ... Hunters ... Outdoorsmen

Everybody loves a good story, "Secrets of a Wisconsin Hall of Fame Trapper," the true life history of Hall of Famer Lawrence Boettcher, delivers just that and so much more!

ORDER TODAY!
$29.99
Plus $4 S&H

"Secrets of a Wisconsin Hall of Fame Trapper," subtitled "Trapping for Fun & Profit," is much more than a How-To Guide ... this true life history is chock full of 155 images, including short stories and animal photos. Lawrence Boettcher's experience aboard the USS Wasp, when Lawrence was personally involved in the retrieval of the historic Gemini IV capsule and crew members, Major James A. McDivitt and Major Edward H. White II, from the waters of the Caribbean is worth the price of the book alone.

Below is just an example of the 155 images we've tucked inside.

Greta Garbo "Christina" ermine trimmed velvet coronation robe by Adrian for Queen Christina (MGM, 1933). Natural ermine tails are dispersed as accents throughout the white ermine panels.

Sneak a peek inside!

Page 92

Name: _____
Address: _____
City: _____ State: _____ Zip: _____
Email: _____ Phone: _____

Make check or money order made payable to: Jon Larsen Shudlick

Mail orders to:

Jon Larsen Shudlick, 5558 Palm Beach Blvd. Lot 108, Fort Myers, FL 33905
For bulk orders and questions please call: 239-218-4028 or email shud21@comcast.net would be 20,000 less than the number of flu victims during the 2017-2018 flu season and less than one-fortieth of the original prediction.

Even as the globalist CDC and the WHO backed down in their predictions, no one criticized these nonsensical forecasts or attempted to discredit them, and there were no repercussions as a result of these outlandish estimates — in fact, the fear propaganda continued unabated even as the healthcare system was not strained in the least in nearly all parts of the country.

Even in the New York City metro area, which the reporters were venting over, tens of thousands of ventilators remained in storage. “Citizen reporters” filmed many hospitals in NYC that were far from busy, with some looking like ghost towns. Some laid back hospitals around the U.S. even laid off workers, since not only was there no “pandemic” present, but the lockdowns cut back on the usual number of patients as elective surgery was postponed or outlawed, and the incidence of car accidents was way down, as residents hunkered down in their domiciles.

The mockingbird media continues to present and exaggerate daily death counts without ever putting them into perspective and comparing them with the larger number of deaths from other types of flu, pneumonia, cancer, heart disease, strokes, respiratory disease, diabetes, accidental deaths and even suicides. Delaying the conduct of otherwise normal medical procedures is also killing an unknown number of people as is the advice to stay at home and reduce healthy outdoor activities and access to sunshine, as is the anti-social admonition against social interaction or even getting close to anyone, and treating passers-by as lepers.

Allowing the virus to spread without the artificial restrictions will speed up the acquisition of natural immunity, called herd immunity (as if it were a slight), hasten the end of the current outbreak, and will build up immunity for future epidemics/plannedemics.

up drills usually wind up with the declaration of a concocted “war” on something (such as the war on terror, the war on drugs, and now the war on “bugs”) involving greatly increased governmental powers and campaigns conducted on a world-wide scale.

It’s still too early to say how this will all play out. The sudden shutdown of the U.S. economy and its ruination had to be a prime aim of the satanists.

It looks quite probable that this is a manufactured crisis designed to kill many budding movements trying to improve the “status woe” in one fell/foul swoop. These would include the anti-vaxx movement, ecologically/environmentally oriented small businesses and traditional farms that are challenging the domination of big agriculture, alternative solutions to the domination of Big Tech in its censorship of free (populist and nationalist) speech, and the opposition to the ink-quisition on writings and thoughts that oppose the standard narratives.

At the same time it is greasing the skids for the imposition of the 5G technology (5G installations are occurring in the locked-down schools and other places where no one is present to see what’s going on), the institution of a cashless regime/digital currency, the facilitation of the use of robots, the proliferation of the internet-of-things, imposition of methodologies for tracking our every movement and to determine whether we’ve received the mandatory vaccination shots, and forcing the plebes further into debt as they increase their borrowing and use of credit cards to overcome their emaciated bank accounts.

All the while, our self-appointed masters are continuing to do the research that will one day determine what we will think before we think it so that they can have complete mastery over us. The worst part is that the sheeple have gone along with every governmental mandate except for scattered protests that have not coalesced into a coordinated movement national in scope.

One of the famous Huxleys pointed out 90 years commercial transaction, but almost no one will read the fine print involved.

Why fool with these expensive toys when they can be used as spying vehicles? Will they force us to buy and toy with these toys and phase out other types of phones just to faze patriots? Lord have mercy! Is this just a phase or craze that will go away?

It’s not about what’s said and debated. It’s about what’s unsaid, buried, thrust aside or left out. Why does it seem like Silicon Valley’s digital censorship is the same as China’s? Simple answer — it is the same. The diversion of the KungFlu phenomenon engages the world’s attention while at the same time digital tyranny is killing democracy, and while the U.S. Congress and the President sit it out quietly and let it happen.

Surveillance of the public followed the largely manufactured “war on terror,” the implementation of the Patriot Act, and the advent of social media which allowed and furthered efforts to profile, track, and trace individuals. Now the China Virus provides a further pretense to further the already deep reach of the Deep State and its surveillance and corporate partners.

What began with the ludicrous supposed threat (and denial) from a Muslim friend of the U.S. President who was on dialysis and allegedly lived in a cave that couldn’t be located has evolved into pathogen/pathogenic propaganda which the media has exploited to frighten an ill-informed public, and thus cleared the way to introduce ever more intrusive surveillance modalities.

As alluded to above, Google and Apple have jointly created a system to track and trace people allegedly exposed to the China Virus. This technology would rely on the Bluetooth signals that smartphones can both send and receive. If a person tests positive for the virus, public health authorities would be alerted. Anyone who came near the infected person’s smartphone in the prior 14 days could then be alerted.

the reporters were venting over, tens of thousands of ventilators remained in storage. "Citizen reporters" filmed many hospitals in NYC that were far from busy, with some looking like ghost towns. Some laid back hospitals around the U.S. even laid off workers, since not only was there no "pandemic" present, but the lockdowns cut back on the usual number of patients as elective surgery was postponed or outlawed, and the incidence of car accidents was way down, as residents hunkered down in their domiciles.

The mockingbird media continues to present and exaggerate daily death counts without ever putting them into perspective and comparing them with the larger number of deaths from other types of flu, pneumonia, cancer, heart disease, strokes, respiratory disease, diabetes, accidental deaths and even suicides. Delaying the conduct of otherwise normal medical procedures is also killing an unknown number of people as is the advice to stay at home and reduce healthy outdoor activities and access to sunshine, as is the anti-social admonition against social interaction or even getting close to anyone, and treating passers-by as lepers.

Allowing the virus to spread without the artificial restrictions will speed up the acquisition of natural immunity, called herd immunity (as if it were a slight), hasten the end of the current outbreak, and will build up immunity for future epidemics/plannedemics.

One shouldn't get one's hopes up over development of a vaccine to prevent this malady. As we are now increasingly finding out, these concoctions are many times more harmful than helpful, and can cause the disease they are tasked with eliminating. Many of some 50,000 who die each year from the flu receive the flu vaccine and it does them no good. Vaccines are suspected of being implicated in Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) and retardation of natural maturation in children.

All this locking of arms of the medical cartel with those usually antithetical to liberty and individual rights (with no dissent tolerated) certainly gives rise to a very healthy skepticism about what is going on and why.

The New York Times' "slimes" reported in March 2020 that the Trump administration conducted an exercise in 2019 simulating a pandemic crisis situation. This was the now notorious Event 201, a collaboration of the Bill and Melinda Gates Founda-ment, ecologically/environmentally oriented small businesses and traditional farms that are challenging the domination of big agriculture, alternative solutions to the domination of Big Tech in its censorship of free (populist and nationalist) speech, and the opposition to the ink-quisition on writings and thoughts that oppose the standard narratives.

At the same time it is greasing the skids for the imposition of the 5G technology (5G installations are occurring in the locked-down schools and other places where no one is present to see what's going on), the institution of a cashless regime/digital currency, the facilitation of the use of robots, the proliferation of the internet-of-things, imposition of methodologies for tracking our every movement and to determine whether we've received the mandatory vaccination shots, and forcing the plebes further into debt as they increase their borrowing and use of credit cards to overcome their emaciated bank accounts.

All the while, our self-appointed masters are continuing to do the research that will one day determine what we will think before we think it so that they can have complete mastery over us. The worst part is that the sheeple have gone along with every governmental mandate except for scattered protests that have not coalesced into a coordinated movement national in scope.

One of the famous Huxleys pointed out 90 years ago that we were on the path towards an efficient totalitarian state, and it looks like we're about to arrive there. The fear-mongering and constant diet of daily globaloney propaganda from the boob tube and corporate media has caused many people to lose their capability of discerning between fiction and reality.

The big whoppers occur in tsunami bursts that take advantage of staged or propitious unfavorable events that occur in the normal course of things, while the lesser daily news and distorted views reinforce the over-arching narratives.

On some level we can only hope that even the dullest of the dolts begin to realize that things cannot continue on the track they are on now. The establishment news-makers scream loudest about disinformation when they are the ones who propagate it, as they fly off the handle when their conformist positions are challenged. Maybe some dullards will soon see through these feverish floundering, engages the world's attention while at the same time digital tyranny is killing democracy, and while the U.S. Congress and the President sit it out quietly and let it happen.

Surveillance of the public followed the largely manufactured "war on terror," the implementation of the Patriot Act, and the advent of social media which allowed and furthered efforts to profile, track, and trace individuals. Now the China Virus provides a further pretense to further the already deep reach of the Deep State and its surveillance and corporate partners.

What began with the ludicrous supposed threat (and denial) from a Muslim friend of the U.S. President who was on dialysis and allegedly lived in a cave that couldn't be located has evolved into pathogen/pathogenic propaganda which the media has exploited to frighten an ill-informed public, and thus cleared the way to introduce ever more intrusive surveillance modalities.

As alluded to above, Google and Apple have jointly created a system to track and trace people allegedly exposed to the China Virus. This technology would rely on the Bluetooth signals that smartphones can both send and receive. If a person tests positive for the virus, public health authorities would be alerted. Anyone who came near the infected person's smartphone in the prior 14 days could then be alerted.

Bill Gates of Microsoft has wormed his way up the globalist oligarchy's hierarchy and now is the world's grand poobah/leading "expert" on vaccinations. It's uncanny that Gates at the same time is a proponent of greatly reducing the world's population.

Trust in public authorities and the media was already wearing very thin before the Covid-19 pandemic. All the lies in re: Washington's wars — weapons of mass destruction, Iranian nukes, Assad's use of chemical weapons, and the Russiagate hoax have seriously undermined the credibility of Washington and the U.S. corporate media. Thus alternative explanations, mischaracterized as "conspiracy theories" by the media, are running rampant all over. However, all the doubters need to come to common understandings and positions or else the confusion, debilitation, and irresponsibility will just get worse.

To continue to survive as a society, we need realism, decisive action, and commitment by public disease, diabetes, accidental deaths and even suicides. Delaying the conduct of otherwise normal medical procedures is also killing an unknown number of people as is the advice to stay at home and reduce healthy outdoor activities and access to sunshine, as is the anti-social admonition against social interaction or even getting close to anyone, and treating passers-by as lepers.

Allowing the virus to spread without the artificial restrictions will speed up the acquisition of natural immunity, called herd immunity (as if it were a slight), hasten the end of the current outbreak, and will build up immunity for future epidemics/plannedemics.

One shouldn't get one's hopes up over development of a vaccine to prevent this malady. As we are now increasingly finding out, these concoctions are many times more harmful than helpful, and can cause the disease they are tasked with eliminating. Many of some 50,000 who die each year from the flu receive the flu vaccine and it does them no good. Vaccines are suspected of being implicated in Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) and retardation of natural maturation in children.

All this locking of arms of the medical cartel with those usually antithetical to liberty and individual rights (with no dissent tolerated) certainly gives rise to a very healthy skepticism about what is going on and why.

The New York Times' "slimes" reported in March 2020 that the Trump administration conducted an exercise in 2019 simulating a pandemic crisis situation. This was the now notorious Event 201, a collaboration of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Johns Hopkins University, and the World Economic Forum, which simulated a Coronavirus outbreak and envisioned ways the public and private sectors could work together to stop the spread of this or any other virus.

The recommendations and policy proposals arising from this gathering were responsible for the ensuing nearly universal world lockdown. These hyped vaccination shots, and forcing the plebes further into debt as they increase their borrowing and use of credit cards to overcome their emaciated bank accounts.

All the while, our self-appointed masters are continuing to do the research that will one day determine what we will think before we think it so that they can have complete mastery over us. The worst part is that the sheeple have gone along with every governmental mandate except for scattered protests that have not coalesced into a coordinated movement national in scope.

One of the famous Huxleys pointed out 90 years ago that we were on the path towards an efficient totalitarian state, and it looks like we're about to arrive there. The fear-mongering and constant diet of daily globaloney propaganda from the boob tube and corporate media has caused many people to lose their capability of discerning between fiction and reality.

The big whoppers occur in tsunami bursts that take advantage of staged or propitious unfavorable events that occur in the normal course of things, while the lesser daily news and distorted views reinforce the over-arching narratives.

On some level we can only hope that even the dullest of the dolts begin to realize that things cannot continue on the track they are on now. The establishment news-makers scream loudest about disinformation when they are the ones who propagate it, as they fly off the handle when their conformist positions are challenged. Maybe some dullards will soon see through these feverish flounderings, fronts, and facades.

The control freaks are busy developing "apps" that will track everyone who downloads them and will "beep" when a person who allegedly has the virus walks near someone who doesn't. Privacy concerns will be rigorously ignored while at the same time enumerations of the applicability of the Privacy Act will be enumerated as a feature/clause of each gen/pathogenic propaganda which the media has exploited to frighten an ill-informed public, and thus cleared the way to introduce ever more intrusive surveillance modalities.

As alluded to above, Google and Apple have jointly created a system to track and trace people allegedly exposed to the China Virus. This technology would rely on the Bluetooth signals that smartphones can both send and receive. If a person tests positive for the virus, public health authorities would be alerted. Anyone who came near the infected person's smartphone in the prior 14 days could then be alerted.

Bill Gates of Microsoft has wormed his way up the globalist oligarchy's hierarchy and now is the world's grand poobah/leading "expert" on vaccinations. It's uncanny that Gates at the same time is a proponent of greatly reducing the world's population.

Trust in public authorities and the media was already wearing very thin before the Covid-19 pandemic. All the lies in re: Washington's wars — weapons of mass destruction, Iranian nukes, Assad's use of chemical weapons, and the Russiagate hoax have seriously undermined the credibility of Washington and the U.S. corporate media. Thus alternative explanations, mischaracterized as "conspiracy theories" by the media, are running rampant all over. However, all the doubters need to come to common understandings and positions or else the confusion, debilitation, and irresponsibility will just get worse.

To continue to survive as a society, we need realism, decisive action, and commitment by public authorities without favoritism. We should demand and force through substantial reforms once we get our act together. Despite all kinds of maladies being identified with or blamed on the Covid-19 virus; hopefully the bug-a-boo over it will eventually dissipate, but the assault on our liberties will not be reversed unless decisive action is taken.

Time to Investigate Bill Gates for Crimes Against Humanity?

by Robert Bridge

Occasionally, humanity is confronted with a series of events, often times accompanied with tremendous human suffering, that appear to be so intricately linked and coordinated that to explain them as mere coincidence or conspiracy theory is not only reckless, but potentially criminal in itself.

This month a petition was drafted for the federal government to call on Congress to investigate the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation for “medical malpractice and crimes against humanity.”

“As we look at events surrounding the COVID-19 pandemic,” the appeal reads, “various questions remain unanswered. On Oct. 18th of 2019, only weeks prior to ground zero being declared in Wuhan, China, two major events took place. One is ‘Event 201,’ the other is the ‘Military World Games,’ held in none other than Wuhan. Since then a worldwide push for vaccines and biometric tracking has been initiated.”

Already the petition has received over 450,000 signatures, far surpassing the 100,000 needed for the President to take action on the issue.

Although many people may have heard about Event 201, they may not be familiar with all of its details. Thus, it is crucial to examine what exactly took place at the event to see if there are any grounds for this public call for an investigation.

On October 18, 2019, the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, in looking news anchor, Chen Huang, provides the following details on the pandemic. Keep in mind, all of this is being acted out two months before the real virus makes landfall:

“Public health agencies have issued travel advisories, while some countries have banned travel from the worst affected areas,” Huang reported, with a gleam in her eye. “As a result, the travel industry is taking a huge hit; travel bookings are down 45% and many flights have been cancelled...”

“A ripple effect is racing through the service sector,” she said, a comment that probably made the crypto-currency community take note. “Governments that rely on travel and tourism as a large part of their economies are being hit particularly hard.”

If Huang only knew the half of it.

Next, the video returns to the closed door discussion group, as an ominous large-cap headline appears on the screen that reads: “Travel and Trade Restrictions are Having Profound Economic Consequences.”

than 90% of its fleet since the (real) coronavirus outbreak began in late December 2019.

And then there was Christopher Elias, the smooth-talking head of the Global Development Division of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, discussing the need to secure the supply chains amid the pandemic: “There’s a whole complex set of issues in a highly interdependent world on supply chains that are ‘just in time,’” Elias warned. “We need to think about how much flex there is in that just in time supply chain system and make sure it keeps running.”

Well, wouldn’t you know it? Just this week, Tyson Foods, one of the nation’s biggest meat processors, took out a full page ad in the New York Times in which it warned “the food supply chain is breaking.”

“As pork, beef and chicken plants are being forced to close... millions of pounds of meat will disappear from the supply chain,” John Tyson, Chairman of the Board of Tyson Foods, wrote. “As a result, there will be limited supply of our products available in grocery stores until we are able to reopen our facilities that are currently closed.”

But we’ve only just begun to enter the twilight zone.

At this point, the exercise is interrupted once again by Chen Huang of GNN for some commentary from “David Gamble,” a disagreeable economist with an unfortunate name who represents the world of finance; and Dr. Juan Perez, a more photogenic spokesperson for the world of medilinked and coordinated that to explain them as mere coincidence or conspiracy theory is not only reckless, but potentially criminal in itself.

This month a petition was drafted for the federal government to call on Congress to investigate the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation for “medical malpractice and crimes against humanity.”

“As we look at events surrounding the COVID-19 pandemic,” the appeal reads, “various questions remain unanswered. On Oct. 18th of 2019, only weeks prior to ground zero being declared in Wuhan, China, two major events took place. One is ‘Event 201,’ the other is the ‘Military World Games,’ held in none other than Wuhan. Since then a worldwide push for vaccines and biometric tracking has been initiated.”

Already the petition has received over 450,000 signatures, far surpassing the 100,000 needed for the President to take action on the issue.

Although many people may have heard about Event 201, they may not be familiar with all of its details. Thus, it is crucial to examine what exactly took place at the event to see if there are any grounds for this public call for an investigation.

On October 18, 2019, the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, in partnership with the World Economic Forum and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation hosted Event 201, an exercise that entailed a simulated outbreak of a coronavirus “transmitted from bats to people that eventually becomes...transmissible from person to person, leading to a severe pandemic.” Sound familiar? Well, the similarities between the simulated event and our present grim reality do not end there.

During the three-and-a-half-hour event, 15 representatives from the world of business, government, and public health were tasked with battling against the fictional outbreak, dubbed CAPS, which goes on to kill 65 million people worldwide over a period of 18 months.

Here is what we are told about this fictional bug: the disease is transmissible by people with mild symptoms; there is no possibility of a vaccine being avail-series, while some countries have banned travel from the worst affected areas,” Huang reported, with a gleam in her eye. “As a result, the travel industry is taking a huge hit; travel bookings are down 45% and many flights have been cancelled...”

“A ripple effect is racing through the service sector,” she said, a comment that probably made the crypto-currency community take note. “Governments that rely on travel and tourism as a large part of their economies are being hit particularly hard.”

If Huang only knew the half of it.

Next, the video returns to the closed door discussion group, as an ominous large-cap headline appears on the screen that reads: “Travel and Trade Restrictions are Having Profound Economic Consequences.”

Be very concerned when a leading advocate of depopulation also becomes the world's leading pusher of vaccines.

Tom Inglesby from John Hopkins University seemed to be staring into a crystal ball when he asked: “How should national leaders, businesses and international organizations balance the risk of worsening disease that will be caused by the continual movement of people around the world against the risk of profound economic consequence of travel and trade bans?”

discussing the need to secure the supply chains amid the pandemic: “There’s a whole complex set of issues in a highly interdependent world on supply chains that are ‘just in time,’” Elias warned. “We need to think about how much flex there is in that just in time supply chain system and make sure it keeps running.”

Well, wouldn’t you know it? Just this week, Tyson Foods, one of the nation’s biggest meat processors, took out a full page ad in the New York Times in which it warned “the food supply chain is breaking.”

“As pork, beef and chicken plants are being forced to close...millions of pounds of meat will disappear from the supply chain,” John Tyson, Chairman of the Board of Tyson Foods, wrote. “As a result, there will be limited supply of our products available in grocery stores until we are able to reopen our facilities that are currently closed.”

But we’ve only just begun to enter the twilight zone.

At this point, the exercise is interrupted once again by Chen Huang of GNN for some commentary from “David Gamble,” a disagreeable economist with an unfortunate name who represents the world of finance; and Dr. Juan Perez, a more photogenic spokesperson for the world of medicine.

In this fake interview, Gamble opens by asking: “What exactly are the risks and benefits of slowing air travel, of staying home from work, closing schools, disrupting supply chains...and interfering with our reliable channels of communication and news. When this is all over, some families, some cities, will have suffered more from our intervention than from CAPS,” he predicts, again, with incredible foresight of things to come.

In response to Gamble, Dr. Perez says: “Our response should aim to protect every life we can,” a statement few could disagree with. When Gamble retorts by suggesting that those lofty goals must be accomplished by protecting jobs and critical industries, Perez responds with this astounding remark: “As a physician, I am comfortable saying that our health response to CAPS cannot afford to wait for 450,000 signatures, far surpassing the 100,000 needed for the President to take action on the issue.

Although many people may have heard about Event 201, they may not be familiar with all of its details. Thus, it is crucial to examine what exactly took place at the event to see if there are any grounds for this public call for an investigation.

On October 18, 2019, the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, in partnership with the World Economic Forum and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation hosted Event 201, an exercise that entailed a simulated outbreak of a coronavirus “transmitted from bats to people that eventually becomes...transmissible from person to person, leading to a severe pandemic.” Sound familiar? Well, the similarities between the simulated event and our present grim reality do not end there.

During the three-and-a-half-hour event, 15 representatives from the world of business, government, and public health were tasked with battling against the fictional outbreak, dubbed CAPS, which goes on to kill 65 million people worldwide over a period of 18 months.

Here is what we are told about this fictional bug: the disease is transmissible by people with mild symptoms; there is no possibility of a vaccine being available in the first year; there is an antiviral drug that can help the sick but not significantly limit spread of the disease.

Again, those are nearly the exact set of real circumstances the global community is presently confronting with Covid-19. But wait, it gets better.

The exercise even had its very own “fake news” channel, dubbed GNN, reporting on the minute-by-minute battle against the fictitious outbreak. An Asian-

Be very concerned when a leading advocate of depopulation also becomes the world's leading pusher of vaccines.

Tom Inglesby from John Hopkins University seemed to be staring into a crystal ball when he asked: “How should national leaders, businesses and international organizations balance the risk of worsening disease that will be caused by the continual movement of people around the world against the risk of profound economic consequence of travel and trade bans?”

Martin Knuchel, crisis manager from Lufthansa Airlines was no less prophetic, using the very same terminology being employed today with regards to “essential” and “non-essential” businesses. “What is essential or non-essential travel, we have to clarify this,” Knuchel stated. “Otherwise, if we go down to 20% bookings over a short period, the company will run down, that’s a fact.”

Currently, Lufthansa has been forced to idle more products available in grocery stores than we are able to reopen our facilities that are currently closed.”

But we’ve only just begun to enter the twilight zone.

At this point, the exercise is interrupted once again by Chen Huang of GNN for some commentary from “David Gamble,” a disagreeable economist with an unfortunate name who represents the world of finance; and Dr. Juan Perez, a more photogenic spokesperson for the world of medicine.

In this fake interview, Gamble opens by asking: “What exactly are the risks and benefits of slowing air travel, of staying home from work, closing schools, disrupting supply chains...and interfering with our reliable channels of communication and news. When this is all over, some families, some cities, will have suffered more from our intervention than from CAPS,” he predicts, again, with incredible foresight of things to come.

In response to Gamble, Dr. Perez says: “Our response should aim to protect every life we can,” a statement few could disagree with. When Gamble retorts by suggesting that those lofty goals must be accomplished by protecting jobs and critical industries, Perez responds with this astounding remark: “As a physician, I am comfortable saying that our health response to CAPS cannot afford to wait for an incredibly complex debate about...history’s most expensive economic bailout.”

Incredibly, the actor physician parrots the very same stance that has been taken by governments around the world: “Let’s not endanger a single life, but rather keep everyone at home as we shut down the bulk of the global economy, which may or may not be rescued by a bailout.”

The scripted comment by the fake doctor makes it seem as though the health of the global economy has no connection to the health and well-being of people the world over. Nothing could be further removed from the truth.

At this point, it needs to be asked: what are the chances that an exercise simulating the outbreak of a global pandemic not only happens just weeks before the real event, but predicts its main features, which include the shutdown of businesses and schools worldwide, the loss of supply chains, as well as the most expensive bailout in history, among other things? At what point does the line separating fact from fiction, truth from lies become so blurred that it demands a criminal investigation?

The Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, the host of the incredibly visionary exercise, may have been entertaining similar questions when it released a statement on the shocking array of coincidences, saying: "Recently, the Center for Health Security has received questions about whether that pandemic exercise predicted the current novel coronavirus outbreak in China. To be clear, the Center for Health Security and partners did not make a prediction during our tabletop exercise. For the scenario, we modeled a fictional coronavirus pandemic, but we explicitly stated that it was not a prediction."

As it turned out, on October 18, the very same day that Event 201 was being carried out in New York City, the Military World Games kicked off in Wuhan, China, which was reportedly ground zero for the outbreak of Covid-19.

The 7th International Military Sports Council (CISM) Military World Games were hosted from Oct. 18 to 27, 2019 in Wuhan, capital city of central China's Hubei Province. It was the first international military sporting competition to be held in China, with nearly 10,000 athletes from over 100 countries competing in 27 sports.

Following the outbreak of coronavirus in Wuhan, conspiracy theories popped up like mushrooms af-tory tract infections that even include some cases of the common cold. Then there are the more lethal strains, like SARS, MERS, and COVID-19, for which The Pirbright Institute, one of many organizations looking to develop a vaccine against Covid-19, does not hold a patent.

"The Institute was granted a patent in 2018 which covers the development of an attenuated (weakened) form of the coronavirus that could potentially be used as a vaccine to prevent respiratory diseases in birds, including IBV, and other animals," a representative from the Pirbright Institute told USA Today.

One more note on Wuhan. Less than one month after Event 201, and less than a month before the outbreak of Covid-19, Bill Gates appeared in the Netflix series "Explained" with a documentary entitled, "The Next Pandemic." In it, the Microsoft co-founder warned that a pandemic could emerge from one of China's many "wet markets," where shoppers can choose from a wide variety of live fish and animal products.

In 2015, Gates also did a TED talk where he warned that the next catastrophe would not come from missiles, but rather microbes.

So if Bill Gates seems to have the best interests of the world at heart, why is he so mistrusted?

On March 13, Bill Gates announced he was stepping down from the board of Microsoft Corp., the company he co-founded in 1975, to devote more time to philanthropy. Since then, this technocrat in a wool sweater, who seems to be trying to channel the trust and tenderness of a Fred Rogers, regularly addresses prison planet from his mainstream media soapbox about how he is now devoted to making "vaccines in large quantities." And, despite having neither scientific credentials nor an elected political post, Gates nevertheless has warned that mass gatherings "may not come back at all" without a vaccine.

Apparently the time-honored biological function known as "herd immunity," which has worked fine for millennia against disease, is now considered outthusiastic over vaccines that carry biometric surveillance technology.

While many people would probably have little qualms about rolling up their sleeve for a vaccination that protects them from a deadly virus, many would certainly question the added-on feature of tracking technology that would give the powers-that-be total control over every person.

Not only does Gates support the creation of a "national tracking system" to tag the infected, but Microsoft is among the founding members of ID2020, a San Francisco-based biometric company that recently announced it was undertaking a new project that involves the "exploration of multiple biometric identification technologies for infants" that is based on "infant immunization" and only uses the "most successful approaches."

Can it get creepier than that? Unfortunately, yes it can.

Two weeks after Bill Gates left the board of Microsoft, the company received a patent for a "cryptocurrency system body activity data." Although the details on the technology are truly shocking the patent number also had conspiracy theorists in an uproar: WO2020060606. It didn't take much for internet sleuths, not to mention Bible enthusiasts, to say this stood for: "World Order 2020 666."

Of all the millions of patent numbers that could have been used, why this one? As is the case with customized license plate numbers, did Gates personally request such a configuration that was bound to trigger fear and suspicion — in the middle of a pandemic, no less?

Although the cryptocurrency invention makes no specific mention of nanotechnology injected under the skin, possibly together with a vaccine, the opaque description doesn't rule it out either: "The cryptocurrency system communicatively coupled to the device of the user may verify if the body activity data satisfies one or more conditions set by the cryptocurrency system, and award cryptocurrency things? At what point does the line separating fact from fiction, truth from lies become so blurred that it demands a criminal investigation?

The Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, the host of the incredibly visionary exercise, may have been entertaining similar questions when it released a statement on the shocking array of coincidences, saying: "Recently, the Center for Health Security has received questions about whether that pandemic exercise predicted the current novel coronavirus outbreak in China. To be clear, the Center for Health Security and partners did not make a prediction during our tabletop exercise. For the scenario, we modeled a fictional coronavirus pandemic, but we explicitly stated that it was not a prediction."

As it turned out, on October 18, the very same day that Event 201 was being carried out in New York City, the Military World Games kicked off in Wuhan, China, which was reportedly ground zero for the outbreak of Covid-19.

The 7th International Military Sports Council (CISM) Military World Games were hosted from Oct. 18 to 27, 2019 in Wuhan, capital city of central China's Hubei Province. It was the first international military sporting competition to be held in China, with nearly 10,000 athletes from over 100 countries competing in 27 sports.

Following the outbreak of coronavirus in Wuhan, conspiracy theories popped up like mushrooms after a summer rain. Chinese newspapers began floating the idea that U.S. athletes competing in the games had unleashed the deadly virus while in Wuhan. The theories point to two things: the lackluster performance by the U.S. athletes, thus proving, according to some Chinese commentators, they were not sent to Wuhan for their physical prowess but rather for something more sinister. Second, their living quarters were close to the Huanan Seafood Market, where the first cluster of Covid-19 was detected on Dec. 31, 2019.

So what is the connection to Bill Gates, who was certainly not participating in the Wuhan military games to shield more nefarious actions? On the surface, absolutely nothing. Yet for a philanthropist whose name is connected to nearly every major pharmaceutical company, and dozens of research groups, connections are bound to be made that may mean nothing. At the very least, however, they are worthy of attention.

One more note on Wuhan. Less than one month after Event 201, and less than a month before the outbreak of Covid-19, Bill Gates appeared in the Netflix series "Explained" with a documentary entitled, "The Next Pandemic." In it, the Microsoft co-founder warned that a pandemic could emerge from one of China's many "wet markets," where shoppers can choose from a wide variety of live fish and animal products.

In 2015, Gates also did a TED talk where he warned that the next catastrophe would not come from missiles, but rather microbes.

So if Bill Gates seems to have the best interests of the world at heart, why is he so mistrusted?

On March 13, Bill Gates announced he was stepping down from the board of Microsoft Corp., the company he co-founded in 1975, to devote more time to philanthropy. Since then, this technocrat in a wool sweater, who seems to be trying to channel the trust and tenderness of a Fred Rogers, regularly addresses prison planet from his mainstream media soapbox about how he is now devoted to making "vaccines in large quantities." And, despite having neither scientific credentials nor an elected political post, Gates nevertheless has warned that mass gatherings "may not come back at all" without a vaccine.

Apparently the time-honored biological function known as "herd immunity," which has worked fine for millennia against disease, is now considered out of fashion. Is that because it costs absolutely nothing, least of all in terms of our freedom and liberty? But I digress.

Here is Gates lecturing in The Washington Post on April 1st: "The country's leaders need to be clear: Shutdown anywhere means shutdown everywhere. Until the case numbers start to go down across America — which could take 10 weeks or more — no one can continue business as usual or relax the shutdown. Any confusion about this point will only extend the economic pain, raise the odds that the virus will return, and cause more deaths."

Needless to say, such non-professional advice is infuriating many Americans as opportunistic officials reveal their authoritarian impulses, unleashing a number of draconian lock-down orders, from prohibiting the mowing of lawns to banning swimming at the beach to snitching on family, friends and strangers for breaking with social-distancing decorum.

from the Pirbright Institute told USA Today. ID2020, a San Francisco-based biometric company that recently announced it was undertaking a new project that involves the "exploration of multiple biometric identification technologies for infants" that is based on "infant immunization" and only uses the "most successful approaches."

Can it get creepier than that? Unfortunately, yes it can.

Two weeks after Bill Gates left the board of Microsoft, the company received a patent for a "cryptocurrency system body activity data." Although the details on the technology are truly shocking the patent number also had conspiracy theorists in an uproar: WO2020060606. It didn't take much for internet sleuths, not to mention Bible enthusiasts, to say this stood for: "World Order 2020 666."

Of all the millions of patent numbers that could have been used, why this one? As is the case with customized license plate numbers, did Gates personally request such a configuration that was bound to trigger fear and suspicion — in the middle of a pandemic, no less?

Although the cryptocurrency invention makes no specific mention of nanotechnology injected under the skin, possibly together with a vaccine, the opaque description doesn't rule it out either: "The cryptocurrency system communicatively coupled to the device of the user may verify if the body activity data satisfies one or more conditions set by the cryptocurrency system, and award cryptocurrency to the user whose body activity data is verified...."

Judging by this and other such activities on the part of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, it becomes easier to understand why so many people fear the very worst about their true goals. Whether that high level of distrust should translate into a federal investigation, that is a question best left to the reader to decide.

Originally published by <https://www.strategic-culture.org>.

"What sort of life do we think we are protecting? There is more to life than the avoidance of death. Life is a drink with friends. Life is a crowded football match or a live concert. Life is a family celebration with children and grandchildren. Life is companionship, an arm around one's back, laughter or tears shared at less than two meters."

Wuhan, China, which was reportedly ground zero for the outbreak of Covid-19.

The 7th International Military Sports Council (CISM) Military World Games were hosted from Oct. 18 to 27, 2019 in Wuhan, capital city of central China's Hubei Province. It was the first international military sporting competition to be held in China, with nearly 10,000 athletes from over 100 countries competing in 27 sports.

Following the outbreak of coronavirus in Wuhan, conspiracy theories popped up like mushrooms after a summer rain. Chinese newspapers began floating the idea that U.S. athletes competing in the games had unleashed the deadly virus while in Wuhan. The theories point to two things: the lackluster performance by the U.S. athletes, thus proving, according to some Chinese commentators, they were not sent to Wuhan for their physical prowess but rather for something more sinister. Second, their living quarters were close to the Huanan Seafood Market, where the first cluster of Covid-19 was detected on Dec. 31, 2019.

So what is the connection to Bill Gates, who was certainly not participating in the Wuhan military games to shield more nefarious actions? On the surface, absolutely nothing. Yet for a philanthropist whose name is connected to nearly every major pharmaceutical company, and dozens of research groups, connections are bound to be made that may mean nothing. At the very least, however, they are worthy of attention.

For example, how many people know that there is a patent for the coronavirus? It is owned by The Pirbright Institute, a biological research organization based in Surrey, England. The institute is funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation.

It's important to note, however, that the coronavirus is the generic name for a group of related RNA viruses that cause diseases in mammals and birds. In humans, these viruses cause respira-time to philanthropy. Since then, this technocrat in a wool sweater, who seems to be trying to channel the trust and tenderness of a Fred Rogers, regularly addresses prison planet from his mainstream media soapbox about how he is now devoted to making "vaccines in large quantities." And, despite having neither scientific credentials nor an elected political post, Gates nevertheless has warned that mass gatherings "may not come back at all" without a vaccine.

Apparently the time-honored biological function known as "herd immunity," which has worked fine for millennia against disease, is now considered out of fashion. Is that because it costs absolutely nothing, least of all in terms of our freedom and liberty? But I digress.

Here is Gates lecturing in The Washington Post on April 1st: "The country's leaders need to be clear: Shutdown anywhere means shutdown everywhere. Until the case numbers start to go down across America — which could take 10 weeks or more — no one can continue business as usual or relax the shutdown. Any confusion about this point will only extend the economic pain, raise the odds that the virus will return, and cause more deaths."

Needless to say, such non-professional advice is infuriating many Americans as opportunistic officials reveal their authoritarian impulses, unleashing a number of draconian lock-down orders, from prohibiting the mowing of lawns to banning swimming at the beach to snitching on family, friends and strangers for breaking with social-distancing decorum.

In a new interview, Bill Gates authoritatively states that mass public gatherings will not come back "at all" until we have mass vaccination. Who made him king of the world?

Not only does Bill Gates' relentless push for a global vaccine against Covid-19 carry the scent of greed, especially when it is considered how heavily invested he is in its development, but the computer engineer turned "medical expert" seems overly encustomized license plate numbers, did Gates personally request such a configuration that was bound to trigger fear and suspicion — in the middle of a pandemic, no less?

Although the cryptocurrency invention makes no specific mention of nanotechnology injected under the skin, possibly together with a vaccine, the opaque description doesn't rule it out either: "The cryptocurrency system communicatively coupled to the device of the user may verify if the body activity data satisfies one or more conditions set by the cryptocurrency system, and award cryptocurrency to the user whose body activity data is verified...."

Judging by this and other such activities on the part of the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, it becomes easier to understand why so many people fear the very worst about their true goals. Whether that high level of distrust should translate into a federal investigation, that is a question best left to the reader to decide.

Originally published by <https://www.strategic-culture.org>.

"What sort of life do we think we are protecting? There is more to life than the avoidance of death. Life is a drink with friends. Life is a crowded football match or a live concert. Life is a family celebration with children and grandchildren. Life is companionship, an arm around one's back, laughter or tears shared at less than two meters.

"These things are not just optional extras. They are life itself. They are fundamental to our humanity, to our existence as human beings. Of course death is permanent, whereas joy may be temporarily suspended. But the force of that point depends on how temporary it really is."

—Lord Jonathan Sumption, an English author, medieval historian and former senior judge, on the Covid-19 lockdown

The Nationalist Times

Founded 1985

Voice of the Real America

Revolution From Below

As if normal Americans don't have enough to worry about, what with a global psy-op attempting to foist a top-down medical dictatorship on the country and the West, boring up from below like termites, communist revolutionaries are busy trying to establish their own form of totalitarianism on a nation that has been weakened and subverted from every possible direction for decades.

When Virginia "went blue" last year with a Democrat majority taking over its state legislature, it was the culmination of a long and determined effort by an outfit with the somewhat innocuous name of New Virginia Majority (NVM). However, New Virginia Majority is a hard-core pro-Maoist group.

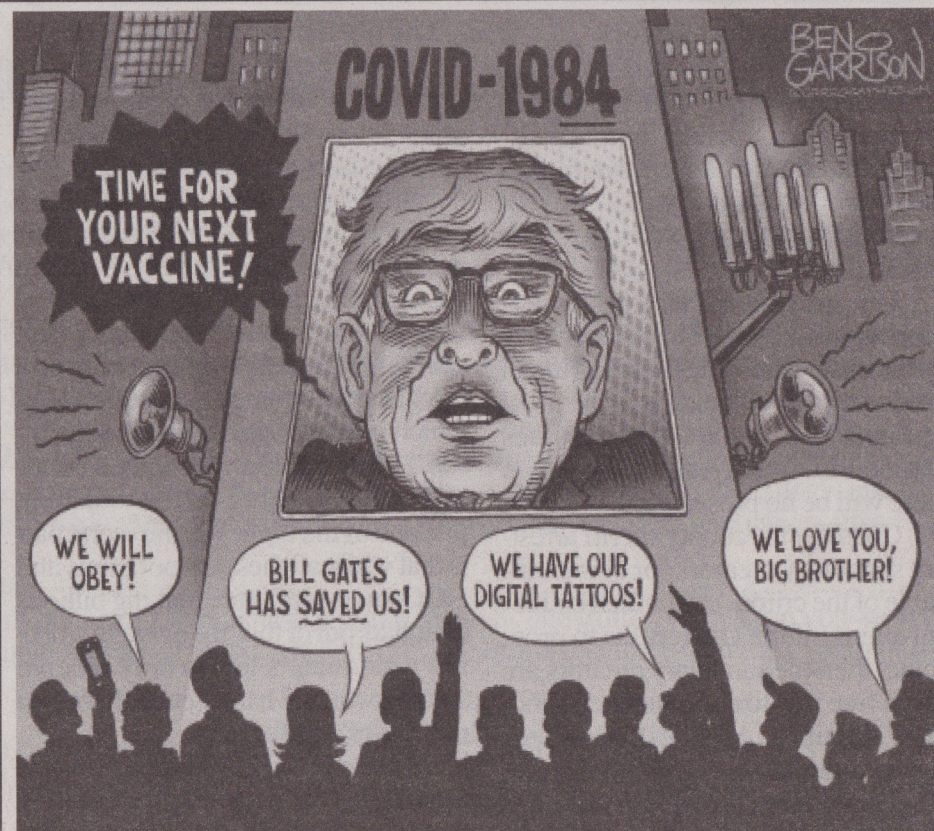

The organization's co-executive director, Tram Nguyen, boasted in an op-ed published by The New York Times that New Virginia Majority spent the past 12 years working to "reach voters of all colors, women, low-income workers and young people where they are," adding that this "has made it possible for us to develop a robust base of support along Virginia's so-called Urban Crescent, from Northern Virginia to Hampton Roads."

Nguyen boasted that, "Long before Election Day, we registered more than 300,000 voters, knocked on more than 2.5 million doors, and organized within communities of color to help win significant policy changes." Indeed, the new legislative majority in Virginia is quite militant even for the Democrat Party, and exists because of the tireless work of communist revolutionaries.

The February 17, 2020 issue of The New American explains in great detail the long-standing communist backgrounds of New Virginia Majority leaders and activists and their connections with fellow Red groups such as Freedom Road Socialist Organization (FRSO), which is purported to be the U.S.'s most influential Maoist organization and is now more commonly called Liberation Road.

Registering 300,000 voters and knocking on 2.5 million doors just in one state is astounding, and NVM and its fellow group Liberation Road have been busy in states besides Virginia. They have also targeted North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee in the South, and Arizona in the Southwest.

And that makes perfect sense as North Carolina, Florida and Arizona are all major population states and all three were barely won by Donald Trump in 2016. Tennessee, for now at least, is still seen as a strong Republican state in

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Trump Urged to Win Over Sheriffs

First I want to declare that I stand unequivocally with you, President Trump, and have from the beginning. Then we must all recognize that the political landscape is right now one big unholy political mess.

What is needed now is confidence amongst American voters that there is a possible solution to this mess, and that we can find it. But in fact we have had it staring us right in the face but just have not been able to recognize it. It has been there all the time patiently waiting for us (we Trump supporters) to look in the right direction.

We are all patriotic Americans dedicated to our Constitution and to the Founding Fathers' vision of popular self-government by a free people. So why try and the west, coming up from below. These terminites, communist revolutionaries are busy trying to establish their own form of totalitarianism on a nation that has been weakened and subverted from every possible direction for decades.

When Virginia “went blue” last year with a Democrat majority taking over its state legislature, it was the culmination of a long and determined effort by an outfit with the somewhat innocuous name of New Virginia Majority (NVM). However, New Virginia Majority is a hard-core pro-Maoist group.

The organization’s co-executive director, Tram Nguyen, boasted in an op-ed published by The New York Times that New Virginia Majority spent the past 12 years working to “reach voters of all colors, women, low-income workers and young people where they are,” adding that this “has made it possible for us to develop a robust base of support along Virginia’s so-called Urban Crescent, from Northern Virginia to Hampton Roads.”

Nguyen boasted that, “Long before Election Day, we registered more than 300,000 voters, knocked on more than 2.5 million doors, and organized within communities of color to help win significant policy changes.” Indeed, the new legislative majority in Virginia is quite militant even for the Democrat Party, and exists because of the tireless work of communist revolutionaries.

The February 17, 2020 issue of The New American explains in great detail the long-standing communist backgrounds of New Virginia Majority leaders and activists and their connections with fellow Red groups such as Freedom Road Socialist Organization (FRSO), which is purported to be the U.S.’s most influential Maoist organization and is now more commonly called Liberation Road.

Registering 300,000 voters and knocking on 2.5 million doors just in one state is astounding, and NVM and its fellow group Liberation Road have been busy in states besides Virginia. They have also targeted North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee in the South, and Arizona in the Southwest.

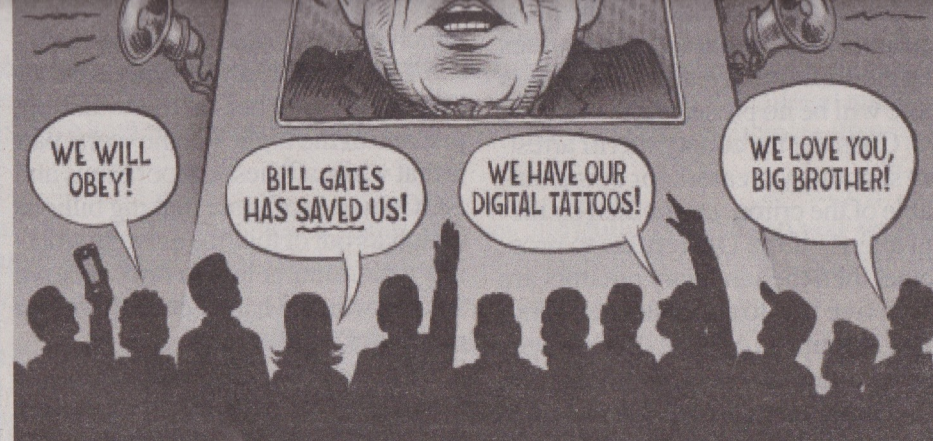

And that makes perfect sense as North Carolina, Florida and Arizona are all major population states and all three were barely won by Donald Trump in 2016. Tennessee, for now at least, is still seen as a strong Republican state in presidential elections, so in the Volunteer State the communists are currently concentrating on taking over large cities such as Knoxville and Memphis.

Donald Trump will likely have to carry North Carolina, Florida and Arizona again, along with Pennsylvania and Michigan – all states he won by very close margins – if he is to win re-election again in November.

Investigative reporter Trevor Loudon has done a lot of background work on the communist forces at work in the South – which they call the “New Confederacy” – and Arizona. He writes that the communists refer to the Democrats as “they” not “we” as the goal of an even larger coalition of communists including the Communist Party USA, Democratic Socialists of America, Liberation Road, and Left Inside/Outside Project is to “explicitly move politics to the left, especially in the South, by working both inside and outside the Democratic Party.”

Loudon adds that “The Republican Party seems oblivious to a major threat developing in its Southern stronghold” as communist groups work to flip Republican-held states “one by one.”

That would be the same Republican Party that still contends, contrary to mountains of long-standing evidence, that hispanics, Indians and Orientals – the three groups they have flooded America with by the tens of millions – are “natu-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Trump Urged to Win Over Sheriffs

First I want to declare that I stand unequivocally with you, President Trump, and have from the beginning. Then we must all recognize that the political landscape is right now one big unholy political mess.

What is needed now is confidence amongst American voters that there is a possible solution to this mess, and that we can find it. But in fact we have had it staring us right in the face but just have not been able to recognize it. It has been there all the time patiently waiting for us (we Trump supporters) to look in the right direction.

We are all patriotic Americans dedicated to our Constitution and to the Founding Fathers’ vision of popular self-government by a free people. So why hasn’t it occurred to us to go talk to the people personally and ask for their cooperation? Offer to ask them for their preferences and opinions and promise them we will try to reconcile what they want to see happen with the necessary laws and hard political realities ahead.

In other words, bargain and compromise with them as one always does to arrive at a deal with the other guy.

But then: how do we have this “personal” conversation in order to reach a “deal” with the voters? In their hometowns, of course, how else? How? Through reputable, trusted men there who agree with us about the need for that. And who would they be? The local county Sheriffs.

Oh! Go on!

I suggest you write a letter (as president of the USA) to the National Sheriff’s Association, asking them to please pass on for you your congratulations to each Sheriff for their leadership on the magnificent job they have been doing to support and protect our Constitution, our nation and our people.

Tell them that their magnificent performance has made them respected leaders in their community in other ways, not only in respect to law enforcement. We have gigantic problems just ahead as we see nationwide social unrest, riots and killings by crazies.

the long-standing communist backbones of New Virginia majority leaders and activists and their connections with fellow Red groups such as Freedom Road Socialist Organization (FRSO), which is purported to be the U.S.'s most influential Maoist organization and is now more commonly called Liberation Road.

Registering 300,000 voters and knocking on 2.5 million doors just in one state is astounding, and NVM and its fellow group Liberation Road have been busy in states besides Virginia. They have also targeted North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee in the South, and Arizona in the Southwest.

And that makes perfect sense as North Carolina, Florida and Arizona are all major population states and all three were barely won by Donald Trump in 2016. Tennessee, for now at least, is still seen as a strong Republican state in presidential elections, so in the Volunteer State the communists are currently concentrating on taking over large cities such as Knoxville and Memphis.

Donald Trump will likely have to carry North Carolina, Florida and Arizona again, along with Pennsylvania and Michigan – all states he won by very close margins – if he is to win re-election again in November.

Investigative reporter Trevor Loudon has done a lot of background work on the communist forces at work in the South – which they call the “New Confederacy” – and Arizona. He writes that the communists refer to the Democrats as “they” not “we” as the goal of an even larger coalition of communists including the Communist Party USA, Democratic Socialists of America, Liberation Road, and Left Inside/Outside Project is to “explicitly move politics to the left, especially in the South, by working both inside and outside the Democratic Party.”

Loudon adds that “The Republican Party seems oblivious to a major threat developing in its Southern stronghold” as communist groups work to flip Republican-held states “one by one.”

That would be the same Republican Party that still contends, contrary to mountains of long-standing evidence, that hispanics, Indians and Orientals – the three groups they have flooded America with by the tens of millions – are “natural conservative Republicans.”

It is because of Republican conservatives that key states like Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Texas and Arizona are very, very close to following California and turning irreversibly blue.

“It can’t happen here” was once a common saying about America, now long forgotten as every imaginable one-time taboo and outrage has indeed happened here. With only the Republican Party “loyal opposition” standing in the way, don’t be surprised at what happens next.

two022017-2018

Win Over Sheriffs

First I want to declare that I stand unequivocally with you, President Trump, and have from the beginning. Then we must all recognize that the political landscape is right now one big unholy political mess.

What is needed now is confidence amongst American voters that there is a possible solution to this mess, and that we can find it. But in fact we have had it staring us right in the face but just have not been able to recognize it. It has been there all the time patiently waiting for us (we Trump supporters) to look in the right direction.

We are all patriotic Americans dedicated to our Constitution and to the Founding Fathers’ vision of popular self-government by a free people. So why hasn’t it occurred to us to go talk to the people personally and ask for their cooperation? Offer to ask them for their preferences and opinions and promise them we will try to reconcile what they want to see happen with the necessary laws and hard political realities ahead.

In other words, bargain and compromise with them as one always does to arrive at a deal with the other guy.

But then: how do we have this “personal” conversation in order to reach a “deal” with the voters? In their hometowns, of course, how else? How? Through reputable, trusted men there who agree with us about the need for that.

And who would they be? The local county Sheriffs.

Oh! Go on!

I suggest you write a letter (as president of the USA) to the National Sheriff’s Association, asking them to please pass on for you your congratulations to each Sheriff for their leadership on the magnificent job they have been doing to support and protect our Constitution, our nation and our people.

Tell them that their magnificent performance has made them respected leaders in their community in other ways, not only in respect to law enforcement. We have gigantic problems just ahead as we see nationwide social unrest, riots and killings by crazies.

Then add: would you please also ask each Sheriff if he would kindly pass on his e-mail address to you (as U.S. President) because you would like to e-mail all Sheriffs a periodic personal newsletter describing confidentially how things are going in Washington and what enemy political forces are doing to turn us on the path to destruction for our nation.

Cushman Cunningham
Fort Myers, Florida

Arrest the abettors

Let me see if I have this right. A crime is committed. The criminal is arrested. The District Attorney prosecutes the criminal. A jury determines that the criminal is guilty. A judge pronounces the criminal's penalty. The criminal goes to jail.

I know, I know. This is an oversimplification. Many factors determine the jail outcome. The main failure in producing this outcome is in the prosecution stage. If the DA determines that the crime is not really a crime, then there will be no prosecution.

Consider the county sheriff arresting sanctuary creators for being culpable of the crimes committed by illegal aliens. If the DA refuses to prosecute, then the sanctuary creators are given free rein to continue their sanctuary activities. And the illegal aliens can continue to rob, rape and murder.

The solution for this travesty is to re-arrest the sanctuary creators and also arrest the DA for complicity. I wonder how high up the prosecution chain will arrests have to be made before the moronic sanctuary creators are prosecuted?

William Langman
Bridge City, Texas

The big fish want the handouts

Out of this whole coronavirus mess there has been a lot of power/money grabs going on that need to be exposed and discussed by outlets like The Nationalist Times.

From the large $2 trillion stimulus package, the shameless Jews at the ADL tried to get $60 billion!! They were unsuccessful, but to my understanding they will have first access to the $273 billion small business bailout, which is a first come first serve deal.

The ADL aren't the only shameless money grubbers in this situation, just one of the biggest. The worst part is that while all these corporations and NGOs/non-profits are making billions of dollars out of this, the average working American is left to only receive $1,200, which is hardly enough for two months of rent for most.

So once again big corporations are making big bucks while the average American goes out of business, unemployed, hungry and suffering.

Brandon Clint Russell
Terre Haute, Indiana

Christian worshiping taken away by government

The observing of Palm Sunday, Good Friday and the Resurrection of The Son of God were taken from us by governments worldwide with spurious coronavirus claims of: "It's in your best interests." Oh? How is obedience to the secular state in the best interests of Christians?

When King Nebuchadnezzar ordered obeisance to a government image he had made, it was four God-fearing men who refused. Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah "were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace," but were soon seen walking loose and unharmed in the midst of the fire with a fourth. . .like the Son of God."

For reproving the king (government) of pride and idolatry, Daniel was cast into the den of lions. The next day, King Nebuchadnezzar went to the lions' den and cried out, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?" Daniel replied, "My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me."

Do our church leaders have such faith? I think not. They chose to fear government edicts denying assemblies to Christians praising and worshiping our Savior for "his having risen from the dead for us. They closed us out of our churches!

Listen up, preachers: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

Leonard Robert Schmidt
Carson City, Nevada

Great editorial

The editorial in the April issue of The Nationalist Times ("What Will You Do Without Freedom?") was perhaps your best yet, essential reading for all Americans.

Yet, I wonder how many of our fellow citizens would even be able to comprehend its important message even if they did read it. Even before this pandemic was foisted upon us, it had been obvious in countless ways every day that Americans no longer value or even understand Liberty.

But it's determined minorities that change the course of history, and that's what freedom-loving Americans – a true minority these days – must do.

J. Miller
Saint Paul, Minnesota

Send your letters to The Nationalist Times, Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091; email: mail@americanfreedomunion.com. Handwritten letters must be clearly written and should not be more than 300 words.

The Fake News Media IS the Enemy

education stage. If the DA determines that the crime is not really a crime, then there will be no prosecution.

Consider the county sheriff arresting sanctuary creators for being culpable of the crimes committed by illegal aliens. If the DA refuses to prosecute, then the sanctuary creators are given free rein to continue their sanctuary activities. And the illegal aliens can continue to rob, rape and murder.

The solution for this travesty is to re-arrest the sanctuary creators and also arrest the DA for complicity. I wonder how high up the prosecution chain will arrests have to be made before the moronic sanctuary creators are prosecuted?

William Langman
Bridge City, Texas

which is a first come first serve deal. The ADL aren't the only shameless money grubbers in this situation, just one of the biggest. The worst part is that while all these corporations and NGOs/non-profits are making billions of dollars out of this, the average working American is left to only receive $1,200, which is hardly enough for two months of rent for most.

So once again big corporations are making big bucks while the average American goes out of business, unemployed, hungry and suffering.

Brandon Clint Russell
Terre Haute, Indiana

Christian worshiping taken away by government

The observing of Palm Sunday, Good Friday and the Resurrection of The Son of God were taken from us

unharmful in the midst of the fire with a fourth. . . like the Son of God."

For reproving the king (government) of pride and idolatry, Daniel was cast into the den of lions. The next day, King Nebuchadnezzar went to the lions' den and cried out, "O Daniel, servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?" Daniel replied, "My God hath sent his angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me."

Do our church leaders have such faith? I think not. They chose to fear government edicts denying assemblies to Christians praising and worshiping our Savior for "his having risen from the dead for us. They closed us out of our churches!

Listen up, preachers: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound

Let, I wonder how many of our fellow citizens would even be able to comprehend its important message even if they did read it. Even before this pandemic was foisted upon us, it had been obvious in countless ways every day that Americans no longer value or even understand Liberty.

But it's determined minorities that change the course of history, and that's what freedom-loving Americans — a true minority these days — must do.

J. Miller
Saint Paul, Minnesota

Send your letters to The Nationalist Times, Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091; email: mail@americanfreedomunion.com. Handwritten letters must be clearly written and should not be more than 300 words.

The Fake News Media IS the Enemy

• Mainstream media wages relentless war on the credibility of the president, alternative news media

By Paul T. Angel

Donald J. Trump has singlehandedly knocked the bought-and-paid-for press off its exalted throne as the self-appointed czars of "real news." That's right. He said it. "The fake news media is the enemy." Now the elite media is scrambling frantically to try to explain why anyone should be listening to them at all. They have been humiliated. And, to make matters worse for them, the president continues to take his message straight to the American public, bypassing the cringing gatekeepers of "truth" who formerly had a monopoly on what you could hear or watch or read. They are like the emperor with no clothes—hoping desperately nobody notices they are birthday-suit, buck-naked bare for all to see.

Right now, the masters of the controlled media are frantically lashing out with all the ammo they have in their once formidable arsenals in a vain attempt to hold their slipping grip on whatever diminishing

during a recent interview on "Face the Nation" that his boss should be taken seriously when he calls the media "the enemy." Trump had tweeted: "The FAKE

The media is the enemy. In the old Soviet Union, the government controlled the media. Not a word of substance could be published without prior approval from the Bolshevik commissars. Today, in the U.S., the situation is starkly similar. But most Americans don't know it. In America today, it is a select handful of super-rich families and tightly knit financial interests—a plutocratic elite—who own the Big Media and who control the government through their ownership of that media. . . . Every single one of the major media outlets is controlled by this powerful interlocking combine.

COUNTER THE FAKE NEWS MEDIA!

Here's your chance to send a message to the FAKE news media and get some REAL news from a newspaper that is 100% America first. Right now you can subscribe to AFP for a year for just $37 (26 biweekly issues; reg. $59—you save $22) plus we'll throw in four recent AFP issues plus a free copy of a new edition of War Is a Racket by Small, Butler. Send your payment for $37 (mentioning

William Langman
Bridge City, Texas

Christian worshipping taken away by government
The observing of Palm Sunday,
Good Friday and the Resurrection of
The Son of God were taken from us the dead for us. They closed us out of our churches!

Listen up, preachers: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mail@americanfreedomunion.com.

Handwritten letters must be clearly written and should not be more than 300 words.

The Fake News Media IS the Enemy

• Mainstream media wages relentless war on the credibility of the president, alternative news media

By Paul T. Angel

Donald J. Trump has singlehandedly knocked the bought-and-paid-for press off its exalted throne as the self-appointed czars of "real news." That's right. He said it. "The fake news media is the enemy." Now the elite media is scrambling frantically to try to explain why anyone should be listening to them at all. They have been humiliated. And, to make matters worse for them, the president continues to take his message straight to the American public, bypassing the cringing gatekeepers of "truth" who formerly had a monopoly on what you could hear or watch or read. They are like the emperor with no clothes—hoping desperately nobody notices they are birthday-suit, buck-naked bare for all to see.

Right now, the masters of the controlled media are frantically lashing out with all the ammo they have in their once formidable arsenals in a vain attempt to hold their slipping grip on whatever diminishing shred of relevance they can to maintain their lucrative dominance of the news business.

Fortunately for that segment of the American public that thinks with their brains and not their buttocks, they realize the bombs and bullets being fired at Trump are duds. Their con game is over.

White House Chief of Staff Reince Priebus said

during a recent interview on "Face the Nation" that his boss should be taken seriously when he calls the media "the enemy." Trump had tweeted: "The FAKE news media . . . is not my enemy, it is the enemy of the American people!"

Readers of AMERICAN FREE PRESS (AFP) newspaper know that this was a slogan of the late, great Michael Collins Piper, who used it not only in his own writings, but in promotional material for AFP. He wrote more than 15 years ago:

The media is the enemy. In the old Soviet Union, the government controlled the media. Not a word of substance could be published without prior approval from the Bolshevik commissars. Today, in the U.S., the situation is starkly similar. But most Americans don't know it. In America today, it is a select handful of super-rich families and tightly knit financial interests—a plutocratic elite—who own the Big Media and who control the government through their ownership of that media. . . . Every single one of the major media outlets is controlled by this powerful interlocking combine.

COUNTER THE FAKE NEWS MEDIA!

Here's your chance to send a message to the FAKE news media and get some REAL news from a newspaper that is 100% America first. Right now you can subscribe to AFP for a year for just $37 (26 biweekly issues; reg. $59—you save $22) plus we'll throw in four recent AFP issues plus a free copy of a new edition of War Is a Racket by Smedley Butler. Send your payment for $37 (mentioning the four free back issues and the free copy of War Is a Racket) to AFP, 16000 Trade Zone Avenue, Unit 406, Upper Marlboro, MD 20774. Call 1-888-699-6397 toll free Mon.-Thu. 9-5 to charge a subscription. Be sure to mention you saw the ad in The Nationalist Times. ★

COMMENTARY

The Cost of Big Pharma's Covid-19 Vaccine Will Be Paid in Lives

by Paul Craig Roberts

Big Pharma and its minions such as Anthony Fauci and Robert Redfield are determined to use Covid-19 to vaccinate us all at the expense of our lives and wallets. They are using the grant-dependent professionals, medical journals, and the prostitute media to conduct a campaign of disinformation about an inexpensive and successful treatment in order to pave the way for a likely unsuccessful, possibly dangerous, but very profitable vaccine.

The successful treatment is hydroxychloroquine-azithromycin and zinc. Hydroxychloroquine has been used for decades to treat malaria, lupus, and rheumatoid arthritis and has a decades-long record of safety. Despite its record of safe usage, Big Pharma and its hired hands have concocted a disinformation story that if you take it you will have a heart attack. As Trump endorsed hydroxychloroquine, everyone who is against Trump for other reasons has picked up Big Pharma's line as it is another avenue toward the goal of discrediting Trump.

The fact of the matter is that medical doctors involved with Covid-19 treatment report highly successful results with hydroxychloroquine. I have posted a number of reports in which doctors and scientists report the effectiveness of the human immune system. Moreover, corona viruses are not of a class that permits effective vaccines.

But we are going to get one whether or not it is effective and whether or not we want to be vaccinated. Bill Gates is working to make sure vaccination is mandatory for all. Otherwise you cannot leave your home or your FEMA containment center. Money is pouring not into known effective treatment but into vaccine research as companies and countries race for a patent. Bill Sardi reports that Chicago has "already purchased the syringes and spotted locations for vaccination stations."

Americans need to come to grips with how money has corrupted everything. So many of the people and institutions we formerly relied on to speak

NEJMoa2012410)

Like any disease, successful treatment needs to begin early, not at a late stage. The many doctors who report success with hydroxychloroquine stress that the treatment should begin early and not be used only as a last resort.

It turns out that the New England Journal of Medicine study was funded by the National Institute of Health, a Big Pharma influenced organization that is hostile to a cure as opposed to a vaccine. It is also curious that the article, "Observational Study of Hydroxychloroquine in Hospitalized Patients with Covid-19," was quickly published in a few weeks instead of the usual lengthy time required to clear the peer-reviewed process. And it is also curious that many were primed to use the study to discredit hydroxychloroquine despite the inconclusive study.

A corrupt establishment and media that can sell us 9/11, Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction, Iranian nukes, Assad's use of chemical weapons, a Russian invasion of Ukraine, Russiagate and a large number of other lies can also sell us on locking up a successful treatment in the closet while we await a vaccine.

Many decades ago George Stigler at the University of Chicago said that the trouble with regulation is that all regulatory agencies end up captured by the businesses they are tasked with regulating.

Big Pharma and its minions such as Anthony Fauci and Robert Redfield are determined to use Covid-19 to vaccinate us all at the expense of our lives and wallets. They are using the grant-dependent professionals, medical journals, and the presstitute media to conduct a campaign of disinformation about an inexpensive and successful treatment in order to pave the way for a likely unsuccessful, possibly dangerous, but very profitable vaccine.

The successful treatment is hydroxychloroquine-azithromycin and zinc. Hydroxychloroquine has been used for decades to treat malaria, lupus, and rheumatoid arthritis and has a decades-long record of safety. Despite its record of safe usage, Big Pharma and its hired hands have concocted a disinformation story that if you take it you will have a heart attack. As Trump endorsed hydroxychloroquine, everyone who is against Trump for other reasons has picked up Big Pharma's line as it is another avenue toward the goal of discrediting Trump.

The fact of the matter is that medical doctors involved with Covid-19 treatment report highly successful results with hydroxychloroquine. I have posted a number of reports in which doctors and renowned scientists report the effectiveness and general safety of hydroxychloroquine.

The reported success of vitamin C in the treatment of Covid-19 is also subjected to disinformation by Big Pharma and its minions.

The obvious disinformation campaign against successful and inexpensive treatments of Covid-19 has led many to the conclusion that the Covid-19 "pandemic was pre-planned from the beginning."

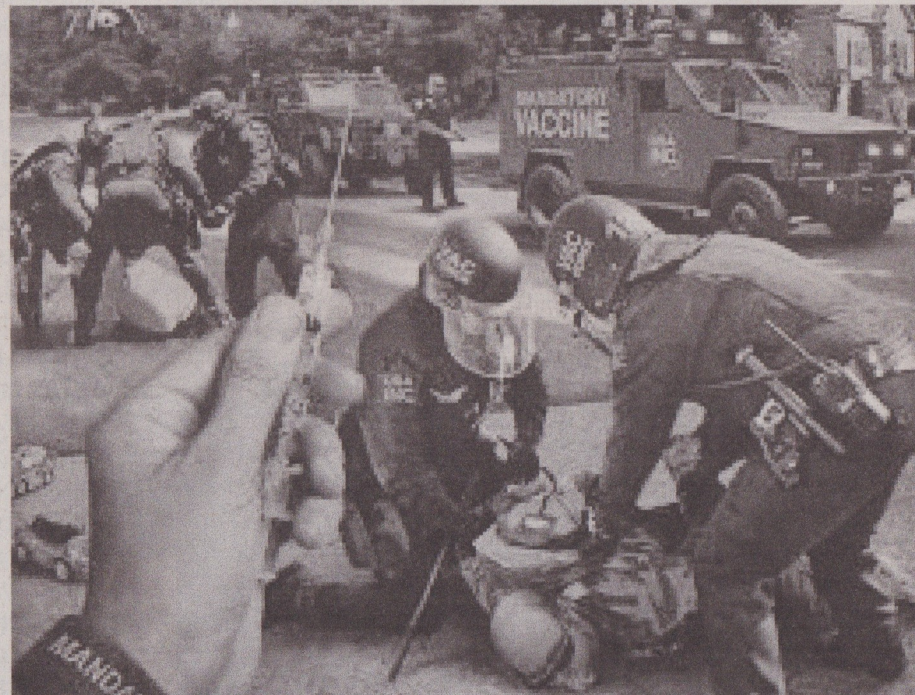

Whether pre-planned or not, Big Pharma and Bill Gates intend to cash in big time with a Covid-19 vaccine. In effect, Big Pharma and Bill Gates and their associated scum are murderers. They are killing people with their campaign against effective and affordable treatment.

This might strike some gullible people who trust the system as an excessive accusation, but Big Pharma has long made it clear that profit comes be-over, corona viruses are not of a class that permits effective vaccines.

But we are going to get one whether or not it is effective and whether or not we want to be vaccinated. Bill Gates is working to make sure vaccination is mandatory for all. Otherwise you cannot leave your home or your FEMA containment center. Money is pouring not into known effective treatment but into vaccine research as companies and countries race for a patent. Bill Sardi reports that Chicago has "already purchased the syringes and spotted locations for vaccination stations."

Americans need to come to grips with how money has corrupted everything. So many of the people and institutions we formerly relied on to speak truthfully are now dependent on grants from corporations, government agencies, and self-interested donors with agendas that truth is the casualty.

Yes, scientists will now lie for money. Universities will produce "studies" that advance the donor's agenda. Physicists dependent on Washington's grants will hold their tongues when presented with obviously false claims such as massively constructed steel buildings built to withstand airliner collision collapsing into dust because of isolated low temperature fires and strikes by flimsy aluminum airplanes.

There are a number of ways that studies can be designed to produce a conclusion that a specific treat-

Like any disease, successful treatment needs to begin early, not at a late stage. The many doctors who report success with hydroxychloroquine stress that the treatment should begin early and not be used only as a last resort.

It turns out that the New England Journal of Medicine study was funded by the National Institute of Health, a Big Pharma influenced organization that is hostile to a cure as opposed to a vaccine. It is also curious that the article, "Observational Study of Hydroxychloroquine in Hospitalized Patients with Covid-19," was quickly published in a few weeks instead of the usual lengthy time required to clear the peer-reviewed process. And it is also curious that many were primed to use the study to discredit hydroxychloroquine despite the inconclusive study.

A corrupt establishment and media that can sell us 9/11, Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction, Iranian nukes, Assad's use of chemical weapons, a Russian invasion of Ukraine, Russiagate and a large number of other lies can also sell us on locking up a successful treatment in the closet while we await a vaccine.

Many decades ago George Stigler at the University of Chicago said that the trouble with regulation is that all regulatory agencies end up captured by the businesses they are tasked with regulating.

Thus we see that the EPA is in the hands of polluters, bank regulation is in the hands of bankers, telecommunication regulations — 5G for example — is in the hands of tech companies who stand to profit, and approval of new medicines is in the hands of Big Pharma as is the curriculum in medical schools. Doctors are trained to connect symptoms with tests and when confirmed by a test, the doctor looks up online the specified Big Pharma treatment.

My generation grew up without vaccines and without all of the associated illnesses associated with vaccines among the over-vaccinated youth of today. Today vaccinations begin at birth and increase into high numbers. Does the natural immune system ever develop?

That is an irrelevant question. The driving force behind vaccination is profit, not health. If we want a you take it you will have a heart attack. As Trump endorsed hydroxychloroquine, everyone who is against Trump for other reasons has picked up Big Pharma's line as it is another avenue toward the goal of discrediting Trump.

The fact of the matter is that medical doctors involved with Covid-19 treatment report highly successful results with hydroxychloroquine. I have posted a number of reports in which doctors and renowned scientists report the effectiveness and general safety of hydroxychloroquine.

The reported success of vitamin C in the treatment of Covid-19 is also subjected to disinformation by Big Pharma and its minions.

The obvious disinformation campaign against successful and inexpensive treatments of Covid-19 has led many to the conclusion that the Covid-19 "pandemic was pre-planned from the beginning."

Whether pre-planned or not, Big Pharma and Bill Gates intend to cash in big time with a Covid-19 vaccine. In effect, Big Pharma and Bill Gates and their associated scum are murderers. They are killing people with their campaign against effective and affordable treatment.

This might strike some gullible people who trust the system as an excessive accusation, but Big Pharma has long made it clear that profit comes before life. Dr. Peter C. Gotzsche, professor of clinical research, director of the Nordic Cochrane Center, and chief physician of Rigshospitalet and the University of Copenhagen, has documented that Big Pharma's "medicines" are the third largest killer after heart disease and cancer.

We have been sold on vaccines in the face of evidence of the harm they do to some people and the fact that they are used despite an imperfect un-truthfully are now dependent on grants from corporations, government agencies, and self-interested donors with agendas that truth is the casualty.

Yes, scientists will now lie for money. Universities will produce "studies" that advance the donor's agenda. Physicists dependent on Washington's grants will hold their tongues when presented with obviously false claims such as massively constructed steel buildings built to withstand airliner collision collapsing into dust because of isolated low temperature fires and strikes by flimsy aluminum airplanes.

There are a number of ways that studies can be designed to produce a conclusion that a specific treatment is or is not effective. Consider hydroxychloroquine. A study can get poor results from this treatment by using it as a late stage treatment when Covid-19 has advanced beyond treatment. This appears to be the case with The New England Journal of Medicine report that "hydroxychloroquine use was not associated with a significantly higher or lower risk of intubation or death." (<https://www.nejm.org/doi/full/10.1056/> that can sell us 9/11, Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction, Iranian nukes, Assad's use of chemical weapons, a Russian invasion of Ukraine, Russiagate and a large number of other lies can also sell us on locking up a successful treatment in the closet while we await a vaccine.

Many decades ago George Stigler at the University of Chicago said that the trouble with regulation is that all regulatory agencies end up captured by the businesses they are tasked with regulating.

Thus we see that the EPA is in the hands of polluters, bank regulation is in the hands of bankers, telecommunication regulations — 5G for example — is in the hands of tech companies who stand to profit, and approval of new medicines

is in the hands of Big Pharma as is the curriculum in medical schools. Doctors are trained to connect symptoms with tests and when confirmed by a test, the doctor looks up online the specified Big Pharma treatment.

My generation grew up without vaccines and without all of the associated illnesses associated with vaccines among the over-vaccinated youth of today. Today vaccinations begin at birth and increase into high numbers. Does the natural immune system ever develop?

That is an irrelevant question. The driving force behind vaccination is profit, not health. If we want a health system instead of a death system, Big Pharma must be nationalized and run by scientists on salaries without patent rights and "performance bonuses."

Paul Craig Roberts was the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury during the Reagan administration and is a former editor of The Wall Street Journal.

The World is Ruined and All the Left's Dreams Have Come True

by Nick Searcy

The other day when it was really hot, our neighbors were socially distancing in our swimming pool, and I needed to make a perilous virus-dodging run to the bombed-out battlefield we in what used to be America used to call “the grocery store.”

As a proper wrestling fan, I of course possess a lucha libre wrestling mask, and so as a joke, I put it on, and announced to the swimmers that I was going in search of dinner and toilet paper.

Laughter ensued. One of them pointed out that my nose and mouth was not sufficiently covered by the Mask of Mil Mascaras, so I even put on a #FaceDiaper (as my golf buddy A.B. calls them). They squealed with delight, screaming “I DARE YOU.” (Yes, “squealed.” You’d have to know my neighbors.)

So, having been dared, I had to do it. I thought, “This will be hilarious. I really should film this. People are going to laugh and laugh...”

This is what I looked like.

I did a whole grocery run, about 20 minutes — and nobody laughed. Not on the way into the store, not while I was shopping, nothing. I got no attention whatsoever.. Nobody thought it was funny, or scary, or weird, or anything. Nobody noticed. Even the cashier smiled and asked me if I was having a nice day.

Two months ago, she would have called the police.

We have all lost our damn minds. The Left has home. And we can’t ever go back to normal until every single human being in America is tested — but even then, we can’t be sure, so you have to stay home.

Are you getting this? There is no scenario under which you can be absolutely sure, so you have to stay home — and if you try to open your business because the government subsistence check these newly energized Communists are breathlessly sending you isn’t enough for your selfish ass, you need to be put in jail, where we have plenty of room, since we let all the actual criminals out because they might get the virus that is making you stay at home. So the homeless, the rapists, and the violent criminals need to be let out on the streets to keep them safe — But nee Chauncey the Fingerer, forced patients diagnosed with Winnie the Flu back into rest homes in New York, causing hundreds if not thousands of deaths among the elderly that might have been postponed (not prevented, since we are all going to die someday).

The same thing happened in Pennsylvania, where the devastatingly attractive Pennsylvania Health Secretary (transsexual Rachel Levine) forced Covid-positive patients into nursing homes while moving her own mother out of one to protect her, therefore knowingly endangering and killing countless grandmas while saving her own.

And now in California, the only two relevant political parties (again, I am talking about the Democrats and the CCP) have decreed that the lockdown must last another three months. Never mind the statistics that say the virus has a survival rate of around 99%. You have to understand that this isn’t about saving Grandma, as Cuomo and the glamorous Pennsylvania Health Secretary demonstrate. This isn’t about public health, or safety, or medicine. Like everything else the CCP and the Democrats do or say, this is about — you guessed it — Trump.

They are trying to destroy the economy, and wipe out the middle class, because they think it will hurt Trump. The Russian collusion lie did not work. The Ukrainian lie did not work (while #ObamaGate is revealing that the Democrats were projecting yet again. The Left always accuses their opponents of what they are doing themselves.

But this Covid nonsense is working, and probably precisely because it doesn’t make sense. Cuomo in New York even admitted that 60% of the

...ing pool, and I needed to make a perilous virus-dodging run to the bombed-out battlefield we in what used to be America used to call "the grocery store."

As a proper wrestling fan, I of course possess a luche libre wrestling mask, and so as a joke, I put it on, and announced to the swimmers that I was going in search of dinner and toilet paper.

Laughter ensued. One of them pointed out that my nose and mouth was not sufficiently covered by the Mask of Mil Mascaras, so I even put on a #FaceDiaper (as my golf buddy A.B. calls them). They squealed with delight, screaming "I DARE YOU." (Yes, "squealed." You'd have to know my neighbors.)

So, having been dared, I had to do it. I thought, "This will be hilarious. I really should film this. People are going to laugh and laugh..."

This is what I looked like.

I did a whole grocery run, about 20 minutes — and nobody laughed. Not on the way into the store, not while I was shopping, nothing. I got no attention whatsoever. Nobody thought it was funny, or scary, or weird, or anything. Nobody noticed. Even the cashier smiled and asked me if I was having a nice day.

Two months ago, she would have called the police.

We have all lost our damn minds. The Left has finally managed to literally ruin the entire world. They've destroyed everything — the NBA, the NCAA, college itself, high school, bars, restaurants, golf courses, retail sales, small businesses, bowling alleys, concerts, driving ranges, kids' soccer, pickup games at the Y, or in fact anything that you used to do for fun — and they never want it to end. The two parties that make up the Left in America, the Democrat Party and the Chinese Communist Party, have, at long last, openly joined forces to punish Americans for the crime of not wanting totalitarian one-party rule like we have in oppressive places like China, North Korea, and California.

They will never let the old America come back if they can help it. They want it dead and gone, and always have. And in the Chinese Virus, or Covid-19 or the Moo Shu Achoo or Lung Pao Sicken or whatever "racist" name you want to give it, they have stumbled upon the perfect weapon — because it can never be solved.

Are you getting this? There is no scenario under which you can be absolutely sure, so you have to stay home — and if you try to open your business because the government subsistence check these newly energized Communists are breathlessly sending you isn't enough for your selfish ass, you need to be put in jail, where we have plenty of room, since we let all the actual criminals out because they might get the virus that is making you stay at home. So the homeless, the rapists, and the violent criminals need to be let out on the streets to keep them safe — But

Nick Searcy's mask

You. Have. To. Stay. Home.

I'm convinced that the fact that none of the new rules make a damn bit of sense is part of their strategy. You can walk around inside a grocery store with a wrestling mask on, but you can't play golf in the fresh air? You can go in a liquor store, but not a clothing store? You can go to Walmart and buy a video game or a television, but you can't get your hair done?

The damned stupidity of the rules actually force you not to think for yourself but simply obey, or be day).

The same thing happened in Pennsylvania, where the devastatingly attractive Pennsylvania Health Secretary (transsexual Rachel Levine) forced Covid-positive patients into nursing homes while moving her own mother out of one to protect her, therefore knowingly endangering and killing countless grandmas while saving her own.

And now in California, the only two relevant political parties (again, I am talking about the Democrats and the CCP) have decreed that the lockdown must last another three months. Never mind the statistics that say the virus has a survival rate of around 99%. You have to understand that this isn't about saving Grandma, as Cuomo and the glamorous Pennsylvania Health Secretary demonstrate. This isn't about public health, or safety, or medicine. Like everything else the CCP and the Democrats do or say, this is about — you guessed it — Trump.

They are trying to destroy the economy, and wipe out the middle class, because they think it will hurt Trump. The Russian collusion lie did not work. The Ukrainian lie did not work (while #ObamaGate is revealing that the Democrats were projecting yet again. The Left always accuses their opponents of what they are doing themselves.

But this Covid nonsense is working, and probably precisely because it doesn't make sense. Cuomo in New York even admitted that 60% of the newly diagnosed patients were people who were "sheltering at home." Los Angeles has decreed that you must wear a mask whenever you are outside, forcing everyone to deplete their own immune systems rather than building natural immunities by getting some "fresh air," as our Grandmas used to recommend before America's Cuomos started deliberately wiping them out.

The Left will never voluntarily give this power they have back. Our only chance is through civil disobedience. We will see, over the next few weeks, if there are enough of us left to bring America back to full normal. But don't expect any help from the blue states that are dominated by the DNC and the CCP. They have finally utterly smashed the evil capitalist pigs and shut them down completely. Their long-awaited fevered totalitarian dreams are, at the moment, coming to full fruition.

It is time for us to throw away the useless #facediapers they are deliberately subjugating and

This will be hilarious. Really shocked animals. People are going to laugh and laugh..."

This is what I looked like.

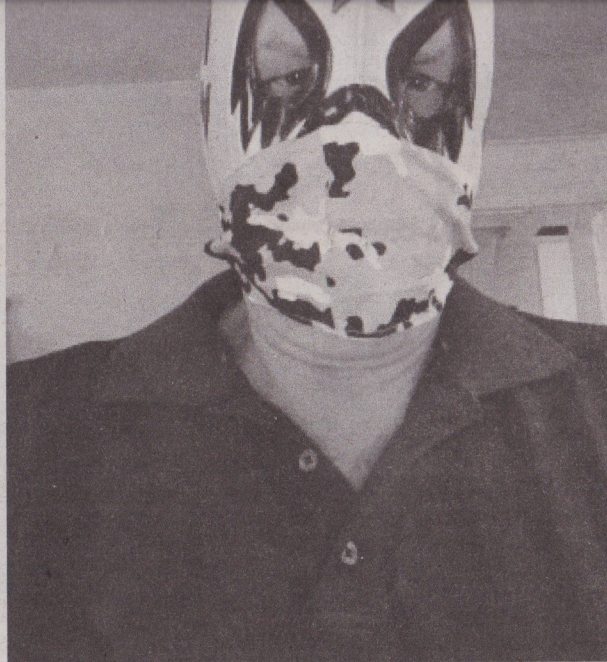

I did a whole grocery run, about 20 minutes — and nobody laughed. Not on the way into the store, not while I was shopping, nothing. I got no attention whatsoever.. Nobody thought it was funny, or scary, or weird, or anything. Nobody noticed. Even the cashier smiled and asked me if I was having a nice day.

Two months ago, she would have called the police.

We have all lost our damn minds. The Left has finally managed to literally ruin the entire world. They've destroyed everything — the NBA, the NCAA, college itself, high school, bars, restaurants, golf courses, retail sales, small businesses, bowling alleys, concerts, driving ranges, kids' soccer, pickup games at the Y, or in fact anything that you used to do for fun — and they never want it to end. The two parties that make up the Left in America, the Democrat Party and the Chinese Communist Party, have, at long last, openly joined forces to punish Americans for the crime of not wanting totalitarian one-party rule like we have in oppressive places like China, North Korea, and California.

They will never let the old America come back if they can help it. They want it dead and gone, and always have. And in the Chinese Virus, or Covid-19 or the Moo Shu Achoo or Lung Pao Sicken or whatever "racist" name you want to give it, they have stumbled upon the perfect weapon — because it can never be solved.

You may have it and not have any symptoms — but you may spread this thing with no symptoms to someone else who also may not have symptoms, so you have to stay home. But if someone else gets it and has symptoms, then you are a murderer, so you have to stay home. In order for you to be sure you don't have it, you have to be tested — but then, even if you test negative for the virus, you might get it 30 seconds after the test, so you have to stay

Nick Searcy's mask

You. Have. To. Stay. Home.

I'm convinced that the fact that none of the new rules make a damn bit of sense is part of their strategy. You can walk around inside a grocery store with a wrestling mask on, but you can't play golf in the fresh air? You can go in a liquor store, but not a clothing store? You can go to Walmart and buy a video game or a television, but you can't get your hair done?

The damned stupidity of the rules actually force you not to think for yourself but simply obey, or be punished! "Never mind that the rules don't make sense, you selfish capitalist bastard! Do you want to kill Grandma? Just wait till we let this rapist out of jail, and you can have his cell!"

And where the CCP and the Democrat Party have taken absolute power, they are literally killing Grandma. Andrew Cuomo, the Left's favorite fantasy replacement candidate for their ridiculous nomi-

about public health, or safety, or medicine. Like everything else the CCP and the Democrats do or say, this is about — you guessed it — Trump.

They are trying to destroy the economy, and wipe out the middle class, because they think it will hurt Trump. The Russian collusion lie did not work. The Ukrainian lie did not work (while #ObamaGate is revealing that the Democrats were projecting yet again. The Left always accuses their opponents of what they are doing themselves.

But this Covid nonsense is working, and probably precisely because it doesn't make sense. Cuomo in New York even admitted that 60% of the newly diagnosed patients were people who were "sheltering at home." Los Angeles has decreed that you must wear a mask whenever you are outside, forcing everyone to deplete their own immune systems rather than building natural immunities by getting some "fresh air," as our Grandmas used to recommend before America's Cuomos started deliberately wiping them out.

The Left will never voluntarily give this power they have back. Our only chance is through civil disobedience. We will see, over the next few weeks, if there are enough of us left to bring America back to full normal. But don't expect any help from the blue states that are dominated by the DNC and the CCP. They have finally utterly smashed the evil capitalist pigs and shut them down completely. Their long-awaited fevered totalitarian dreams are, at the moment, coming to full fruition.

It is time for us to throw away the useless #facediapers they are deliberately subjugating and humiliating us with, and don our lucha libre masks instead. We are going to have to get in the ring with these leftist heels sooner or later and wrestle for the fate of the country.

Let's get ready to rumble.

From the website Red State.com. Nick Searcy is an actor, director and writer.

Trump Derangement vs. Trump Enablement

by Donald Jeffries

As the world continues its draconian slide through the plandemic psyop, our country has divided itself firmly into two misguided camps. As has been the case since the election of Donald Trump, that division is centered around his impossibly cartoonish personality.

Those who suffer from the very real Trump Derangement Syndrome disorder have taken the side of the virus, clinging to it like desperate leeches. They are emotionally invested in the virus, and in the medical and scientific “experts” who promote its dangers, and advocate more authoritarian means to combat it.

Meanwhile, the Trump faithful who remain loyal to him in spite of all the evidence that he is in fact just another neo-con Republican, have contracted their own disorder, Trump Enablement Syndrome. This group, while largely demanding that the country open up again, bends with every Trumpian flip-flop. They cheer when Trump quips that we can “beat” the virus without a vaccine, and turn a deaf ear when he announces the military will be administering it.

Only in the conspiracy world I inhabit can one find independent alternative views. Every politician in both “competing” parties is waiting breathlessly for a vaccine to defeat this horrific plague. They conveniently forget that the flu has not been eradicated by a vaccine. They are also shockingly ignorant of the well-documented negative effects from vaccines. Instead, they are listen-own job description.

Most of these odious figures, the vast majority of them public servants, with many elected by the populace, remained safely in the background prior to the introduction of the Covid-19 show. Now that they have to make decisions, and weigh in regularly with the press and the public, their mind-boggling incompetence and long learned sense of entitlement is being exposed. Not that most of the public seems to care, mind you. Lightfoot and other cretinous “representatives” will unquestionably be returned to office in the next election.

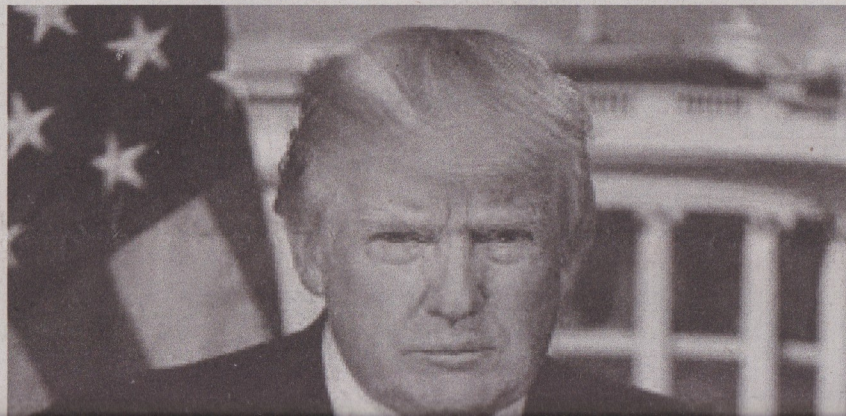

Think about the questions no one is asking. The most obvious one being; why are all these businesses being forced to close, with their owners at risk of legal punishment, while corporate giants like Walmart and Home Depot have been allowed to remain open the entire time? What is the point of installing a plexiglas shield between customers and cashiers, if the cashier is touching all of the items being purchased? Why put a plastic cover on the credit card

While many eminently qualified doctors have been banned from YouTube and social media, seventeen-year-old decidedly unqualified Greta Thunberg has been named to a ludicrous panel of “experts” on the Coronavirus by CNN. Well, I suppose she’s no less an expert on viruses than she is on “climate change,” which she’s been asked to pontificate on by our illustrious state-controlled media and obsequious politicians.

Standing at the center of all this is our Tweeter-in-Chief; Tweetalini if you will. Donald Trump is definitely not in charge. He doesn’t appear to have a clue what’s going on, or to be fully on board with the lockdown.

He has bickered publicly with Dr. Anthony “Frankenstein” Fauci, the Pavlovian seventy-nine-year-old orchestrating the government’s actions on the issue. This is nothing new for Trump, of course. Everyone in his administration appears opposed to his campaign rhetoric. Trump will probably issue some nasty tweets about Fauci, but then grudgingly go along with everything he proposes. This is Trump 101.

The Trump Derangement people are literally wishing for him to die on social media. They would vote for Hitler over Trump. They have come to retroactively love the likes of George W. Bush, because of his public opposition to Trump. Anyone who hates Trump is good in their eyes. If we can just get rid of the buffoonish Orange Man, we can go back to the world of justice, peace, and fairness that we all remember so well prior to 2016.

try has divided itself firmly into two misguided camps. As has been the case since the election of Donald Trump, that division is centered around his impossibly cartoonish personality.

Those who suffer from the very real Trump Derangement Syndrome disorder have taken the side of the virus, clinging to it like desperate leeches. They are emotionally invested in the virus, and in the medical and scientific “experts” who promote its dangers, and advocate more authoritarian means to combat it.

Meanwhile, the Trump faithful who remain loyal to him in spite of all the evidence that he is in fact just another neo-con Republican, have contracted their own disorder, Trump Enablement Syndrome. This group, while largely demanding that the country open up again, bends with every Trumpian flip-flop. They cheer when Trump quips that we can “beat” the virus without a vaccine, and turn a deaf ear when he announces the military will be administering it.

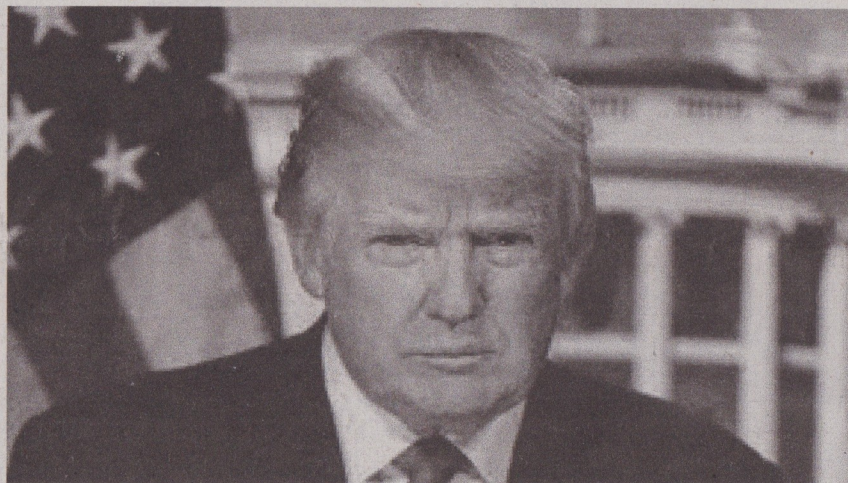

Only in the conspiracy world I inhabit can one find independent alternative views. Every politician in both “competing” parties is waiting breathlessly for a vaccine to defeat this horrific plague. They conveniently forget that the flu has not been eradicated by a vaccine. They are also shockingly ignorant of the well-documented negative effects from vaccines. Instead, they are listening to the Godfather of this plandemic, noted non-doctor and non-scientist, eugenicist Bill Gates.

Gates and his equally unqualified wife Melinda have really been increasing the pro-vaccine rhetoric lately. They advocate continuing this disastrous lockdown until everyone has been safely vaccinated. Along with the Beetlejuice-looking Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot, whose arrogant pronouncements seem like self-satire, the transsexual Secretary of Health in Pennsylvania, Los Angeles’s “health” director, who looks like she belongs on the set of The Walking Dead, and the morbidly obese health ministers of Belgium, Alberta, and Quebec, it’s difficult to take their advice seriously. Or to keep a straight face.

It should be obvious to all, now that they are front and center in running this world-wide psyop, just how horrific our leaders are. At every level. Look to the introduction of the COVID-19 show. Now that they have to make decisions, and weigh in regularly with the press and the public, their mind-boggling incompetence and long learned sense of entitlement is being exposed. Not that most of the public seems to care, mind you. Lightfoot and other cretinous “representatives” will unquestionably be returned to office in the next election.

Think about the questions no one is asking. The most obvious one being; why are all these businesses being forced to close, with their owners at risk of legal punishment, while corporate giants like Walmart and Home Depot have been allowed to remain open the entire time? What is the point of installing a plexiglas shield between customers and cashiers, if the cashier is touching all of the items being purchased? Why put a plastic cover on the credit card

The enigmatic one

keypad, when everyone is touching the same cover?

Recently, stories have begun appearing throughout the mainstream media, attempting to convey the impression that many of the same idiotic, pointless rules we’re being forced to obey now were in place during the 1918 flu pandemic. Photos have started appearing of people back then with the same ridiculous masks on.

There is even a picture of a Major League Baseball player at bat, wearing a mask. Sorry, as a long time student of baseball during that era, I cannot accept that. 1918 was the last Red Sox World Series victory for many decades, just prior to the “curse” of the Bambino, when Babe Ruth was sold to the Yankees. I’ve read every book about that World Series, and would definitely have seen and remem-experts on the Coronavirus by CNN. Well, I suppose she’s no less an expert on viruses than she is on “climate change,” which she’s been asked to pontificate on by our illustrious state-controlled media and obsequious politicians.

Standing at the center of all this is our Tweeter-in-Chief; Tweetalini if you will. Donald Trump is definitely not in charge. He doesn’t appear to have a clue what’s going on, or to be fully on board with the lockdown.

He has bickered publicly with Dr. Anthony “Frankenstein” Fauci, the Pavlovian seventy-nine-year-old orchestrating the government’s actions on the issue. This is nothing new for Trump, of course. Everyone in his administration appears opposed to his campaign rhetoric. Trump will probably issue some nasty tweets about Fauci, but then grudgingly go along with everything he proposes. This is Trump 101.

The Trump Derangement people are literally wishing for him to die on social media. They would vote for Hitler over Trump. They have come to retroactively love the likes of George W. Bush, because of his public opposition to Trump. Anyone who hates Trump is good in their eyes. If we can just get rid of the buffoonish Orange Man, we can go back to the world of justice, peace, and fairness that we all remember so well prior to 2016.

The Trump Enablement people feast on Trump’s tweets, and demand nothing else. Sound bites and juvenile name-calling are enough to satisfy them. Forget ending

DACA, or birthright citizenship, or the destructive foreign visa worker programs, or stopping the senseless wars, or rebuilding the infrastructure, or that autism-vaccines commission headed by Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.

They also continue to claim Trump has stopped child sex trafficking (even as Jeffrey Epstein was allowed to “suicide” himself under his watch). They breathlessly await the ever-changing date when those 150,000 sealed indictments will bring down the Deep State. They believe that William Barr, a swamp creature of decades-long good standing, will fulfill Trump’s “drain the swamp” promise.

Virtually all Americans view this virus through the prism of Trump’s personality. They are committed to love him or hate him. If only they’d recall the flop. They cheer when Trump quips that we can “beat” the virus without a vaccine, and turn a deaf ear when he announces the military will be administering it.

Only in the conspiracy world I inhabit can one find independent alternative views. Every politician in both “competing” parties is waiting breathlessly for a vaccine to defeat this horrific plague. They conveniently forget that the flu has not been eradicated by a vaccine. They are also shockingly ignorant of the well-documented negative effects from vaccines. Instead, they are listening to the Godfather of this plandemic, noted non-doctor and non-scientist, eugenicist Bill Gates.

Gates and his equally unqualified wife Melinda have really been increasing the pro-vaccine rhetoric lately. They advocate continuing this disastrous lockdown until everyone has been safely vaccinated. Along with the Beetlejuice-looking Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot, whose arrogant pronouncements seem like self-satire, the transsexual Secretary of Health in Pennsylvania, Los Angeles’s “health” director, who looks like she belongs on the set of The Walking Dead, and the morbidly obese health ministers of Belgium, Alberta, and Quebec, it’s difficult to take their advice seriously. Or to keep a straight face.

It should be obvious to all, now that they are front and center in running this world-wide psyop, just how horrific our leaders are. At every level. Look at Lightfoot — a laughably unimpressive mayor of a big city, who memorably got her own hair cut while forbidding her underlings to do so.

Drunk with power, she told Chicagoans that “we will shut you down,” while leading CDC official Dr. Carol Baker, who naturally is White herself, bluntly declared, “We’ll just get rid of all Whites in the United States.” The good doctor didn’t explain what White people have to do with the present crisis, or with her

The enigmatic one

keypad, when everyone is touching the same cover?

Recently, stories have begun appearing throughout the mainstream media, attempting to convey the impression that many of the same idiotic, pointless rules we’re being forced to obey now were in place during the 1918 flu pandemic. Photos have started appearing of people back then with the same ridiculous masks on.

There is even a picture of a Major League Baseball player at bat, wearing a mask. Sorry, as a long time student of baseball during that era, I cannot accept that. 1918 was the last Red Sox World Series victory for many decades, just prior to the “curse” of the Bambino, when Babe Ruth was sold to the Yankees. I’ve read every book about that World Series, and would definitely have seen and remembered such a photo.

Altering or photoshopping old pictures is really nothing different than what Winston Smith did for a living in Orwell’s “1984.” Like Smith, our court historians and professional “journalists” work together to bring history into accord with our present-day sensibilities. We are almost to the point of Orwell’s “unpersons” being thrown down the memory hole he invented.

go along with everything he proposes. This is Trump 101.

The Trump Derangement people are literally wishing for him to die on social media. They would vote for Hitler over Trump. They have come to retroactively love the likes of George W. Bush, because of his public opposition to Trump. Anyone who hates Trump is good in their eyes. If we can just get rid of the buffoonish Orange Man, we can go back to the world of justice, peace, and fairness that we all remember so well prior to 2016.

The Trump Enablement people feast on Trump’s tweets, and demand nothing else. Sound bites and juvenile name-calling are enough to satisfy them. Forget ending DACA, or birthright citizenship, or the destructive foreign visa worker programs, or stopping the senseless wars, or rebuilding the infrastructure, or that autism-vaccines commission headed by Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.

They also continue to claim Trump has stopped child sex trafficking (even as Jeffrey Epstein was allowed to “suicide” himself under his watch). They breathlessly await the ever-changing date when those 150,000 sealed indictments will bring down the Deep State. They believe that William Barr, a swamp creature of decades-long good standing, will fulfill Trump’s “drain the swamp” promise.

Virtually all Americans view this virus through the prism of Trump’s personality. They are committed to love him or hate him. If only they’d recall the advice of the greatest champion the poor and working class ever had, Huey Long, who said, “They’ve got a set of Republican waiters on one side and a set of Democrat waiters on the other side, but no matter which set of waiters brings you the dish, the legislative grub is all prepared in the same Wall Street kitchen.”

America's Lesbian Sweetheart

by Jim Goad

Ellen DeGeneres was born with that face, and that's the plain truth. If you think there's any more nuanced or complicated reason beyond that for why she "became" a lesbian, I strongly beg to differ.

She was "born that way" only in the sense that she was born with a bird's face rather than a female human's, which predetermined her to be physically unappealing to human males throughout her mating years, leaving disgruntled and maladjusted women as her only sexual option.

She is therefore a lesbian not by choice, but by necessity. According to a sob story she repeatedly tells, her stepfather found her attractive enough to molest in her mid-teens, but beyond that, I find little evidence or reason to think she ever had much of a problem rebuffing male advances, because I doubt there were many such advances, if any.

Sure, she's able to find beautiful women who are willing to sleep with her, but would that be the case if she were a part-time French-fry chef at Wendy's? There are plenty of women who are willing to do almost anything if you dangle a half-billion smackers in front of them.

As unfunny as she is homely, Ellen also enjoys a level of fame that is so wildly out of proportion to any discernible talent, it is highly suspicious. She has won ing — is based on public displays of kindness and public displays of charity.

Despite her lesbianism — scratch that, primarily because of it so long as it's tethered to an endlessly loud shtick of kindness and generosity and "relatability" — Americans have eagerly embraced Ellen during her lifelong string of bad haircuts. Just like Oprah, she's provided listless and unemployed American females with all sorts of reasons to feel great about who they are and to feel seething contempt for all things straight and white and male.

Predictably, people are now acting shocked to learn that by many accounts, Ellen is neither kind nor generous. Forgive me for crowing, but I could have told you this. No one who makes that much of a point of being kind is actually kind, or they wouldn't feel the nagging urge to keep making such a point about it. Same thing goes for anyone who makes such a grand public display of being charitable.

In March on Twitter, an alleged comedian and confirmed "podcast host" named Kevin T. Porter mentioned Ellen's "kindness" shtick and how it clashed with ubiquitous Hollywood rumors that she's "notoriously one of the meanest people alive." An "Ellen is a [expletive deleted] megathread" emerged on [the popular website] Reddit in response to Porter's tweet that included this nugget:

"She's well known in the TV production world as the Others told of her publicly humiliating someone who gave her a bad haircut — even criticizing the poor girl's looks, which takes tremendous moxie when you look like Ellen — and trying to get a waitress fired for the crime of having chipped nail polish.

There are also multiple accounts of her either publicly screaming at her wife Portia or embarrassing her by acting tyrannically toward random pissants.

Naturally, none of this is good PR for the lesbian community.

And now comes news that the Queen of Kindness has used scab labor to avoid paying her regular crew to stream her show during the Covid-19 crisis. Of her core stage crew of 30+ employees — some of whom have been with her during the show's 17-year run — only four have been retained to help her film the show at home. The rest have been hired from elsewhere. The regulars have also been informed that they're receiving a 60% pay cut while Ellen whines thusly from her $27 million mansion: "Being in quarantine is like being in jail. It's mostly because I've been wearing the same clothes for ten days and everyone here is gay."

Hardy-har-har!

Maybe she is still plagued with guilt that her first love died in a car crash immediately after arguing with Ellen.

Maybe she's still furious that her parents initially rejected her when she came out of the closet.

Maybe she's still bitter that her stepdad molested her. Or maybe she's even more bitter that more men didn't try. Like they say, if there's one thing women hate more than unwanted attention, it's not getting the attention they want.

Anyone who has spent any time with lesbians, whether in laboratory settings or in their natural element as they cavort unbathed in the wild, knows they that for why she “became” a lesbian, I strongly beg to differ.

She was “born that way” only in the sense that she was born with a bird’s face rather than a female human’s, which predetermined her to be physically unappealing to human males throughout her mating years, leaving disgruntled and maladjusted women as her only sexual option.

She is therefore a lesbian not by choice, but by necessity. According to a sob story she repeatedly tells, her stepfather found her attractive enough to molest in her mid-teens, but beyond that, I find little evidence or reason to think she ever had much of a problem rebuffing male advances, because I doubt there were many such advances, if any.

Sure, she’s able to find beautiful women who are willing to sleep with her, but would that be the case if she were a part-time French-fry chef at Wendy’s? There are plenty of women who are willing to do almost anything if you dangle a half-billion smackers in front of them.

As unfunny as she is homely, Ellen also enjoys a level of fame that is so wildly out of proportion to any discernible talent, it is highly suspicious. She has won 20 People’s Choice awards — more than anyone else. In 2019 she raked in over $80 million, making her the world’s highest-paid comedian. She hangs out with presidents and ex-presidents and, despite a gaping lack of any notable film appearances, she has hosted the Oscars twice. She even has more Twitter followers than Donald Trump does.

No one has ever been rewarded so richly for their lesbianism as Ellen. Since this canary-faced Sapphite’s only skill lies in “being a lesbian,” my suspicion is that she became the world’s pre-eminent Lesbo Mogul because she was hand-picked to play a role, just like the similarly untalented billionaire Oprah Winfrey. Whereas Winfrey’s role was to soften up the fat White female man-haters who watch daytime TV to the point where they eagerly embrace relatability — Americans have eagerly embraced Ellen during her lifelong string of bad haircuts. Just like Oprah, she’s provided listless and unemployed American females with all sorts of reasons to feel great about who they are and to feel seething contempt for all things straight and white and male.

Predictably, people are now acting shocked to learn that by many accounts, Ellen is neither kind nor generous. Forgive me for crowing, but I could have told you this. No one who makes that much of a point of being kind is actually kind, or they wouldn’t feel the nagging urge to keep making such a point about it. Same thing goes for anyone who makes such a grand public display of being charitable.

Ellen

In March on Twitter, an alleged comedian and confirmed “podcast host” named Kevin T. Porter mentioned Ellen’s “kindness” shtick and how it clashed with ubiquitous Hollywood rumors that she’s “notoriously one of the meanest people alive.” An “Ellen is a [expletive deleted] megathread” emerged on [the popular website] Reddit in response to Porter’s tweet that included this nugget:

“She’s well known in the TV production world as the most horrible human alive. Literally anyone who works in talk shows either has had a direct run-in with her or knows people that have. It’s not even a secret. She’s really really awful...”

There were hundreds of responses to Porter’s request to share stories about Ellen’s alleged [nastiness] — the majority being second- and third-hand accounts — but when there’s that much smoke, one tends to suspect that there’s at least a little bit of fire behind it. For example, I’ve never seen anyone call Betty White a [expletive deleted].

One of the major themes that kept emerging was the allegation that she forbids everyone on her staff from even making eye contact with her, under threat of termination or at least a thorough public tongue-lashing. She also seems to get a sadistic kick out of scaring her own employees.

There are also multiple accounts of her either publicly screaming at her wife Portia or embarrassing her by acting tyrannically toward random pissants.

Naturally, none of this is good PR for the lesbian community.

And now comes news that the Queen of Kindness has used scab labor to avoid paying her regular crew to stream her show during the Covid-19 crisis. Of her core stage crew of 30+ employees — some of whom have been with her during the show’s 17-year run — only four have been retained to help her film the show at home. The rest have been hired from elsewhere. The regulars have also been informed that they’re receiving a 60% pay cut while Ellen whines thusly from her $27 million mansion: “Being in quarantine is like being in jail. It’s mostly because I’ve been wearing the same clothes for ten days and everyone here is gay.”

Hardy-har-har!

Maybe she is still plagued with guilt that her first love died in a car crash immediately after arguing with Ellen.

Maybe she’s still furious that her parents initially rejected her when she came out of the closet.

Maybe she’s still bitter that her stepdad molested her. Or maybe she’s even more bitter that more men didn’t try. Like they say, if there’s one thing women hate more than unwanted attention, it’s not getting the attention they want.

Anyone who has spent any time with lesbians, whether in laboratory settings or in their natural element as they cavort unbathed in the wild, knows they are fundamentally nasty creatures. Of course Ellen is mean. She’s a lesbian. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned by every man on Earth except her pervert stepdad.

“When you look at this objectively, this is only a severe winter flu or virus of a type that mankind has been coping with, not only for decades and centuries but probably millennia. It has been turned into an existential crisis and 24/7 media hysteria that has opened the door to an expansion of government intrusion and power.

“I can’t think of any precedent for it, including even what we did in wartime during World War II or, indeed, what happened after 9/11.

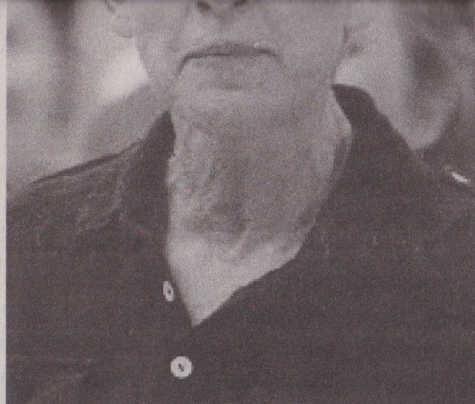

“Among other things, this is a taking of prop-

tiful women who are willing to sleep with her, but would that be the case if she were a part-time French-fry chef at Wendy's? There are plenty of women who are willing to do almost anything if you dangle a half-billion smackers in front of them.

As unfunny as she is homely, Ellen also enjoys a level of fame that is so wildly out of proportion to any discernible talent, it is highly suspicious. She has won 20 People's Choice awards — more than anyone else. In 2019 she raked in over $80 million, making her the world's highest-paid comedian. She hangs out with presidents and ex-presidents and, despite a gaping lack of any notable film appearances, she has hosted the Oscars twice. She even has more Twitter followers than Donald Trump does.

No one has ever been rewarded so richly for their lesbianism as Ellen. Since this canary-faced Sapphite's only skill lies in "being a lesbian," my suspicion is that she became the world's pre-eminent Lesbo Mogul because she was hand-picked to play a role, just like the similarly untalented billionaire Oprah Winfrey. Whereas Winfrey's role was to soften up the fat White female man-haters who watch daytime TV to the point where they eagerly embrace shameless black identity politics, Ellen's role was to make lesbians appear "relatable" and "normal" and even "kind."

Since I've done my best to ignore her, I was unaware that Ellen — who, like Oprah, is so famous that you don't even need a last name to know who I'm talking about — ends every one of her shows with the admonition to "be kind." She even sells merchandise — including anti-coronavirus face masks — with this insipid phrase on it. Her entire public persona — beyond the aggressive muff-div-podcast host named Kevin I. Porter mentioned Ellen's "kindness" shtick and how it clashed with ubiquitous Hollywood rumors that she's "notoriously one of the meanest people alive." An "Ellen is a [expletive deleted] megathread" emerged on [the popular website] Reddit in response to Porter's tweet that included this nugget:

Ellen

"She's well known in the TV production world as the most horrible human alive. Literally anyone who works in talk shows either has had a direct run-in with her or knows people that have. It's not even a secret. She's really really awful..."

There were hundreds of responses to Porter's request to share stories about Ellen's alleged [nastiness] — the majority being second- and third-hand accounts — but when there's that much smoke, one tends to suspect that there's at least a little bit of fire behind it. For example, I've never seen anyone call Betty White a [expletive deleted].

One of the major themes that kept emerging was the allegation that she forbids everyone on her staff from even making eye contact with her, under threat of termination or at least a thorough public tongue-lashing. She also seems to get a sadistic kick out of scaring her own employees.

She has no qualms about publicly humiliating audience members who dared to take more than one piece of the "free" swag her show offers.

She puts the shrieking obese flyover-country hetero hausfrau who adore her through such humiliating motions for cash and prizes, it reminds me of SCTV's classic fake game show Wacky World of Poverty. And now she hosts a regular game show where she sadistically cackles while contestants clumsily plod through one potentially injurious athletic feat after the next.

Maybe she is still plagued with guilt that her first love died in a car crash immediately after arguing with Ellen.

Maybe she's still furious that her parents initially rejected her when she came out of the closet.

Maybe she's still bitter that her stepdad molested her. Or maybe she's even more bitter that more men didn't try. Like they say, if there's one thing women hate more than unwanted attention, it's not getting the attention they want.

Anyone who has spent any time with lesbians, whether in laboratory settings or in their natural element as they cavort unbathed in the wild, knows they are fundamentally nasty creatures. Of course Ellen is mean. She's a lesbian. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned by every man on Earth except her pervert stepdad.

"When you look at this objectively, this is only a severe winter flu or virus of a type that mankind has been coping with, not only for decades and centuries but probably millennia. It has been turned into an existential crisis and 24/7 media hysteria that has opened the door to an expansion of government intrusion and power."

"I can't think of any precedent for it, including even what we did in wartime during World War II or, indeed, what happened after 9/11."

"Among other things, this is a taking of property, the likes of which have never before been imagined. Trillions of dollars are going to be lost by businesses that have been ordered to close their doors without a hearing, without the opportunity to present any alternative approaches that would permit them to remain open while also minimizing any threat to public health."

— David Stockman

Available from Northern Voice Bookstore

The Way Life Should Be? The Globalists' Demographic War on America with Maine as a Microcosm, by John Q. Publius. Foreword by Prof. Kevin MacDonald. A complete overview of the exact mechanism whereby the internationalist lobby is controlling, directing, and actively organizing mass Third World immigration with the explicitly-stated aim of destroying America — viewed with special emphasis through events in the state of Maine. This work shows in painstakingly-documented and fully-referenced detail exactly who is directing America's current political process and decline. Softcover, illus., 376 pgs. $20

Blood Money: The Civil War and the Federal Reserve, by John Remington Graham. Describes the origins of the Federal Reserve and how the divisive antagonisms between North and South were deliberately agitated by great international banking houses. Demonstrates how these private interests succeeded in setting up a huge financial empire centered on Wall Street. Softcover, illus., 96 pgs. $12

Holocaust on the High Seas, by Phillip F. Tourney. Phil Tourney is a USS Liberty survivor and gives a first-hand account of Israel's vicious, premeditated attack on the virtually unarmed intelligence gathering vessel USS Liberty in international waters on June 8, 1967. Tells what happened in vivid detail and how Israel's supporters and the entire U.S. government and its media co-conspirators have kept the attack blacked out for over half a century. Softcover, illus., 120 pgs. $16

Race-Sex-Truth, by Dr. Adrian Krieg. Dr. Krieg's latest! Revisionist history of our age. The real facts relating race, sex and truth. Not the sop you've been fed in school and college by academics — nothing but the real facts about these topics and about the people who finance wars and enforce Cultural Communism. Softcover, 204 pgs., $29

Compendium of Rational Thought, by Jon Larsen Shudlick. A most important aspect missing from the government schools is teaching the concept of thinking critically (or critical thinking). Critical thinking means that you question what you hear and read. Critical teaching should teach "how" to think, not "what" to think. If you exercise your own ability to think critically, you'll appreciate the topics covered in the pages of this book. It will shed light on events that have been glossed over or altogether missed. Softcover, illus., 178 pgs. $22

A History of Zionism, 1897 to 2020, by Peter Arnold and Jorgen Lars Rasmussen. This new book of revisionist history is one-of-a-kind, completely documented and verified. Zionism is hegemony over everyone on a monumental scale and is the embodiment of racial exclusion. The true history of Zionism is laid out by the authors, not the fairy tale version promoted by the fake news media. Softcover, illus. 219 pgs. $59

Zionism, Islam and the West, by Kerry Bolton, Ph.D. Over 12 chapters in this important book, Kerry Bolton rattles quite a few of the widely held misconceptions about Islam and Muslims, and the events of the past few decades in particular. This is a deep and thought-provoking piece of scholarship and Bolton demonstrates a shrewd command of documentary material in order to elucidate the prevailing stereotypes, pejorative views and garrulous hyperbole about Islam, and convincingly exposes a deep comprehension of the complexity of 20th century politics. Softcover, illus. 277 pgs. $28

The Occult and Subversive Movements, by Kerry Bolton. In this book, Dr. Bolton applies scholarly methodology, in layman's terms, to the question of conspiracies and the occult. Belief in magic, mysticism and the supernatural are unnecessary. What is relevant is that such notions are acted on by those who do believe in them. Bolton uses reliable sources to marshal the evidence that there are occult initiates who have for centuries been fomenting revolutions, and using materialistic, rationalistic and communist ideologies that appear contrary to occultism. Softcover, illus., 309 pgs. $29

A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags, by Clint Lacy. Information exists today that sheds doubt upon the official narratives concerning many events in U.S. history. In the brand new "A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags and Other Strange Events in American History" revisionist author Clint Lacy examines the official setting up a huge financial empire centered on Wall Street. Softcover, illus., 96 pgs. $12

Holocaust on the High Seas, by Phillip F. Tourney. Phil Tourney is a USS Liberty survivor and gives a first-hand account of Israel's vicious, premeditated attack on the virtually unarmed intelligence gathering vessel USS Liberty in international waters on June 8, 1967. Tells what happened in vivid detail and how Israel's supporters and the entire U.S. government and its media co-conspirators have kept the attack blacked out for over half a century. Softcover, illus., 120 pgs. $16

Race-Sex-Truth, by Dr. Adrian Krieg. Dr. Krieg's latest! Revisionist history of our age. The real facts relating race, sex and truth. Not the sop you've been fed in school and college by academics – nothing but the real facts about these topics and about the people who finance wars and enforce Cultural Communism. Softcover, 204 pgs., $29

Compendium of Rational Thought, by Jon Larsen Shudlick. A most important aspect missing from the government schools is teaching the concept of thinking critically (or critical thinking). Critical thinking means that you question what you hear and read. Critical teaching should teach "how" to think, not "what" to think. If you exercise your own ability to think critically, you'll appreciate the topics covered in the pages of this book. It will shed light on events that have been glossed over or altogether missed. Softcover, illus., 178 pgs. $22

A History of Zionism, 1897 to 2020, by Peter Arnold and Jorgen Lars Rasmussen. This new book of revisionist history is one-of-a-kind, completely documented and verified. Zionism is hegemony over everyone on a monumental scale and is the embodiment of racial exclusion. The true history of Zionism is laid out by the authors, not the fairy tale version promoted by the fake news media. Softcover, illus. 219 pgs. $59

Zionism, Islam and the West, by Kerry Bolton, Ph.D. Over 12 chapters in this important book, Kerry Bolton rattles quite a few of the widely held misconceptions about Islam and Muslims, and the events of the past few decades in particular. This is a deep and thought-provoking piece of scholarship and Bolton demonstrates a shrewd command of documentary material in order to elucidate the prevailing stereotypes, pejorative views and garrulous hyperbole about Islam, and convincingly exposes a deep comprehension of the complexity of 20th century politics. Softcover, illus. 277 pgs. $28

The Occult and Subversive Movements, by Kerry Bolton. In this book, Dr. Bolton applies scholarly methodology, in layman's terms, to the question of conspiracies and the occult. Belief in magic, mysticism and the supernatural are unnecessary. What is relevant is that such notions are acted on by those who do believe in them. Bolton uses reliable sources to marshal the evidence that there are occult initiates who have for centuries been fomenting revolutions, and using materialistic, rationalistic and communist ideologies that appear contrary to occultism. Softcover, illus., 309 pgs. $29

A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags, by Clint Lacy. Information exists today that sheds doubt upon the official narratives concerning many events in U.S. history. In the brand new "A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags and Other Strange Events in American History," revisionist author Clint Lacy examines the official narratives of each of many of these events and then provides information that contradicts the official story, proving that we, as citizens, need to be ever vigilant, refusing to accept without independent investigation any scenario the Deep State foists upon us. Softcover, 195 pgs. $22

The Synagogue of Satan, by Andrew Carrington Hitchcock. Updated, expanded, and uncensored, this book is a groundbreaking historical study that has been expanded throughout and beyond the bounds of the original book. The best exposure of who's been running the world behind the scenes for centuries. Gives a chronological encyclopedia of this criminal network which features a 30 page index to aid navigation. Not recommended for the faint-hearted, this is no ordinary book, and no-one who reads it will ever be the same again...Softcover, illus., 381 pgs. $25

Social Compliance, by Dr. Adrian H. Krieg. This book by the prolific Dr. Krieg focuses on the use of Cultural Marxism (now called Political Correctness) as a force of social change. Also covers how the communist elites use the Antifa movement to diminish their opposition by any means. Antifa, much like the Frankfurt School of Cultural Communism, traces its nefarious origins to the Weimar Republic, and is now reborn during the Trump era via top-down financing and protection. "Social Compliance" details how young people are being indoctrinated in socialism and other poisonous "isms." Softcover, illus., 284 pgs. $29

The Host & the Parasite, by Greg Felton. Felton argues persuasively that three groups have converged and come to dominate American policy for the benefit of Israel: the neoconservatives, the Republican evangelicals (Christian Zionists), and Jewish Zionists. He backs up his analysis with over 800 footnoted references to government, scholarly and media sources. Softcover, illus., 490 pgs. $29

Side Effects: Death, Confessions of a Pharma Insider, by John Virapen, Ph.D. The pill-pushing racket. Today, the biggest pharmaceutical companies in the world are not interested in curing disease, but convincing everyone — young and old alike — they are sick; sick from something (it doesn't matter what) and that

Zionism, Islam and the West, by Kerry Bolton, Ph.D. Over 12 chapters in this important book, Kerry Bolton rattles quite a few of the widely held misconceptions about Islam and Muslims, and the events of the past few decades in particular. This is a deep and thought-provoking piece of scholarship and Bolton demonstrates a shrewd command of documentary material in order to elucidate the prevailing stereotypes, pejorative views and garrulous hyperbole about Islam, and convincingly exposes a deep comprehension of the complexity of 20th century politics. Softcover, illus. 277 pgs. $28

The Occult and Subversive Movements, by Kerry Bolton. In this book, Dr. Bolton applies scholarly methodology, in layman's terms, to the question of conspiracies and the occult. Belief in magic, mysticism and the supernatural are unnecessary. What is relevant is that such notions are acted on by those who do believe in them. Bolton uses reliable sources to marshal the evidence that there are occult initiates who have for centuries been fomenting revolutions, and using materialistic, rationalistic and communist ideologies that appear contrary to occultism. Softcover, illus., 309 pgs. $29

A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags, by Clint Lacy. Information exists today that sheds doubt upon the official narratives concerning many events in U.S. history. In the brand new "A Truthseeker's Guide to False Flags and Other Strange Events in American History," revisionist author Clint Lacy examines the official narratives of each of many of these events and then provides information that contradicts the official story, proving that we, as citizens, need to be ever vigilant, refusing to accept without independent investigation any scenario the Deep State foists upon us. Softcover, 195 pgs. $22

The Synagogue of Satan, by Andrew Carrington Hitchcock. Updated, expanded, and uncensored, this book is a groundbreaking historical study that has been expanded throughout and beyond the bounds of the original book. The best exposure of who's been running the world behind the scenes for centuries. Gives a chronological encyclopedia of this criminal network which features a 30 page index to aid navigation. Not recommended for the faint-hearted, this is no ordinary book, and no-one who reads it will ever be the same again... Softcover, illus., 381 pgs. $25

Social Compliance, by Dr. Adrian H. Krieg. This book by the prolific Dr. Krieg focuses on the use of Cultural Marxism (now called Political Correctness) as a force of social change. Also covers how the communist elites use the Antifa movement to diminish their opposition by any means. Antifa, much like the Frankfurt School of Cultural Communism, traces its nefarious origins to the Weimar Republic, and is now reborn during the Trump era via top-down financing and protection. "Social Compliance" details how young people are being indoctrinated in socialism and other poisonous "isms." Softcover, illus., 284 pgs. $29

The Host & the Parasite, by Greg Felton. Felton argues persuasively that three groups have converged and come to dominate American policy for the benefit of Israel: the neoconservatives, the Republican evangelicals (Christian Zionists), and Jewish Zionists. He backs up his analysis with over 800 footnoted references to government, scholarly and media sources. Softcover, illus., 490 pgs. $29

Side Effects: Death, Confessions of a Pharma Insider, by John Virapen, Ph.D. The pill-pushing racket. Today, the biggest pharmaceutical companies in the world are not interested in curing disease, but convincing everyone — young and old alike — they are sick; sick from something (it doesn't matter what) and that their expensive pills will solve whatever ailment they have, real or imagined. But the kicker is that many of the addictive pills they are pushing have long lists of side effects that are much worse than any disease itself. Big Pharma is even in the business of inventing diseases to create new markets for even more pills, as shown by John's revelations on what is today called "Attention Deficit Disorder." Softcover, 194 pgs. $20

How to Order: 1. Send checks, money orders or cash. Money orders and checks must be made out to Northern Voice Bookstore. 2. Postage and handling must be included — $3 for the first item, $1.50 for each additional item. 3. Mail your order to Northern Voice Bookstore, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

CULTURAL CURRENTS

Virus of Mass Destruction

by C. J. Hopkins

There comes a point in the introduction of every new official narrative when people no longer remember how it started. Or, rather, they remember how it started, but not the propaganda that started it. Or, rather, they remember all that (or are able to, if you press them on it), but it doesn't make any difference anymore, because the official narrative has supplanted reality.

You'll remember this point from the War on Terror, and specifically the occupation of Iraq. By the latter half of 2004, most Westerners had completely forgotten the propaganda that launched the invasion, and thus regarded the Iraqi resistance as "terrorists," despite the fact that the United States had invaded and was occupying their country for no legitimate reason whatsoever. By that time, it was abundantly clear that there were no "weapons of mass destruction," and that the U.S.A. had invaded a nation that had not attacked it, and posed no threat to it, and so was perpetrating a textbook war of aggression.

These facts did not matter, not in the slightest. By that time, Westerners were totally immersed in the official War on Terror narrative, which had superseded objective reality. Herd mentality had taken over. It's difficult to describe how this works; it's a state of functional dissociation.

It wasn't that people didn't know the facts, or that they didn't understand the facts. They primal instincts, and are being driven purely by existential fear, and facts and truth no longer matter. Once an official narrative reaches this point, it is unassailable by facts and reason. It no longer needs facts to justify it. It justifies itself with its own existence. Reason cannot penetrate it. Arguing with its adherents is pointless. They know it is irrational. They simply do not care.

We are reaching this point with the coronavirus narrative. It is possible that we have already reached it. Despite the fact that what we are dealing with is a virus that, yes, is clearly deadly to the old and those with medical conditions, but that is just as clearly not a deadly threat to the majority of the human species, people are cowering inside their homes as if the Zombie Apocalypse had finally begun. Many appear to believe that this virus is some sort of Alien-Terrorist Death Flu (or weaponized Virus of Mass Destruction)

might be "infected."

The Malaysian authorities have dispensed with such niceties, and are arresting migrant workers and refugees in so-called "Covid-19 red zones" and marching them off to God knows where.

Oh, yeah, and I almost forgot ... the germ and chemical warfare researchers at DARPA (i.e., the U.S. military's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency) have developed some new type of fancy blood test that will identify "asymptomatic carriers" (i.e., people who display no symptoms whatsoever). So that will probably come in handy ... especially if the "White supremacists," "Red-Brown extremists," and "conspiracy theorists" keep protesting the lockdown with their wives and kids!

And these are just the latest additions to a list of rather dystopian examples of the "brave new normal" official narrative that GloboCap is rolling out, right before our very eyes. It's all right there in black and white. They aren't hiding the totalitarianism ... they don't have to. Because people are begging for it. They are demanding to be "locked down" inside their homes, forced to wear masks, and stand two meters apart, for reasons that most of them no longer remember.

Plastic barriers are going up everywhere. Arrows on the floor show you which way to walk. Boxes show you where to stand. Paranoid Blockwarts are putting up signs threatening anyone not wearing a mask. Hysterical little fascist creeps are reporting their neighbors to the police for letting their children play with other children. Mil-tion) that will kill you the second you breathe it in.

This is not surprising at all, because, according started, but not the propaganda that started it. Or, rather, they remember all that (or are able to, if you press them on it), but it doesn't make any difference anymore, because the official narrative has supplanted reality.

You'll remember this point from the War on Terror, and specifically the occupation of Iraq. By the latter half of 2004, most Westerners had completely forgotten the propaganda that launched the invasion, and thus regarded the Iraqi resistance as "terrorists," despite the fact that the United States had invaded and was occupying their country for no legitimate reason whatsoever. By that time, it was abundantly clear that there were no "weapons of mass destruction," and that the U.S.A. had invaded a nation that had not attacked it, and posed no threat to it, and so was perpetrating a textbook war of aggression.

These facts did not matter, not in the slightest. By that time, Westerners were totally immersed in the official War on Terror narrative, which had superseded objective reality. Herd mentality had taken over. It's difficult to describe how this works; it's a state of functional dissociation.

It wasn't that people didn't know the facts, or that they didn't understand the facts. They knew the Iraqis weren't "terrorists." At the same time, they knew they were definitely "terrorists," despite the fact that they knew that they weren't. They knew there were no WMDs, that there had never been any WMDs, and still they were certain there were WMDs, which would be found, although they clearly did not exist.

What I'm describing probably sounds like psychosis, but, technically speaking, it isn't... not quite. It is not an absolute break from reality. People functioning in this state know that what they believe is not real. Nonetheless, they are forced to believe it (and do, actually, literally, believe it, as impossible as I know that sounds), because the consequences of not believing it are even more frightening than the cognitive dissonance of believing a narrative they know is a fiction.

Disbelieving the official narrative means excommunication from "normality," the loss of friends, income, status and in many cases far worse punish-

son cannot penetrate it. Arguing with its adherents is pointless. They know it is irrational. They simply do not care.

We are reaching this point with the coronavirus narrative. It is possible that we have already reached it. Despite the fact that what we are dealing with is a virus that, yes, is clearly deadly to the old and those with medical conditions, but that is just as clearly not a deadly threat to the majority of the human species, people are cowering inside their homes as if the Zombie Apocalypse had finally begun. Many appear to believe that this virus is some sort of Alien-Terrorist Death Flu (or weaponized Virus of Mass Destruction).

tion) that will kill you the second you breathe it in.

This is not surprising at all, because, according to the official narrative, its destructive powers are nearly unlimited. Not only will it obliterate your lungs, and liquidate all your other major organs, and kill you with blood clots, and intestinal damage, now it causes "sudden strokes in young adults," and possibly spontaneous prostate cancer, and God knows what other medical horrors!

According to all the "scientists" and "medical experts" (i.e., those that conform to the official narrative, not all the other scientists and medical experts), it is unlike any other virus that has ever existed in the history of viruses. It certainly doesn't follow the typical pattern of spreading extensively for a limited period, and then rapidly dying down on its own, regardless of what measures are taken to thwart it.

Also, "we have no immunity against it," which is why we all have to remain "locked down" like unruly inmates in a penitentiary until a vaccine can be

Oh, yeah, and I almost forgot... the germ and chemical warfare researchers at DARPA (i.e., the U.S. military's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency) have developed some new type of fancy blood test that will identify "asymptomatic carriers" (i.e., people who display no symptoms whatsoever). So that will probably come in handy... especially if the "White supremacists," "Red-Brown extremists," and "conspiracy theorists" keep protesting the lockdown with their wives and kids!

And these are just the latest additions to a list of rather dystopian examples of the "brave new normal" official narrative that GloboCap is rolling out, right before our very eyes. It's all right there in black and white. They aren't hiding the totalitarianism... they don't have to. Because people are begging for it. They are demanding to be "locked down" inside their homes, forced to wear masks, and stand two meters apart, for reasons that most of them no longer remember.

Plastic barriers are going up everywhere. Arrows on the floor show you which way to walk. Boxes show you where to stand. Paranoid Blockwarts are putting up signs threatening anyone not wearing a mask. Hysterical little fascist creeps are reporting their neighbors to the police for letting their children play with other children. Millions of people are voluntarily downloading "contact tracing applications" so that governments and global corporations can monitor their every movement.

In Spain, they bleached an entire beach, killing everything, down to the insects, in order to protect the public from "infection." The internet has become an Orwellian chorus of shrieking, sanctimonious voices bullying everyone into conformity with charts, graphs, and desperate guilt-trips, few of which have much connection to reality. Corporations and governments are censoring dissent.

Meanwhile, they're striking the mostly empty "field hospitals," and the theatrical "hospital ship" is now gone, and despite their attempts to inflate the Covid-19 death count as much as humanly possible, the projected hundreds of millions of deaths have not materialized (not even close), and Sweden is fine, as is most of humanity, and... just like there were no WMDs, there is no Virus of Mass Destruction.

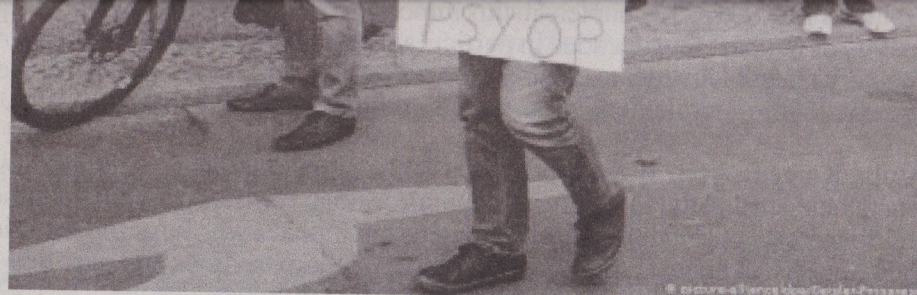

of aggression. These facts did not matter, not in the slightest. By that time, Westerners were totally immersed in the official War on Terror narrative, which had superseded objective reality. Herd mentality had taken over. It's difficult to describe how this works; it's a state of functional dissociation.

It wasn't that people didn't know the facts, or that they didn't understand the facts. They knew the Iraqis weren't "terrorists." At the same time, they knew they were definitely "terrorists," despite the fact that they knew that they weren't. They knew there were no WMDs, that there had never been any WMDs, and still they were certain there were WMDs, which would be found, although they clearly did not exist.

What I'm describing probably sounds like psychosis, but, technically speaking, it isn't... not quite. It is not an absolute break from reality. People functioning in this state know that what they believe is not real. Nonetheless, they are forced to believe it (and do, actually, literally, believe it, as impossible as I know that sounds), because the consequences of not believing it are even more frightening than the cognitive dissonance of believing a narrative they know is a fiction.

Disbelieving the official narrative means excommunication from "normality," the loss of friends, income, status, and in many cases far worse punishments. Herd animals, in a state of panic, instinctively run towards the center of the herd. Separation from the herd makes them easy prey for pursuing predators. It is the same primal instinct operating here.

It is the goal of every official narrative to generate this type of herd mentality, not in order to deceive or dupe the public, but, rather, to confuse and terrorize them to the point where they revert to their

tion) that will kill you the second you breathe it in.

This is not surprising at all, because, according to the official narrative, its destructive powers are nearly unlimited. Not only will it obliterate your lungs, and liquidate all your other major organs, and kill you with blood clots, and intestinal damage, now it causes "sudden strokes in young adults," and possibly spontaneous prostate cancer, and God knows what other medical horrors!

According to all the "scientists" and "medical experts" (i.e., those that conform to the official narrative, not all the other scientists and medical experts), it is unlike any other virus that has ever existed in the history of viruses. It certainly doesn't follow the typical pattern of spreading extensively for a limited period, and then rapidly dying down on its own, regardless of what measures are taken to thwart it.

Also, "we have no immunity against it," which is why we all have to remain "locked down" like unruly inmates in a penitentiary until a vaccine can be concocted and forced onto every living person on earth. Apparently, this mandatory wonder vaccine will magically render us immune to this virus against which we have no immunity (and are totally unable to develop immunity), which immunity will be certified on our mandatory "immunity papers," which we will need to travel, get a job, send our kids to school, and, you know, to show the police when they stop us on the street because we look like maybe we down" inside their homes, forced to wear masks, and stand two meters apart, for reasons that most of them no longer remember.

Plastic barriers are going up everywhere. Arrows on the floor show you which way to walk. Boxes show you where to stand. Paranoid Blockwarts are putting up signs threatening anyone not wearing a mask. Hysterical little fascist creeps are reporting their neighbors to the police for letting their children play with other children. Millions of people are voluntarily downloading "contact tracing applications" so that governments and global corporations can monitor their every movement.

In Spain, they bleached an entire beach, killing everything, down to the insects, in order to protect the public from "infection." The internet has become an Orwellian chorus of shrieking, sanctimonious voices bullying everyone into conformity with charts, graphs, and desperate guilt-trips, few of which have much connection to reality. Corporations and governments are censoring dissent.

Meanwhile, they're striking the mostly empty "field hospitals," and the theatrical "hospital ship" is now gone, and despite their attempts to inflate the Covid-19 death count as much as humanly possible, the projected hundreds of millions of deaths have not materialized (not even close), and Sweden is fine, as is most of humanity, and... just like there were no WMDs, there is no Virus of Mass Destruction.

What there is, is a new official narrative, the brave new, paranoid, pathologized "normal." Like the War on Terror, it's a global narrative. A global, post-ideological narrative. It's just getting started, so it isn't yet clear how totalitarian this show will get, but, given the nature of the pilot episode, I am kind of dreading the rest of the series.

Published by consentfactory.org.

On the 75th Anniversary of V-E Day and the Coronavirus Scamdemic

by Antonius Aquinas

This month (May 2020) marks the 75th anniversary of “V-E Day,” when German forces unconditionally surrendered to the “Allies.” Numerous articles, essays, and monographs have appeared commemorating the anniversary and while all are mostly laudatory, some have acknowledged that the outcome had its “drawbacks.”

By any objective rendering, for Western Civilization WWII was an unmitigated catastrophe whose reverberations continue to this day. Forty-three million troops were senselessly killed between American, British and Continental forces while 38 million civilians perished. Europe’s current demographic nightmare had its unfruitful seeds cut down with the depopulation of the Continent’s finest for the maniacal aims of the world’s power elites.

Not only the loss of life, but the destruction of property and the cultures upon which they were built have been incalculable. Although the U.S. emerged in the post-war world as the dominant economic and political power (as its mainland remained unscathed from wartime destruction), its participation in the conflict was a titanic geopolitical blunder.

The defeat of Germany and Japan, which would have not come about without U.S. military might, left vast power vacuums in Eastern Europe and the Far East that Soviet Russia and Red China ruthlessly filled. Half of Europe would fall behind the Iron Curtain, subjected to fierce political repression and debilitating socialistic economic planning. In Asia, Communist regimes sprang up with the asin Eastern Europe; the U.S. military and security industrial complex, which had a world empire to police; Chinese Communists, with Imperial Japan decimated it left little opposition for them to gain control in China and beyond. For almost everyone else, even the so-called “victors,” WWII was a Pyrrhic victory at best.

For the remainder of 20th century American history, U.S. entry into the Second World War proved to be the catalyst which led to the immense cultural, economic, and political changes, which many conservatives, libertarians, and traditional-minded people at the time and afterwards opposed. Yet, it was U.S. participation in the war which meant that all of those changes would become permanent.

Harry Elmer Barnes, who was a keen social theorist and wrote extensively on sociology, clearly understood the effects of US entry into the war:

verted attention and scarce resources away from the domestic front, which further exacerbated social and economic changes. The societal strife would become more and more acute as the nation’s overseas commitments mushroomed.

While domestic problems received less attention as the American empire expanded, foreign lands which held different patterns of social order or had non-“democratic” forms of government, were targeted for “regime change,” even if they had taken no hostile action toward the U.S. Wrote Barnes: “[T]he results of [WWII] already indicate that this produced drastic and possibly ominous changes in the pattern of American relations to the rest of the world. We voluntarily and arbitrarily assumed unprecedented burdens in feeding and financing a world badly disrupted by war. . . . The United States sought to police the world and extend the rule of law on a planetary basis, which actually meant imposing the ideology of our eastern seaboard Establishment throughout the world, by force, if necessary. . . .”

Had the U.S. remained neutral as the isolationists and America First supporters had pleaded, the world today would be markedly different – undoubtedly freer, more prosperous, and likely more peaceful. Since every society is governed, in part, by its understanding of the past, the post-WWII world is built on a lie. The lie, of course, was that the attack on Pearl Harbor was unprovoked and that the Roosevelt administration had negotiated in good faith with the Japanese in the months and years leading up to it.

While not recognized at the time and even today, the outcome of WWII ushered in the totalitarversary of "V-E Day," when German forces unconditionally surrendered to the "Allies." Numerous articles, essays, and monographs have appeared commemorating the anniversary and while all are mostly laudatory, some have acknowledged that the outcome had its "drawbacks."

By any objective rendering, for Western Civilization WWII was an unmitigated catastrophe whose reverberations continue to this day. Forty-three million troops were senselessly killed between American, British and Continental forces while 38 million civilians perished. Europe's current demographic nightmare had its unfruitful seeds cut down with the depopulation of the Continent's finest for the maniacal aims of the world's power elites.

Not only the loss of life, but the destruction of property and the cultures upon which they were built have been incalculable. Although the U.S. emerged in the post-war world as the dominant economic and political power (as its mainland remained unscathed from wartime destruction), its participation in the conflict was a titanic geopolitical blunder.

The defeat of Germany and Japan, which would have not come about without U.S. military might, left vast power vacuums in Eastern Europe and the Far East that Soviet Russia and Red China ruthlessly filled. Half of Europe would fall behind the Iron Curtain, subjected to fierce political repression and debilitating socialistic economic planning. In Asia, Communist regimes sprang up with the assistance of China and the Soviet Union, which America attempted to counter in Korea and Vietnam at a staggering cost to its domestic economy and social tranquility.

Even after the fall of Soviet Communism, the U.S.'s supposed lethal enemy, America maintained its empire as its "defense" spending continued to escalate beyond all reasonable levels which has led, in part, to the decline of domestic living standards of nearly all, except of course for the politically well-connected.

Not only has military adventurism bankrupted the country, but there is now "blowback" from the countless enemies either real, imagined, or contrived — created by U.S. overseas meddling.

Moreover, the nation's military-industrial and security complex has turned on its own citizens with spying, surveillance, and data gathering that would matized it left little opposition for them to gain control in China and beyond. For almost everyone else, even the so-called "victors," WWII was a Pyrrhic victory at best.

For the remainder of 20th century American history, U.S. entry into the Second World War proved to be the catalyst which led to the immense cultural, economic, and political changes, which many conservatives, libertarians, and traditional-minded people at the time and afterwards opposed. Yet, it was U.S. participation in the war which meant that all of those changes would become permanent.

Harry Elmer Barnes, who was a keen social theorist and wrote extensively on sociology, clearly understood the effects of US entry into the war:

A V-E Day celebration in New York

"Drastic changes in the domestic realm can also be attributed to the impact of our entry into the second World War. The old rural society that had dominated humanity for millennia was already disintegrating rapidly as the result of urbanization and technological advances, but the latter failed to supply adequate new institutions and agencies to control and direct an urban civilization. This situation faced the American public before 1941 but the momentous transformation was given intensified rapidity and scope as a result of the extensive dislocations produced by years of warfare and recovery."

While every sector of American life was unalterably changed, the most ominous took place in the political order. Although the federal government had begun to expand during the Progressive Era, its scope and involvement in society drastically accelerated and the nation's overseas commitments mushroomed.

While domestic problems received less attention as the American empire expanded, foreign lands which held different patterns of social order or had non-"democratic" forms of government, were targeted for "regime change," even if they had taken no hostile action toward the U.S. Wrote Barnes: "[T]he results of [WWII] already indicate that this produced drastic and possibly ominous changes in the pattern of American relations to the rest of the world. We voluntarily and arbitrarily assumed unprecedented burdens in feeding and financing a world badly disrupted by war. . . . The United States sought to police the world and extend the rule of law on a planetary basis, which actually meant imposing the ideology of our eastern seaboard Establishment throughout the world, by force, if necessary. . ."

Had the U.S. remained neutral as the isolationists and America First supporters had pleaded, the world today would be markedly different — undoubtedly freer, more prosperous, and likely more peaceful. Since every society is governed, in part, by its understanding of the past, the post-WWII world is built on a lie. The lie, of course, was that the attack on Pearl Harbor was unprovoked and that the Roosevelt administration had negotiated in good faith with the Japanese in the months and years leading up to it.

While not recognized at the time and even today, the outcome of WWII ushered in the totalitarian nation-state which would become a permanent and intimate fixture in the lives of its citizens. There was no appeal to its dictates and as the decades rolled on it accrued unthinkable power over the society and economy. It attempted to solve every social and economic problem or inequality (most of which it had created) and each action enhanced its power and control dramatically.

The corona scamdemic may be the state's greatest power grab yet. Besides the infringement of civil liberties, the shutdown has been adroitly used to cover for the titanic economic collapse which began in the weeks prior to the draconian response measures. Actually, the financial breakdown began last September with the Fed's "repo" operations.

All of this has been quietly and deliberately forgotten by the financial press, and under the cover of fighting the virus the Fed and the rest of the world's central banks have expanded their power and con-economic and political power (as its mainland remained unscathed from wartime destruction), its participation in the conflict was a titanic geopolitical blunder.

The defeat of Germany and Japan, which would have not come about without U.S. military might, left vast power vacuums in Eastern Europe and the Far East that Soviet Russia and Red China ruthlessly filled. Half of Europe would fall behind the Iron Curtain, subjected to fierce political repression and debilitating socialistic economic planning. In Asia, Communist regimes sprang up with the assistance of China and the Soviet Union, which America attempted to counter in Korea and Vietnam at a staggering cost to its domestic economy and social tranquility.

Even after the fall of Soviet Communism, the U.S.'s supposed lethal enemy, America maintained its empire as its "defense" spending continued to escalate beyond all reasonable levels which has led, in part, to the decline of domestic living standards of nearly all, except of course for the politically well-connected.

Not only has military adventurism bankrupted the country, but there is now "blowback" from the countless enemies either real, imagined, or contrived – created by U.S. overseas meddling.

Moreover, the nation's military-industrial and security complex has turned on its own citizens with spying, surveillance, and data gathering that would be the envy of Stalin's Cheka. Yet, it was U.S. participation in WWII which cemented the nation on its ruinous course as world policeman. This was predicted and feared by "isolationists" at the time, which is why they so courageously fought to keep the country neutral.

While the peoples of the world suffered from the Apocalyptic-like destruction of the war, certain groups did gain. The benefactors were obvious – Stalin and the Soviet state, which was given free rein

A V-E Day celebration in New York

"Drastic changes in the domestic realm can also be attributed to the impact of our entry into the second World War. The old rural society that had dominated humanity for millennia was already disintegrating rapidly as the result of urbanization and technological advances, but the latter failed to supply adequate new institutions and agencies to control and direct an urban civilization. This situation faced the American public before 1941 but the momentous transformation was given intensified rapidity and scope as a result of the extensive dislocations produced by years of warfare and recovery."

While every sector of American life was unalterably changed, the most ominous took place in the political order. Although the federal government had begun to expand during the Progressive Era, its scope and involvement in society drastically accelerated during and after the war.

Barnes, holding many libertarian beliefs, observed the totalitarian features of the post-war nation: "The complex and cumulative aftermath of [WWII] has played the dominant role in producing the menacing military pattern and political impasse of our time, and the military-industrial-political Establishment that controls this country and has sought to determine world policy."

The rise of America to world power status di-

ists and America First supporters had pleaded, the world today would be markedly different – undoubtedly freer, more prosperous, and likely more peaceful. Since every society is governed, in part, by its understanding of the past, the post-WWII world is built on a lie. The lie, of course, was that the attack on Pearl Harbor was unprovoked and that the Roosevelt administration had negotiated in good faith with the Japanese in the months and years leading up to it.

While not recognized at the time and even today, the outcome of WWII ushered in the totalitarian nation-state which would become a permanent and intimate fixture in the lives of its citizens. There was no appeal to its dictates and as the decades rolled on it accrued unthinkable power over the society and economy. It attempted to solve every social and economic problem or inequality (most of which it had created) and each action enhanced its power and control dramatically.

The corona scamdemic may be the state's greatest power grab yet. Besides the infringement of civil liberties, the shutdown has been adroitly used to cover for the titanic economic collapse which began in the weeks prior to the draconian response measures. Actually, the financial breakdown began last September with the Fed's "repo" operations.

All of this has been quietly and deliberately forgotten by the financial press, and under the cover of fighting the virus the Fed and the rest of the world's central banks have expanded their power and control of financial markets to unprecedented levels, making a mockery that the economy is in any sense "capitalistic."

The adage that "history is written by the victors" has never been more apparent than in regard to V-E Day; however, the coronavirus scam has shown once again that the consequences of the day and the war which it commemorates are now being ominously fulfilled.

The Saints

by Nancy Hitt

The old hymn, "For All the Saints," was sung by a few voices on Saturday, July 19, 2008, inside the Emmanuel Lutheran Church at Hide Away Hills, Ohio. Some of the men who attended this memorial had been members of a military force referred to as "The Saints."

Just across the road from the church is a hillside cemetery which contains the mortal remains of a young Christian Soldier for the Cross, Cpl. John Alan Coey. Corporal Coey had served as a medic and was truly one of "The Saints."

To understand the significance of this memorial service, one must think back to the years between 1965 and 1980. There existed in a far distant African country a war being waged against both the black and White population. The enemies attacked from Uganda, Zambia and Mozambique. These radical black forces were aided by China and Russia. The U.S. and Britain were attempting to secretly destroy this White-ruled country. These two powerful English-speaking countries placed sanctions upon this far-off land populated by their own people.

Landlocked Rhodesia put up a desperate struggle against the communists who brutally executed missionaries and mutilated black and White Rhodesians. The echo of Rhodesia's wounded cries were heard by the world, but those cries for help were ignored. Dedicated young men volunteered from eighteen different countries to battle for Rhodesian freedom against the forces of darkness and oppression.

These young men who faced the foe were often strong anti-communists and Christians who felt the need to aid a friendly country that was in dire need. Some of these volunteers gave their all while others were wounded and disabled for life. John Alan Coey, the Rhodesian soldiers. They fought side by side with the native-born soldiers, some of whom were black. The foreigners were required to sign a three years contract with the military. Cpl. John Alan Coey had volunteered for five years service with the RLI.

The Rhodesians and foreign volunteers fought a strong military defense, but were unable to fight off the overwhelming forces and the political intrigue. Rhodesia fell upon its knees due to the underhanded efforts of the U.S. government, which always claims to be opposed to communism. President Jimmy Carter presided over the birth of "Zimbabwe" and was the midwife of that monster, Robert Mugabe.

How many times must the Americans be led down the garden path? We have been led to believe that the U.S. despises Marxism, and yet the U.S. has aided in the creation of cruel Marxist regimes. This has been achieved by the use of U.S. sanctions, secret backroom deals, bribery and outright lying to the American people.

ers. The truth about the criminal acts perpetrated by Mandela both in his past and in the present have been totally whitewashed.

I read about the planned memorial for Corporal Coey in the July edition of the now-defunct First Freedom newspaper. It only gave me a few days to contact Phyllis Coey, John's mother, and make arrangements to travel to Ohio for the service. John had one sibling, G. Edward Coey, who is an older brother. Ed drove up from Alabama to give the eulogy at the church service and at the cemetery.

Rich Byrne from Pennsylvania helped to co-ordinate the memorial. His uncle, Trooper Joseph Patrick Byrne, was killed in Rhodesia on October 26, 1978. Emily Dwyer Barda drove to the memorial from Indianapolis, Indiana. Her uncle, Trooper Stephen M. Dwyer, was killed in action on July 16, 1979.

I was particularly interested in this event as I had lived in the Republic of South Africa in the 1970s. After returning home to Louisville, Kentucky, I kept in touch with events occurring in Rhodesia. More recently, I read and reviewed John's book "A Martyr Speaks" (see Nancy Hitt's article about John Alan Coey, "We Never Lost," in the Feb. 2020 Nationalist Times), which is still available for sale. The first publishers of John's book attended the memorial service. Pat and Richard Brooks drove up from North Carolina with some Christian books written by Pat. They kindly offered them for anyone to take and read.

In Louisville, three of us formed a group which we called The Friends of South Africa. We organized several protests against the African National Congress, which has always been a communist front. We attempted to awaken our fellow Kentuckians to the subterfuge created by the U.S. government about

Just across the road from the church is a hillside cemetery which contains the mortal remains of a young Christian Soldier for the Cross, Cpl. John Alan Coey. Corporal Coey had served as a medic and was truly one of "The Saints."

To understand the significance of this memorial service, one must think back to the years between 1965 and 1980. There existed in a far distant African country a war being waged against both the black and White population. The enemies attacked from Uganda, Zambia and Mozambique. These radical black forces were aided by China and Russia. The U.S. and Britain were attempting to secretly destroy this White-ruled country. These two powerful English-speaking countries placed sanctions upon this far-off land populated by their own people.

Landlocked Rhodesia put up a desperate struggle against the communists who brutally executed missionaries and mutilated black and White Rhodesians. The echo of Rhodesia's wounded cries were heard by the world, but those cries for help were ignored. Dedicated young men volunteered from eighteen different countries to battle for Rhodesian freedom against the forces of darkness and oppression.

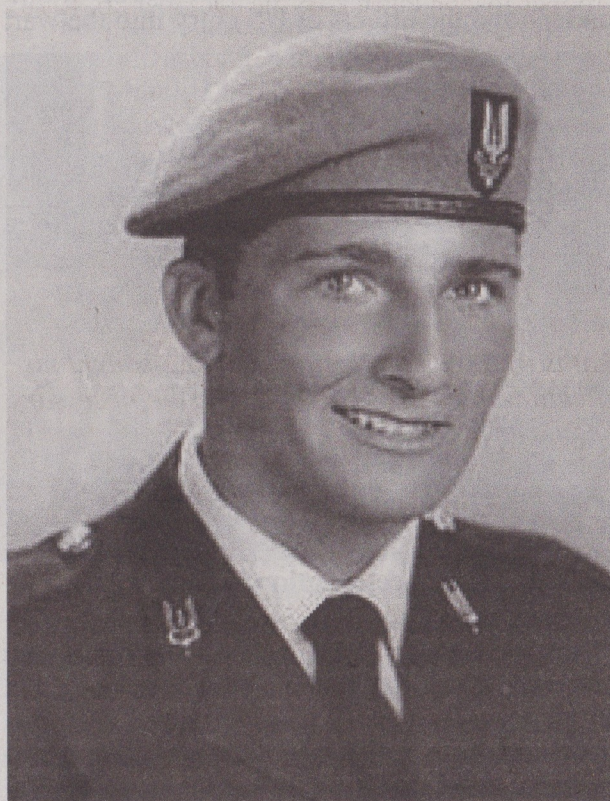

These young men who faced the foe were often strong anti-communists and Christians who felt the need to aid a friendly country that was in dire need. Some of these volunteers gave their all while others were wounded and disabled for life. John Alan Coey, an American, gave up his life in Rhodesia as the first American to die in that dirty little-known war. Another six American volunteers would breathe their last in that foreign land. Two of the Canadian volunteers were killed in action during bloody encounters with black guerrillas.

The date of July 19, 1975, has a special significance to three different families as three young soldiers, each from a different nation, were killed in Rhodesia on that one day. One soldier was from South Africa, one a native of Rhodesia and another soldier was from Hide Away Hills, Ohio, U.S.A. The memorial of July 19, 2008, was the first ever reunion held in the U.S. to recognize all of "The Saints" who had served in the highly decorated Rhodesian Light Infantry battalion.

The Rhodesian Light Infantry existed from 1961 until 1980. From 1965 until 1980 the unit was involved in a fifteen-year war. The battalion headquarters were in Salisbury at the Cranborne Barracks.

Rhodesia fell upon its knees due to the underhanded efforts of the U.S. government, which always claims to be opposed to communism. President Jimmy Carter presided over the birth of "Zimbabwe" and was the midwife of that monster, Robert Mugabe.

How many times must the Americans be led down the garden path? We have been led to believe that the U.S. despises Marxism, and yet the U.S. has aided in the creation of cruel Marxist regimes. This has been achieved by the use of U.S. sanctions, secret backroom deals, bribery and outright lying to the American people.

John Alan Coey

Zimbabwe and the "never-ending presidency" of Mugabe, who finally died in 2019 at the age of 95, are a direct product of U.S. interference in Rhodesia's internal affairs. We would not allow a White-ruled country to survive. The U.S. worked for its destruction even though the Rhodesian government did not practice apartheid.

Washington also operated with deception in its treatment of the sovereign country of the Republic of South Africa. Just look at the current black Marxist leaders of African countries brought to life by our had a son sibling, G. Edward Coey, who is an older brother. Ed drove up from Alabama to give the eulogy at the church service and at the cemetery.

Rich Byrne from Pennsylvania helped to co-ordinate the memorial. His uncle, Trooper Joseph Patrick Byrne, was killed in Rhodesia on October 26, 1978. Emily Dwyer Barda drove to the memorial from Indianapolis, Indiana. Her uncle, Trooper Stephen M. Dwyer, was killed in action on July 16, 1979.

I was particularly interested in this event as I had lived in the Republic of South Africa in the 1970s. After returning home to Louisville, Kentucky, I kept in touch with events occurring in Rhodesia. More recently, I read and reviewed John's book "A Martyr Speaks" (see Nancy Hitt's article about John Alan Coey, "We Never Lost," in the Feb. 2020 Nationalist Times), which is still available for sale. The first publishers of John's book attended the memorial service. Pat and Richard Brooks drove up from North Carolina with some Christian books written by Pat. They kindly offered them for anyone to take and read.

In Louisville, three of us formed a group which we called The Friends of South Africa. We organized several protests against the African National Congress, which has always been a communist front. We attempted to awaken our fellow Kentuckians to the subterfuge created by the U.S. government about their motives for supporting the leftist Marxist leader, Nelson Mandela.

The parents and brother of John Alan Coey were subjected to discrimination in a variety of ways after John volunteered to fight for Rhodesia. During this period, the U.S. government could have refused John the right to keep his American citizenship or refused to allow him to return to his home. At the very same time the American Jews could hold two passports, one U.S. and the other Israeli. Jews could fight against Palestinians for Zionist Israel while retaining their U.S. citizenship.

When John was killed, the Coey family was financially assisted by Rhodesians in their travel expenses to Rhodesia for the funeral. John received a military funeral and he was buried in Que Que, Rhodesia. It seems that John had been planning to break his five year military contract after having completed more than three years as he had become engaged to a young Rhodesian woman. He was looking forward against the communists who brutally executed missionaries and mutilated black and White Rhodesians. The echo of Rhodesia's wounded cries were heard by the world, but those cries for help were ignored. Dedicated young men volunteered from eighteen different countries to battle for Rhodesian freedom against the forces of darkness and oppression.

These young men who faced the foe were often strong anti-communists and Christians who felt the need to aid a friendly country that was in dire need. Some of these volunteers gave their all while others were wounded and disabled for life. John Alan Coey, an American, gave up his life in Rhodesia as the first American to die in that dirty little-known war. Another six American volunteers would breathe their last in that foreign land. Two of the Canadian volunteers were killed in action during bloody encounters with black guerrillas.

The date of July 19, 1975, has a special significance to three different families as three young soldiers, each from a different nation, were killed in Rhodesia on that one day. One soldier was from South Africa, one a native of Rhodesia and another soldier was from Hide Away Hills, Ohio, U.S.A. The memorial of July 19, 2008, was the first ever reunion held in the U.S. to recognize all of "The Saints" who had served in the highly decorated Rhodesian Light Infantry battalion.

The Rhodesian Light Infantry existed from 1961 until 1980. From 1965 until 1980 the unit was involved in a fifteen-year war. The battalion headquarters were in Salisbury at the Cranborne Barracks. The forces of the RLI were trained to parachute into the bush at low altitudes. Paratroopers were dropped into the bush to do battle with black insurgents and it was dangerous work.

The Rhodesian Light Infantry officers taught their foreign volunteers a type of fire force warfare developed especially for fighting in the African veldt. These foreign volunteers were not soldiers of fortune or mercenaries. They received the same pay packet as

John Alan Coey

Zimbabwe and the "never-ending presidency" of Mugabe, who finally died in 2019 at the age of 95, are a direct product of U.S. interference in Rhodesia's internal affairs. We would not allow a White-ruled country to survive. The U.S. worked for its destruction even though the Rhodesian government did not practice apartheid.

Washington also operated with deception in its treatment of the sovereign country of the Republic of South Africa. Just look at the current black Marxist leaders of African countries brought to life by our leaders' spawn!

During this July, 2008 celebration of The Saints, U.S. President George Bush and his cronies were congratulating Nelson Mandela upon his birthday. How can our "democratic" U.S. President give such recognition to a convicted terrorist and a Marxist leader? Our political poltroons with the assistance of the Zionist media will celebrate while Mandela's bandits continue to terrorize innocent White farmalist Times), which is still available for sale. The first publishers of John's book attended the memorial service. Pat and Richard Brooks drove up from North Carolina with some Christian books written by Pat. They kindly offered them for anyone to take and read.

In Louisville, three of us formed a group which we called The Friends of South Africa. We organized several protests against the African National Congress, which has always been a communist front. We attempted to awaken our fellow Kentuckians to the subterfuge created by the U.S. government about their motives for supporting the leftist Marxist leader, Nelson Mandela.

The parents and brother of John Alan Coey were subjected to discrimination in a variety of ways after John volunteered to fight for Rhodesia. During this period, the U.S. government could have refused John the right to keep his American citizenship or refused to allow him to return to his home. At the very same time the American Jews could hold two passports, one U.S. and the other Israeli. Jews could fight against Palestinians for Zionist Israel while retaining their U.S. citizenship.

When John was killed, the Coey family was financially assisted by Rhodesians in their travel expenses to Rhodesia for the funeral. John received a military funeral and he was buried in Que Que, Rhodesia. It seems that John had been planning to break his five year military contract after having completed more than three years as he had become engaged to a young Rhodesian woman. He was looking forward to returning to the U.S., but God had other plans for John Alan Coey.

In 1979, when it was apparent that Rhodesia could not hold on and would fall to the black barbarians, another kind of hero stepped forward. Rt. Hon. Viscountess Patricia Malvern, a Rhodesian, generously financed John's reburial in Ohio. It is due to her courage and generosity that he now rests in the Hide Away Hills of his youth.

The highlight of the memorial service was the opportunity to actually meet four of "The Saints" who traveled long distances to be at this service. Michael McDonald, a Canadian, attended with his Rhodesian wife, Rhona. Michael and Rhona live in Toronto. Michael almost lost his left hand after being shot in an encounter in the bush. His wife told me that she felt "fortunate" to have been raised in Rhodesia. Sadly, Rhodesia is now just a ghost in the mist of the past.

Jeremy Hall served in Rhodesia as a South African volunteer. Jeremy studied art in South Africa. He made many low-altitude parachute jumps while serving in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. Jeremy also now resides in Canada with his Rhodesian wife.

Craig Bone, a Rhodesian, studied art along with Jeremy in Durban, South Africa. Later on, both Craig and Jeremy wound up serving in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. Craig is a renowned African wildlife artist. His military career came to an end after he was seriously wounded in combat. Craig drove up to Ohio from his home in Florida.

Keith Nelson, an American, served in Vietnam and after it fell in 1975, he volunteered to fight for Rhodesia. Keith was a RLI medic and lost both legs after stepping on a mine. He is married to Mary, a Rhodesian woman. She also attended the service. Keith remained in Rhodesia for six years and became a doctor. He and his wife live near Cincinnati and he has recently published a war novel entitled "Shadow Tracker."

These four men showed physical evidence of their sacrifices. "The Saints" were indeed the sacrificial lambs who were slaughtered or mutilated with support from our corrupt government. Some of their wounds are probably emotional scars from being in combat, losing their homeland, and realizing the betrayal of their own governments. This is the legacy left to these brave soldiers.

After the church service was finished, we marched across Hornsmill Road and walked up the

In." This was the passing out song for the RLI and the origin of the appellation "The Saints." Lovely floral arrangements had been brought to the service and they were placed at the gravesite.

Seven American flags, each one to represent an American soldier, were placed in the ground. One additional flag was left there to represent all those who served in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. A bugle played "Taps."

We returned to the church basement for fellowship. Phyllis had planned for everyone to have lunch at the church. Melody Gordon, a member of the church, prepared a fine meal for those in attendance. We looked at books and letters and articles and probably thought of how things might have been or should have been.

This is the list of the seven Americans killed in Rhodesia by date of their death:

Corporal John Alan Coey, July 19, 1975
Trooper George W. Clarke, May 15, 1977
Sergeant Richard L. Biederman, December 6, 1977
Trooper Frank P. Battaglia, March 6, 1978
Trooper Joseph Patrick Byrne, October 26, 1978
Trooper Stephen M. Dwyer, July 16, 1979
Sergeant Hugh McCall, July 16, 1979

This was the first time members of the Rhodesian Light Infantry had a reunion in the States. God Bless the Rhodesian Light Infantry (1961-1980) and all "The Saints."

"To do evil a human being must first of all believe that what he's doing is good. Ideology – that is what gives evil doing its long-sought justification and gives the evildoer the necessary steadfastness and determination. That is the social theory which helps to make his acts seem good instead of bad in his own and others' eyes, so that he won't hear reproaches and curses but will receive praise and honors."

Give the Gift of Enlightenment — Gift Subscriptions to The Nationalist Times Just $34 for one year of issues

Many Americans still have good instincts and are fair-minded but have little or no exposure to Nationalism from an actual Nationalist source. Give friends, acquaintances and relatives a strong, healthy dose of unabashed pro-American perspectives by purchasing for them a one-year subscription to The Nationalist Times.

List the name and address of the recipient(s) you wish to receive The Nationalist Times and include $34 per gift recipient. Mail to: The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

Heritage and Destiny

Heritage and Destiny is a well-written and produced 24-page bi-monthly patriotic magazine supporting the racial-nationalist cause. It is printed in England but widely distributed in the USA. It is edited by long-time nationalist activist Mark Cotterill. Website: heritageanddestiny.com; address: 40 Birkett Drive, Preston, PR2 6HE, England, UK.

Northern Voice Bookstore price list

Send $2 for Northern Voice Bookstore's complete traveled long distances to be at this service. Michael McDonald, a Canadian, attended with his Rhodesian wife, Rhona. Michael and Rhona live in Toronto. Michael almost lost his left hand after being shot in an encounter in the bush. His wife told me that she felt "fortunate" to have been raised in Rhodesia. Sadly, Rhodesia is now just a ghost in the mist of the past.

Jeremy Hall served in Rhodesia as a South African volunteer. Jeremy studied art in South Africa. He made many low-altitude parachute jumps while serving in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. Jeremy also now resides in Canada with his Rhodesian wife.

Craig Bone, a Rhodesian, studied art along with Jeremy in Durban, South Africa. Later on, both Craig and Jeremy wound up serving in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. Craig is a renowned African wildlife artist. His military career came to an end after he was seriously wounded in combat. Craig drove up to Ohio from his home in Florida.

Keith Nelson, an American, served in Vietnam and after it fell in 1975, he volunteered to fight for Rhodesia. Keith was a RLI medic and lost both legs after stepping on a mine. He is married to Mary, a Rhodesian woman. She also attended the service. Keith remained in Rhodesia for six years and became a doctor. He and his wife live near Cincinnati and he has recently published a war novel entitled "Shadow Tracker."

These four men showed physical evidence of their sacrifices. "The Saints" were indeed the sacrificial lambs who were slaughtered or mutilated with support from our corrupt government. Some of their wounds are probably emotional scars from being in combat, losing their homeland, and realizing the betrayal of their own governments. This is the legacy left to these brave soldiers.

After the church service was finished, we marched across Hornsmill Road and walked up the hill to the spot where Cpl. John Alan Coey is buried next to his father, George Coey. We carried the Rhodesian flag and sang "The Saints Go Marching and they were placed at the gravesite.

Seven American flags, each one to represent an American soldier, were placed in the ground. One additional flag was left there to represent all those who served in the Rhodesian Light Infantry. A bugle played "Taps."

We returned to the church basement for fellowship. Phyllis had planned for everyone to have lunch at the church. Melody Gordon, a member of the church, prepared a fine meal for those in attendance. We looked at books and letters and articles and probably thought of how things might have been or should have been.

This is the list of the seven Americans killed in Rhodesia by date of their death:

Corporal John Alan Coey, July 19, 1975
Trooper George W. Clarke, May 15, 1977
Sergeant Richard L. Biederman, December 6, 1977
Trooper Frank P. Battaglia, March 6, 1978
Trooper Joseph Patrick Byrne, October 26, 1978
Trooper Stephen M. Dwyer, July 16, 1979
Sergeant Hugh McCall, July 16, 1979

This was the first time members of the Rhodesian Light Infantry had a reunion in the States. God Bless the Rhodesian Light Infantry (1961-1980) and all "The Saints."

"To do evil a human being must first of all believe that what he's doing is good. Ideology – that is what gives evil doing its long-sought justification and gives the evildoer the necessary steadfastness and determination. That is the social theory which helps to make his acts seem good instead of bad in his own and others' eyes, so that he won't hear reproaches and curses but will receive praise and honors."

—Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn

of Enlightenment — Gift Subscriptions to The Nationalist Times Just $34 for one year of issues

Many Americans still have good instincts and are fair-minded but have little or no exposure to Nationalism from an actual Nationalist source. Give friends, acquaintances and relatives a strong, healthy dose of unabashed pro-American perspectives by purchasing for them a one-year subscription to The Nationalist Times.

List the name and address of the recipient(s) you wish to receive The Nationalist Times and include $34 per gift recipient. Mail to: The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

Heritage and Destiny

Heritage and Destiny is a well-written and produced 24-page bi-monthly patriotic magazine supporting the racial-nationalist cause. It is printed in England but widely distributed in the USA. It is edited by long-time nationalist activist Mark Cotterill. Website: heritageanddestiny.com; address: 40 Birkett Drive, Preston, PR2 6HE, England, UK.

Northern Voice Bookstore price list

Send $2 for Northern Voice Bookstore's complete list of books. Northern Voice Bookstore, P.O. Box 281, Wildwood, PA 15091.

Receive TNT every month!

Subscribe to The Nationalist Times

came a doctor. He and his wife live near Cincinnati and he has recently published a war novel entitled "Shadow Tracker."

These four men showed physical evidence of their sacrifices. "The Saints" were indeed the sacrificial lambs who were slaughtered or mutilated with support from our corrupt government. Some of their wounds are probably emotional scars from being in combat, losing their homeland, and realizing the betrayal of their own governments. This is the legacy left to these brave soldiers.

After the church service was finished, we marched across Hornsmill Road and walked up the hill to the spot where Cpl. John Alan Coey is buried next to his father, George Coey. We carried the Rhodesian flag and sang "The Saints Go Marching

This was the first time members of the Rhodesian Light Infantry had a reunion in the States. God Bless the Rhodesian Light Infantry (1961-1980) and all "The Saints."

"To do evil a human being must first of all believe that what he's doing is good. Ideology – that is what gives evil doing its long-sought justification and gives the evildoer the necessary steadfastness and determination. That is the social theory which helps to make his acts seem good instead of bad in his own and others' eyes, so that he won't hear reproaches and curses but will receive praise and honors."

— Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn

the racial-nationalist cause. It is printed in England but widely distributed in the USA. It is edited by long-time nationalist activist Mark Cotterill. Website: heritageanddestiny.com; address: 40 Birkett Drive, Preston, PR2 6HE, England, UK.

Northern Voice

Bookstore price list

Send $2 for Northern Voice Bookstore's complete list of books. Northern Voice Bookstore, P.O. Box 281, Wildwood, PA 15091.

Receive TNT every month!

Subscribe to The Nationalist Times

The Nationalist Times is the most vital publication in America.

Published since 1985, The Nationalist Times pulls no punches and observes no sacred cows or taboos. The perilous times we live in are too critical for anything but brutally honest discussion of America's plight.

There is only one sure antidote to the poisons of globalism and multiculturalism – The Nationalist Times. Subscribe for $49 for one year, or $95 for two years. Mail subscription price to: The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

The nation is slowly starting to re-open economically, but the totalitarian agenda of those engineering the response to Covid-1984 remains firmly in place. The good news is that a sizeable chunk of Americans believe the lockdowns must end, and all over the country, Americans who never protested before in their lives have taken to the streets, and in many cases forced tinhorn dictator governors to begin re-opening their states before they planned to. And as warm weather is now here for good, Americans are going to beaches, restaurants, and otherwise trying to live as normally as they can in the face of Orwellian policies that fly in the face of science and common sense. The politics behind much of the national lockdown and the shutting down of much of the economy has come into sharper focus. Communists and Democrats – often the same thing these days – want the shutdown to continue at least until the November election, in order to defeat Donald Trump, no matter how devastating the consequences to most Americans. Republican politicians are usually more in favor of rational re-opening policies, though not nearly to the extent they should be. In other words, instead of the incessant “we are family” pep talk propaganda on commercials and TV shows, America once again is and thoroughly intolerable lockdown mentality imposed on us by officials at the WHO, NAIAD, Johns Hopkins and the IHME. That hope continued earlier this week while watching Governor Ron DeSantis give a half-hour presentation of why Florida not only outperformed all of the grossly negligent predictive models but nearly every other state in the union in nearly every metric relevant to COVID-19. . . [My hope], however, vanished completely when he finally unveiled his new plan, which was to graciously allow the private economy to get back to 25% capacity, following the same tyrannical guidelines of those now discredited members of President Trump’s Task Force. Thousands of businesses destroyed, economic demand destruction of an unprecedented nature. Meanwhile, how many people died from not receiving medical care as the fear of going to the hospital kept them at home? I guess that doesn’t matter. . . This political decision is emblematic of what is functionally wrong with our society today. To quote then Senator Palpatine, ‘There is no civility, there is only politics.’ Decisions aren’t made by even the best and well-intentioned of our leaders for any other reason than trying to minimize the political backlash from one voting bloc or another. It is truly not their job to coddle our fears and expectations. It is their cal class is overwhelmingly dominated by fascists and totalitarians. I speak of course of all the governors, mayors, and city and county council members who have taken it upon themselves to declare that their words are law, and to use the heavily-armed police forces at their disposal to enforce their ‘laws.’ The Morticia Adams-ish governor of Michigan has become the face of today’s fascist totalitarian political class. Real laws are passed by Congress and state legislatures and are signed by chief executives. None of the ‘stay-at-home’ orders are laws; they are the mere words of politicians and bureaucrats. Nor are they based on ‘science.’ In the true spirit of Abraham Lincoln, who arbitrarily redefined ‘treason’ from its Article 3, Section 3 definition of ‘levying war upon’ the free and independent states (which he was guilty of) to criticizing himself and his policies, the political class has not amended but simply redefined the Constitution to mean whatever words come out of either sides of their mouths. . . The Bill of Rights does not say that we have inalienable rights to freedom of speech, assembly, and religion ‘unless people get sick,’ after all. But, alas, the Constitution has essentially been a dead letter for generations. Americans have long lived under the ‘Hamiltonian constitution,’ which is whatever can public lost control of the federal government when the rights of secession and nullification were abolished in 1865. . . ‘The worst’ do not do it all alone. They have help from a large segment of the population that assists them in making them their own de facto slaves. This takes a large group, wrote Hayek, in order to present the appearance of legitimacy to the state’s totalitarian powers. . . You see these people every day all over America: The man driving alone in his car wearing a face mask. The couple out walking on a windy day wearing face masks and scurrying off whenever they see another human being; those who answer opinion polls in the affirmative when asked if the lockdown should last ‘until a vaccine is available;’ the people giving you dirty looks at the grocery store, or complaining to the manager, that you are closer to them than six feet. Everyone who Judge Napolitano calls ‘the sheeple,’ in other words. . . The U.S. government is constantly fabricating ‘another Hitler,’ whether it is Manuel Noriega, Saddam Hussein, Gaddafi, the Sandinistas, Putin, and myriad others. Even slicker, however, and a higher level of demagoguery altogether, is to define ‘the enemy’ as something like ‘terror’ or ‘the invisible enemy’ of a virus that no one seems to understand. Such things can be made to appear to be as com-tested before in their lives have been to the streets, and in many cases forced tinhorn dictator governors to begin re-opening their states before they planned to. And as warm weather is now here for good, Americans are going to beaches, restaurants, and otherwise trying to live as normally as they can in the face of Orwellian policies that fly in the face of science and common sense. The politics behind much of the national lockdown and the shutting down of much of the economy has come into sharper focus. Communists and Democrats – often the same thing these days – want the shutdown to continue at least until the November election, in order to defeat Donald Trump, no matter how devastating the consequences to most Americans. Republican politicians are usually more in favor of rational re-opening policies, though not nearly to the extent they should be. In other words, instead of the incessant “we are family” pep talk propaganda on commercials and TV shows, America once again is sharply divided between red states and blue states. As it has become clear that Covid-1984 is merely another corona flu strain that affects mostly the elderly and sick, like other flues, more and more Americans are seeing through the non-stop fake news hysteria and want to live as they did before the world suddenly stopped in early March. But all kinds of loony practices are here to stay in the “new normal” and all Americans can do is to continue to assert their rights, aka their freedom, and continue to battle the totalitarians. Libertarian Tom Luongo writes of Florida, where Governor Ron DeSantis has been one of the most relatively reasonable governors during the “crisis”: “While it looks like the every other state in the union in nearly every metric relevant to COVID-19. . . [My hope], however, vanished completely when he finally unveiled his new plan, which was to graciously allow the private economy to get back to 25% capacity, following the same tyrannical guidelines of those now discredited members of President Trump’s Task Force. Thousands of businesses destroyed, economic demand destruction of an unprecedented nature. Meanwhile, how many people died from not receiving medical care as the fear of going to the hospital kept them at home? I guess that doesn’t matter. . . This political decision is emblematic of what is functionally wrong with our society today. To quote then Senator Palpatine, ‘There is no civility, there is only politics.’ Decisions aren’t made by even the best and well-intentioned of our leaders for any other reason than trying to minimize the political backlash from one voting bloc or another. It is truly not their job to coddle our fears and expectations. It is their job to lead and show competence. And if some people can’t handle the responsibility of living a fruitful, productive life in psychological balance with the risks of a hostile Universe then so be it. DeSantis was better than most governors, I give him credit for this, certainly. But this was his opportunity to command the heights, truly lead and call the bluff of the death-dealers and medical-industrial mafiosi surrounding the President, dominating the conversation surrounding COVID-19. He and [Texas Gov. Greg] Abbott, taking their cues from Trump, have failed as leaders. These were the states with the most to gain from separating themselves from the rest of the herd immune to the facts, caring only about gaining an edge in the polls.”

Adams-ish governor of Michigan has become the face of today’s fascist totalitarian political class. Real laws are passed by Congress and state legislatures and are signed by chief executives. None of the ‘stay-at-home’ orders are laws; they are the mere words of politicians and bureaucrats. Nor are they based on ‘science.’ In the true spirit of Abraham Lincoln, who arbitrarily redefined ‘treason’ from its Article 3, Section 3 definition of ‘levying war upon’ the free and independent states (which he was guilty of) to criticizing himself and his policies, the political class has not amended but simply redefined the Constitution to mean whatever words come out of either sides of their mouths. . . The Bill of Rights does not say that we have inalienable rights to freedom of speech, assembly, and religion ‘unless people get sick,’ after all. But, alas, the Constitution has essentially been a dead letter for generations. Americans have long lived under the ‘Hamiltonian constitution,’ which is whatever the politicians of the day say it is. Jeffersonian ‘strict constructionism’ was abandoned, essentially, at the end of the ‘Civil War.’ This fact is why almost all who are attracted to politics as a career today are totalitarian-minded thugs. They get into politics precisely because they want to wield this monopolistic, totalitarian power against their fellow citizens, who they often despise and hate, publicly labeling them with such words as ‘deplorable’ and much worse. There are a few exceptions, of course, the most magnificent of which is former Congressman Ron Paul, but they are the exceptions that prove the rule. I also speak of the entire U.S. Congress, the U.S. Department of Justice, and virtually the entire judicial system, every layer, in order to present the appearance of legitimacy to the state’s totalitarian powers. . . You see these people every day all over America: The man driving alone in his car wearing a face mask. The couple out walking on a windy day wearing face masks and scurrying off whenever they see another human being; those who answer opinion polls in the affirmative when asked if the lockdown should last ‘until a vaccine is available;’ the people giving you dirty looks at the grocery store, or complaining to the manager, that you are closer to them than six feet. Everyone who Judge Napolitano calls ‘the sheeple,’ in other words. . . The U.S. government is constantly fabricating ‘another Hitler,’ whether it is Manuel Noriega, Saddam Hussein, Gaddafi, the Sandinistas, Putin, and myriad others. Even slicker, however, and a higher level of demagoguery altogether, is to define ‘the enemy’ as something like ‘terror’ or ‘the invisible enemy of a virus that no one seems to understand.’ Such things can be made to appear to be as common as the air that we breathe (literally, in the case of viruses), so that waging ‘war’ against them, and the never-ending grabbing hold of more government power and the abolition of whatever is left of freedom, can go on forever. The ‘docile and gullible’ do not arise spontaneously as supporters of the fascist thugs who now rule over most of America. They are cultivated by the political system. The political ruling class of any country is always a tiny numerical minority that can be swept aside by the masses, who number in the millions. Therefore, the state has an imperative to make at least a majority of ‘the masses’ into docile and gullible serfs. It does this by monopolizing all aspects of education. . . No one is born with an affinity Democrats — often the same thing these days — want the shutdown to continue at least until the November election, in order to defeat Donald Trump, no matter how devastating the consequences to most Americans. Republican politicians are usually more in favor of rational re-opening policies, though not nearly to the extent they should be. In other words, instead of the incessant “we are family” pep talk propaganda on commercials and TV shows, America once again is sharply divided between red states and blue states. As it has become clear that Covid-19 is merely another corona flu strain that affects mostly the elderly and sick, like other flues, more and more Americans are seeing through the non-stop fake news hysteria and want to live as they did before the world suddenly stopped in early March. But all kinds of loony practices are here to stay in the “new normal” and all Americans can do is to continue to assert their rights, aka their freedom, and continue to battle the totalitarians. Libertarian Tom Luongo writes of Florida, where Governor Ron DeSantis has been one of the most relatively reasonable governors during the “crisis”: “While it looks like the worm is turning against the draconian economic shutdowns decreed by governments, so much damage has already been done it likely won’t matter now. I began the week hopeful that my home state of Florida would lead the way towards challenging the anti-human as the fear of going to the hospital kept them at home? I guess that doesn’t matter. . . This political decision is emblematic of what is functionally wrong with our society today. To quote then Senator Palpatine, ‘There is no civility, there is only politics.’ Decisions aren’t made by even the best and well-intentioned of our leaders for any other reason than trying to minimize the political backlash from one voting bloc or another. It is truly not their job to coddle our fears and expectations. It is their job to lead and show competence. And if some people can’t handle the responsibility of living a fruitful, productive life in psychological balance with the risks of a hostile Universe then so be it. DeSantis was better than most governors, I give him credit for this, certainly. But this was his opportunity to command the heights, truly lead and call the bluff of the death-dealers and medical-industrial mafiosi surrounding the President, dominating the conversation surrounding COVID-19. He and [Texas Gov. Greg] Abbott, taking their cues from Trump, have failed as leaders. These were the states with the most to gain from separating themselves from the rest of the herd immune to the facts, caring only about gaining an edge in the polls.” The excellent historian Thomas DiLorenzo views the eagerness of so many Americans to embrace obedient serfdom from a long-term perspective: “If the corona cold virus calamity teaches us anything it is that, with few exceptions, America’s politicizing himself and his policies, the political class has not amended but simply redefined the Constitution to mean whatever words come out of either sides of their mouths. . . The Bill of Rights does not say that we have inalienable rights to freedom of speech, assembly, and religion ‘unless people get sick,’ after all. But, alas, the Constitution has essentially been a dead letter for generations. Americans have long lived under the ‘Hamiltonian constitution,’ which is whatever the politicians of the day say it is. Jeffersonian ‘strict constructionism’ was abandoned, essentially, at the end of the ‘Civil War.’ This fact is why almost all who are attracted to politics as a career today are totalitarian-minded thugs. They get into politics precisely because they want to wield this monopolistic, totalitarian power against their fellow citizens, who they often despise and hate, publicly labeling them with such words as ‘deplorable’ and much worse. There are a few exceptions, of course, the most magnificent of which is former Congressman Ron Paul, but they are the exceptions that prove the rule. I also speak of the entire U.S. Congress, the U.S. Department of Justice, and virtually the entire judicial system, every member of whom has remained as silent as a church mouse while the rule of law in America was swept away in a mere six weeks. Think of this the next time a ‘conservative Republican’ in Washington pretends to be devoted to the Constitution. The Ameri-

calls ‘the sheeple,’ in other words. . . The U.S. government is constantly fabricating ‘another Hitler,’ whether it is Manuel Noriega, Saddam Hussein, Gaddafi, the Sandinistas, Putin, and myriad others. Even slicker, however, and a higher level of demagoguery altogether, is to define ‘the enemy’ as something like ‘terror’ or ‘the invisible enemy’ of a virus that no one seems to understand. Such things can be made to appear to be as common as the air that we breathe (literally, in the case of viruses), so that waging ‘war’ against them, and the never-ending grabbing hold of more government power and the abolition of whatever is left of freedom, can go on forever. The ‘docile and gullible’ do not arise spontaneously as supporters of the fascist thugs who now rule over most of America. They are cultivated by the political system. The political ruling class of any country is always a tiny numerical minority that can be swept aside by the masses, who number in the millions. Therefore, the state has an imperative to make at least a majority of ‘the masses’ into docile and gullible serfs. It does this by monopolizing all aspects of education. . . No one is born with an affinity toward being a slave; they have to be conditioned into thinking that way by the state’s totalitarian control of all aspects of ‘education.’ In return for being an essential part of the state’s relentless propaganda apparatus, the state’s ‘ideological minions,’ by which Rothbard meant primarily university professors, are rewarded with endowed chairs at prestigious universities, government grants, awards, notoriety, fame, and positions as exalted advisors to the government.”

. In the People’s Republic of California, the totalitarians are striving to use the Covid-1984 plandemic to move the state even further to the left than it already is. While Californians faced arrests merely for going to the beach – with Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti eventually relenting enough to tell his slaves that they could go to the beach but had to stay on “wet sand” and not walk on “dry sand” – some 10,000 inmates were freed from jails and prisons to go back to terrorizing citizens. The homeless have been given free motel and hotel rooms and in some areas supplied with free drugs and alcohol. Free laptop computers are being given to children in urban areas to facilitate “distance learning.” All these changes and more are part of California’s “new normal.” It should be noted that California and New York have the highest state income taxes in the country yet are broke and mewling for endless billions of dollars in bailout money. And both have had among the most draconian lockdown policies, hardly a coincidence as politicians become more totalitarian the further left one moves along the admittedly narrow ideological spectrum allowed in America’s tightly closed political system.

Patriot Shelley Luther

down to an arrogant black judge) are demonstrating the courage our political leaders lack. When Patrick Henry famously said ‘give me liberty or give me death’ in 1775, he didn’t add under his breath ‘unless a virus shows up.’ If we wish to reclaim our freedoms we will have to fight – peacefully – for them. As Thomas Paine wrote in 1776, ‘These are the times that try men’s souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands by it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman.’ But the totalitarians have no use for Ron Paul. In an article that appeared on Consortium News (“While Pandemic Destroys Lives, the Surveillance State Celebrates”), Lee Camp writes: “While many of us remain quarantined — inexorably welded to our home/apartment/RV in an abandoned Walmart parking lot — the surveillance state is actually stretching its legs, brought out for a run by our used as a testbed for new surveillance technologies that may threaten privacy and civil liberties. So aside from being a global health crisis, the coronavirus has effectively become an experiment in how to monitor and control people at scale.’ Oh goody! I love being gerbilized for the ruling elite.

.. Forbes again: ‘Making use of a traffic light indicator system, their algorithm is able to anonymously identify and label people who maintain safe distances, while flagging violations.’ If they’re able to track ‘violators’ who follow within a flying spit particle of someone else, then it stands to reason they could choose to track pretty much any other type of behavior. Such surveillance activity can effectively shut down all dissent or resistance, both large-scale and small. . . As we’ve seen in dictatorships the world over (most of them friends-with-benefits of the American government) a police state can be used (abused?) to arrest anyone the rulers desire. Now imagine a state where those political elite know exactly how and where you walk at all times — what you do, where you do it, and why you did it. . . They’re calling this kind of surveillance ‘smart cities,’ but a more accurate term would be ‘dystopian surveillance state hellholes.’ As Edward Snowden stated: ‘Five years after the coronavirus state over the past two decades, writes in his article “Technofascism: Digital Book Burning in a Totalitarian Age”: “As commentator Caitlin Johnstone recognizes, the censorship of David Icke by these internet media giants has nothing to do with Icke: ‘What matters is that we’re seeing a consistent and accelerating pattern of powerful plutocratic institutions collaborating with the U.S.-centralized empire to control what ideas people around the world are permitted to share with each other, and it’s a very unsafe trajectory.’ Welcome to the age of techno-fascism. Techno-fascism, clothed in tyrannical self-righteousness, is powered by technological behemoths (both corporate and governmental) working in tandem. As journalist Chet Bowers explains, ‘Techno-fascism’s level of efficiency and totalitarian potential can easily lead to repressive systems that will not tolerate dissent.’ The internet, hailed as a super-information highway, is increasingly becoming the police state’s secret weapon. This ‘policing of the mind’ is exactly the danger author Jim Keith warned about when he predicted that ‘information and communication sources are gradually being linked together into a single computerized network, providing an opportunity for unheralded control of what will be broadcast, what will be said, and ultimately what will be thought.’ It’s a slippery slope from censoring so-called illegitimate ideas to to move the state even further to the left than it already is. While Californians faced arrests merely for going to the beach — with Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti eventually relenting enough to tell his slaves that they could go to the beach but had to stay on “wet sand” and not walk on “dry sand” — some 10,000 inmates were freed from jails and prisons to go back to terrorizing citizens. The homeless have been given free motel and hotel rooms and in some areas supplied with free drugs and alcohol. Free laptop computers are being given to children in urban areas to facilitate “distance learning.” All these changes and more are part of California’s “new normal.” It should be noted that California and New York have the highest state income taxes in the country yet are broke and mewling for endless billions of dollars in bailout money. And both have had among the most draconian lockdown policies, hardly a coincidence as politicians become more totalitarian the further left one moves along the admittedly narrow ideological spectrum allowed in America’s tightly closed political system. One of the very few politicians who experienced success outside of that narrow ideological spectrum was Ron Paul, who at the age of 84 still strongly and vigorously sounds the call for freedom and liberty through his writings, website, videos and speeches. In “Authoritarians Using Coronavirus Fear to Destroy America,” Dr. Paul observes: “First we were told we had to shut down the country to ‘flatten the curve’ so that hospitals were not overwhelmed by coronavirus patients. When most hospitals were nowhere near overwhelmed, and in fact were laying off thousands of healthcare workers because there were no down to an arrogant black judge) are demonstrating the courage our political leaders lack. When Patrick Henry famously said ‘give me liberty or give me death’ in 1775, he didn’t add under his breath ‘unless a virus shows up.’ If we wish to reclaim our freedoms we will have to fight — peacefully — for them. As Thomas Paine wrote in 1776, ‘These are the times that try men’s souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country; but he that stands by it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman’ But the totalitarians have no use for Ron Paul. In an article that appeared on Consortium News (“While Pandemic Destroys Lives, the Surveillance State Celebrates”), Lee Camp writes: “While many of us remain quarantined — inexorably welded to our home/apartment/RV in an abandoned Walmart parking lot — the surveillance state is actually stretching its legs, brought out for a run by our friendly neighborhood oligarchs like a young golden retriever let off its leash on a nice day. Unfortunately, in this case what it’s retrieving is all of our information, movements, thoughts and desires. Right now violations of Americans’ privacy rights do not hold many people’s attention. We’re too busy adapting to a new, confusing, and anxiety-filled form of existence. . . . As the virus death toll rises, various governments around the world have discussed using smart city technology to trace where infected people go and who they come in contact with. At first that sounds great. What kind of psychopath doesn’t want to end this pan-

Patriot Shelley Luther

trol people at scale.’ Oh goody! I love being gerbilized for the ruling elite.

. . . Forbes again: ‘Making use of a traffic light indicator system, their algorithm is able to anonymously identify and label people who maintain safe distances, while flagging violations.’ If they’re able to track ‘violators’ who follow within a flying spit particle of someone else, then it stands to reason they could choose to track pretty much any other type of behavior. Such surveillance activity can effectively shut down all dissent or resistance, both large-scale and small. . . . As we’ve seen in dictatorships the world over (most of them friends-with-benefits of the American government) a police state can be used (abused?) to arrest anyone the rulers desire. Now imagine a state where those political elite know exactly how and where you walk at all times — what you do, where you do it, and why you did it. . . . They’re calling this kind of surveillance ‘smart cities,’ but a more accurate term would be ‘dystopian surveillance state hellholes.’ As Edward Snowden stated: ‘Five years after the coronavirus is gone, this data is still available to them — they start looking for new things. They already know what you’re looking at on the internet, they already know where your phone is moving, now they know what your heart rate is. What happens when they start to intermix these and apply artificial intelligence to them?’ Fear makes us idiots. Fear makes us listen to the lizard brain instead of the smart guy in your head. Don’t let the oligarchs use fear to trick you into giving up what little right to privacy and freedom you have left.” Hand-in-hand with the Orwellian surveillance powers being gobbled up by the gov-

of powerful plutocratic institutions collaborating with the U.S.-centralized empire to control what ideas people around the world are permitted to share with each other, and it’s a very unsafe trajectory.’ Welcome to the age of techno-fascism. Techno-fascism, clothed in tyrannical self-righteousness, is powered by technological behemoths (both corporate and governmental) working in tandem. As journalist Chet Bowers explains, ‘Techno-fascism’s level of efficiency and totalitarian potential can easily lead to repressive systems that will not tolerate dissent.’ The internet, hailed as a super-information highway, is increasingly becoming the police state’s secret weapon. This ‘policing of the mind’ is exactly the danger author Jim Keith warned about when he predicted that ‘information and communication sources are gradually being linked together into a single computerized network, providing an opportunity for unheralded control of what will be broadcast, what will be said, and ultimately what will be thought.’ It’s a slippery slope from censoring so-called illegitimate ideas to silencing truth. Eventually, as George Orwell predicted, telling the truth will become a revolutionary act. We’re almost at that point now. What you are witnessing is the modern-day equivalent of book burning which involves doing away with dangerous ideas — legitimate or not — and the people who espouse them.” Mark Zuckerberg, the head robber baron of Facebook, recently made a big show of setting up a content moderation oversight board for his monopoly mega-corporation that has close to two billion accounts worldwide. Sounds good in theory, but as always the reality is it’s nothing part of California's "new normal." It should be noted that California and New York have the highest state income taxes in the country yet are broke and mewling for endless billions of dollars in bailout money. And both have had among the most draconian lockdown policies, hardly a coincidence as politicians become more totalitarian the further left one moves along the admittedly narrow ideological spectrum allowed in America's tightly closed political system. . . .

. . . One of the very few politicians who experienced success outside of that narrow ideological spectrum was Ron Paul, who at the age of 84 still strongly and vigorously sounds the call for freedom and liberty through his writings, website, videos and speeches. In "Authoritarians Using Coronavirus Fear to Destroy America," Dr. Paul observes: "First we were told we had to shut down the country to 'flatten the curve' so that hospitals were not overwhelmed by coronavirus patients. When most hospitals were nowhere near overwhelmed, and in fact were laying off thousands of healthcare workers because there were no patients, they moved the goalposts and said we cannot have our freedom back until a vaccine was available to force on us or the virus completely disappeared — neither of which is likely to happen anytime soon. Many politicians clearly see the creeping totalitarianism but lack the courage to speak out. Thankfully, patriots like Shelley Luther (the Dallas hair salon owner who briefly went to jail rather than bow now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman'." . . . But the totalitarians have no use for Ron Paul. In an article that appeared on Consortium News ("While Pandemic Destroys Lives, the Surveillance State Celebrates"), Lee Camp writes: "While many of us remain quarantined — inexorably welded to our home/apartment/RV in an abandoned Walmart parking lot — the surveillance state is actually stretching its legs, brought out for a run by our friendly neighborhood oligarchs like a young golden retriever let off its leash on a nice day. Unfortunately, in this case what it's retrieving is all of our information, movements, thoughts and desires. Right now violations of Americans' privacy rights do not hold many people's attention. We're too busy adapting to a new, confusing, and anxiety-filled form of existence. . . As the virus death toll rises, various governments around the world have discussed using smart city technology to trace where infected people go and who they come in contact with. At first that sounds great. What kind of psychopath doesn't want to end this pandemic? But it turns out there's one problem with allowing the moneyed rulers to track every man, woman, and child. That problem — stop me if you guessed it — is that they're tracking every man, woman, and child. As was written in the crazy anarchist rag known as Forbes Magazine: '...the use of masses of connected sensors makes it clear that the coronavirus pandemic is — intentionally or not — being

(most of them friends-with-benefits of the American government) a police state can be used (abused?) to arrest anyone the rulers desire. Now imagine a state where those political elite know exactly how and where you walk at all times — what you do, where you do it, and why you did it. . . They're calling this kind of surveillance 'smart cities,' but a more accurate term would be 'dystopian surveillance state hellholes.' As Edward Snowden stated: 'Five years after the coronavirus is gone, this data is still available to them — they start looking for new things. They already know what you're looking at on the internet, they already know where your phone is moving, now they know what your heart rate is. What happens when they start to intermix these and apply artificial intelligence to them?' . . . Fear makes us idiots. Fear makes us listen to the lizard brain instead of the smart guy in your head. Don't let the oligarchs use fear to trick you into giving up what little right to privacy and freedom you have left." . . . Hand-in-hand with the Orwellian surveillance powers being gobbled up by the government of the U.S. "democracy" is rapidly increasing censorship of those who dissent from the unitary system's propaganda line and agenda when it comes to Covid-19, which is now likely somewhere around a healthy 40 percent of the population. Attorney John W. Whitehead of The Rutherford Institute, one of the voices crying in the wilderness against the rapid creation of the American police creasingly becoming the police state's secret weapon. This 'policing of the mind' is exactly the danger author Jim Keith warned about when he predicted that 'information and communication sources are gradually being linked together into a single computerized network, providing an opportunity for unheralded control of what will be broadcast, what will be said, and ultimately what will be thought.' It's a slippery slope from censoring so-called illegitimate ideas to silencing truth. Eventually, as George Orwell predicted, telling the truth will become a revolutionary act. We're almost at that point now. What you are witnessing is the modern-day equivalent of book burning which involves doing away with dangerous ideas — legitimate or not — and the people who espouse them." . . . Mark Zuckerberg, the head robber baron of Facebook, recently made a big show of setting up a content moderation oversight board for his monopoly mega-corporation that has close to two billion accounts worldwide. Sounds good in theory, but as always the reality is it's nothing but the same old same old. As Eric Striker reports: "Mark Zuckerberg's Facebook has recently established a reputed 'independent oversight board' featuring academics from all around the world. Its goal is to respond to growing criticism of Facebook's attacks on free expression and political dissent by allowing an appeals process these experts will weigh in on. On paper, the board claims to be a free speech check against draconian 'community standards.' In practice, it is another neo-liberal amen corner that will try to grant legitimacy to social media censorship and demand it go further. The board includes scholars and NGO workers from every continent. Nations as diverse as Brazil, Senegal, Yemen, and Israel are represented, yet notably, there isn't a single Russian, Chinese, Venezuelan or Iranian voice on the panel. Wisegrad group nations, where Facebook also plays a controversial role, have no representation with the exception of George Soros-funded anti-Viktor Orban activist András Sajó. While Sajó is listed as a Hungarian representative, he is an agent of Wall Street and Brussels interests in Eastern Europe, including as a founder of Central European University, a product of the Open Society Foundation otherwise known as 'Soros U.' The lack of representation for countries that have billions of people disproportionately subjected to Facebook's censorship makes the whole project an illegitimate fraud."

A famous commercial by Apple that first aired during the 1984 Super Bowl portrayed a totalitarian state in which a room full of human drones, all identically dressed (and a few wearing masks much like today) sat at rapt attention listening to a Big Brother-like figure addressing them from a huge screen. A young female athlete, being chased by police, bursts into the room and throws a hammer at the screen, de-

'60s of civil defiance and disobedience. The protesters seem to be saying: We deplore the losses and know the risks, but we cannot live our lives behind closed doors in our homes until the elites tell us, as though we were children, when we may go out in the yard. Hence, the next question we are all likely to confront: If there is a sudden resurgence of the coronavirus, a second wave, and the media elite and blue state governors demand a new shutdown, a new closure of beaches, parks, shops, restaurants and churches, will the people of this republic comply with those demands or defy them? Will the nation answer back to the elites: We did that. We sheltered in place. We wore the masks. We socially distanced. We stayed in our homes. We stayed home from work. We have done all we were told to do to contain the virus. But, now, with the shutdown having put 36 million Americans on unemployment and sunk our GDP to Depression-era levels, we're going back to work. . . Prediction: If the people conclude they have done all they can do to mitigate the suffering from a virus they cannot eradicate, they will resist the imposition of another shutdown, and the establishment will have neither the will nor ability to one health center. That's why we're doing as well as we are. We're talking about the minority and strategies against the minority. So I have the solution. Every study published in the last five years, when you look at vaccine refusers. I'm not talking about. . . well, hesitance, most of them we can talk into coming to terms. But refusers. We'll just get rid of all the Whites in the United States." According to The National File.com, Baker was quite serious in her remarks – and not a single person in the audience objected or challenged her. Of course, the White working class in America is already being decimated, and no one in the establishment is concerned about it other than Tucker Carlson. The rest, like Donald Trump, are afraid to even say the word "White" out loud. A book that documents White decline without being honest about its root causes is "Deaths of Despair: And the Future of Capitalism" by economists Anne Case and Angus Deaton. Steve Sailer, a semi-racial realist, writes in a review of the book: "[T]he more I study the White Death of the past two decades, the more I am reminded of the tragic trajectory of a now much less publicized American race, Native

Americans. Like American Indians, working-class White Americans seem to be living, and dying, like a defeated people, quietly offing themselves with so little to-do that

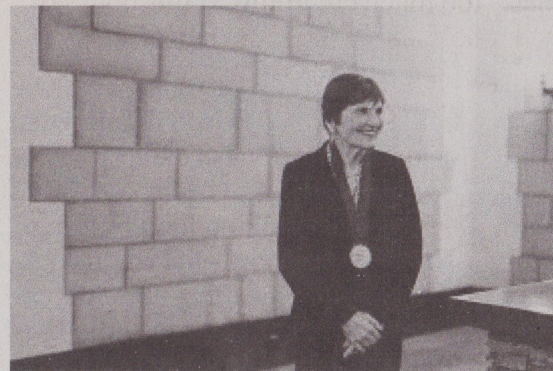

serting your claim to privilege is that you come from a long line of victims and losers. By intention, this leaves White Americans, the descendants of the men who won The Big One and went to the Moon, psychically dispossessed in their own native land. Another obvious analog to the White Death in America is how Russian men drank themselves into an early grave during their defeat in the Cold War. Case and Deaton note in passing that life expectancy for Russian men declined by 7.3 years between 1987 and 1994. But since 2005, Russian life expectancy has rebounded. As the U.S. suffers from its epidemic of deaths, Russia appears to have overcome its own. It's worth remembering that the main reason the media paid attention to Case and Deaton's paper in November 2015 demonstrating that White lifespans had been falling since the end of the 1990s was because Deaton had won the (quasi) Nobel Prize for economics just the month before. This horrible trend had been happening for fifteen years with virtually no news coverage. As Case and Deaton explain, they were shocked to discover in 2014 the life-shortening trends besetting Whites. . . From the 1960s onward, it became increasingly unfashionable to criticize blacks, but trendy to criticize Whites. Not surprisingly, blacks reacted to this new dispensation with increasing exuberance, while Whites became more depressed and with-notably, there isn't a single Russian, Chinese, Venezuelan or Iranian voice on the panel. Wisegrad group nations, where Facebook also plays a controversial role, have no representation with the exception of George Soros-funded anti-Viktor Orban activist András Sajó. While Sajó is listed as a Hungarian representative, he is an agent of Wall Street and Brussels interests in Eastern Europe, including as a founder of Central European University, a product of the Open Society Foundation otherwise known as 'Soros U.' The lack of representation for countries that have billions of people disproportionately subjected to Facebook's censorship makes the whole project an illegitimate fraud."

A famous commercial by Apple that first aired during the 1984 Super Bowl portrayed a totalitarian state in which a room full of human drones, all identically dressed (and a few wearing masks much like today) sat at rapt attention listening to a Big Brother-like figure addressing them from a huge screen. A young female athlete, being chased by police, bursts into the room and throws a hammer at the screen, destroying it. The narrator then says, "On January 24th, Apple Computer will introduce Macintosh. And you'll see why 1984 won't be like '1984'." In its early days the personal computer was hyped as an instrument of liberation that would ensure that a "1984" type totalitarian state couldn't occur. The bitter irony is that it's been the Big Tech corporations themselves that have in large part constructed a "1984" totalitarian society and are now its gatekeepers and enforcers. But just because the totalitarians are continuing their offensive against mankind and the human soul doesn't

an likely to confront. If there is a sudden resurgence of the coronavirus, a second wave, and the media elite and blue state governors demand a new shutdown, a new closure of beaches, parks, shops, restaurants and churches, will the people of this republic comply with those demands or defy them? Will the nation answer back to the elites: We did that. We sheltered in place. We wore the masks. We socially distanced. We stayed in our homes. We stayed home from work. We have done all we were told to do to contain the virus. But, now, with the shutdown having put 36 million Americans on unemployment and sunk our GDP to Depression-era levels, we're going back to work. . . Prediction: If the people conclude they have done all they can do to mitigate the suffering from a virus they cannot eradicate, they will resist the imposition of another shutdown, and the establishment will have neither the will nor ability to push them back into their homes. Ultimately, the people will decide when this shutdown ends, and when a plurality so concludes, the elites will be swept aside." It's no coincidence that nearly all those protesting the lockdowns across America are White, while the totalitarian-oriented left has been absent.

Carol Baker, genocide enthusiast

We'll just get rid of all the Whites in the United States." According to The National File.com, Baker was quite serious in her remarks – and not a single person in the audience objected or challenged her.

. Of course, the White working class in America is already being decimated, and no one in the establishment is concerned about it other than Tucker Carlson. The rest, like Donald Trump, are afraid to even say the word "White" out loud. A book that documents White decline without being honest about its root causes is "Deaths of Despair: And the Future of Capitalism" by economists Anne Case and Angus Deaton. Steve Sailer, a semi-racial realist, writes in a review of the book: "[T]he more I study the White Death of the past two decades, the more I am reminded of the tragic trajectory of a now much less publicized American race, Native Americans. Like American Indians, working-class White Americans seem to be living, and dying, like a defeated people, quietly offing themselves with so little to-do that nobody even noticed what was happening to working-class White lifespans for the first fifteen years of this century. Indians used to be admired by Whites for having put up a strong fight for over 250 years, in contrast to blacks, who were relatively easy to dominate. But in this century, Whites have lost interest in Indians, who also seem to have lost interest in themselves as the other Indians (those from India) have come to play a much larger role in American life. Human beings have always concocted rational-

White Death in America is now Russian men drank themselves into an early grave during their defeat in the Cold War. Case and Deaton note in passing that life expectancy for Russian men declined by 7.3 years between 1987 and 1994. But since 2005, Russian life expectancy has rebounded. As the U.S. suffers from its epidemic of deaths, Russia appears to have overcome its own. It's worth remembering that the main reason the media paid attention to Case and Deaton's paper in November 2015 demonstrating that White lifespans had been falling since the end of the 1990s was because Deaton had won the (quasi) Nobel Prize for economics just the month before. This horrible trend had been happening for fifteen years with virtually no news coverage. As Case and Deaton explain, they were shocked to discover in 2014 the life-shortening trends besetting Whites. . . From the 1960s onward, it became increasingly unfashionable to criticize blacks, but trendy to criticize Whites. Not surprisingly, blacks reacted to this new dispensation with increasing exuberance, while Whites became more depressed and withdrawn. As black egos expanded after their civil rights victories, they increasingly shot each other in knuckleheaded beefs. Meanwhile, as White Privilege became a preoccupation of the press, Whites increasingly shot themselves, or drank themselves to death, or overdosed on synthetic or natural opioids. In Case and Deaton's view the White Death, which got rolling after the Sackler family's Purdue Pharma introduced OxyContin in the mid-1990s, symbolizes the failures

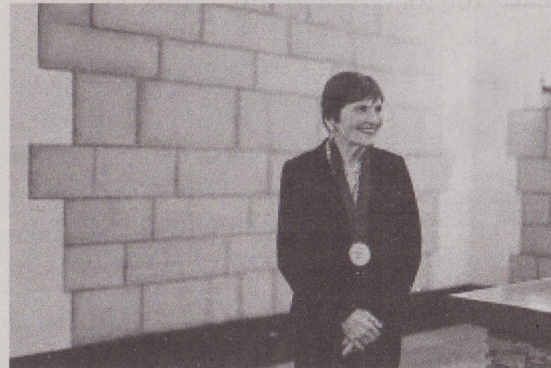

THE SOVEREIGN

AMERICAN FIRST

The Sovereign
Newspaper is Back!

ship makes the whole project an illegitimate fraud." A famous commercial by Apple that first aired during the 1984 Super Bowl portrayed a totalitarian state in which a room full of human drones, all identically dressed (and a few wearing masks much like today) sat at rapt attention listening to a Big Brother-like figure addressing them from a huge screen. A young female athlete, being chased by police, bursts into the room and throws a hammer at the screen, destroying it. The narrator then says, "On January 24th, Apple Computer will introduce Macintosh. And you'll see why 1984 won't be like '1984'." In its early days the personal computer was hyped as an instrument of liberation that would ensure that a "1984" type totalitarian state couldn't occur. The bitter irony is that it's been the Big Tech corporations themselves that have in large part constructed a "1984" totalitarian society and are now its gatekeepers and enforcers. But just because the totalitarians are continuing their offensive against mankind and the human soul doesn't mean they'll succeed. Pat Buchanan believes Americans won't submit to a second lockdown should there be a second "wave" of Covid-1984: "Clearly, the opening in many states has been driven by popular protest and public demand. Crowds have ignored social distancing to demonstrate for an end to the shutdown. Protesters have refused to wear masks and engaged in the time-honored practice since the going back to work. . . Prediction: If the people conclude they have done all they can do to mitigate the suffering from a virus they cannot eradicate, they will resist the imposition of another shutdown, and the establishment will have neither the will nor ability to push them back into their homes. Ultimately, the people will decide when this shutdown ends, and when a plurality so concludes, the elites will be swept aside." It's no coincidence that nearly all those protesting the lockdowns across America are White, while the totalitarian-oriented left has been absent. Today's left is centered around and motivated by hatred of Whites. One bureaucrat who's a little more open than most in her hate is Dr. Carol Baker of the CDC (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention). Speaking at an event called "Achieving Childhood Vaccine Success in the U.S.," hate-monger Baker said of those who refuse to get vaccines: "The battle is being fought one family, one physician, the month before. This horrible trend had been happening for fifteen years with virtually no news coverage. As Case and Deaton explain, they were shocked to discover in 2014 the life-shortening trends besetting Whites. . . From the 1960s onward, it became increasingly unfashionable to criticize blacks, but trendy to criticize Whites. Not surprisingly, blacks reacted to this new dispensation with increasing exuberance, while Whites became more depressed and withdrawn. As black egos expanded after their civil rights victories, they increasingly shot each other in knuckleheaded beefs. Meanwhile, as White Privilege became a preoccupation of the press, Whites increasingly shot themselves, or drank themselves to death, or overdosed on synthetic or natural opioids. In Case and Deaton's view the White Death, which got rolling after the Sackler family's Purdue Pharma introduced OxyContin in the mid-1990s, symbolizes the failures Anne Case and Angus Deaton. Steve Sailer, a semi-racial realist, writes in a review of the book: "[T]he more I study the White Death of the past two decades, the more I am reminded of the tragic trajectory of a now much less publicized American race, Native Americans. Like American Indians, working-class White Americans seem to be living, and dying, like a defeated people, quietly offing themselves with so little to-do that nobody even noticed what was happening to working-class White lifespans for the first fifteen years of this century. Indians used to be admired by Whites for having put up a strong fight for over 250 years, in contrast to blacks, who were relatively easy to dominate. But in this century, Whites have lost interest in Indians, who also seem to have lost interest in themselves as the other Indians (those from India) have come to play a much larger role in American life. Human beings have always concocted rationalizations for why they deserve privilege. For most of history, a common explanation of why you should be privileged was that your ancestors were warriors and conquerors who had defeated their foes. In 21st-century America, however, the new fashion for as-

Carol Baker, genocide enthusiast

THE SOVEREIGN

AMERICA FIRST

The Sovereign Newspaper is Back! Send $3 for a sample issue to:

THE SOVEREIGN
PO BOX 357399
GAINESVILLE, FL 32635

of Milken Era capitalism that let down the White American working class: 'Our main argument in this book is that the deaths of despair reflect a long-term and slowly unfolding loss of a way of life for the White, less educated, working class.' Curiously, however, they insist that immigration can't possibly be considered even one of the causes for the declining prosperity of White Americans without college degrees since the 1970s."

. . . Israel Shamir, in an article appearing on The Unz Review website, speculates on some of the possible geopolitical maneuvering taking place on the global chessboard: "Now it depends on the Sovereign People. If we shall support the spirit of freedom, we shall be free. If we shall support the spirit of slavery, we shall remain slaves, and our children will grow in bondage. The danger is present and immediate, for there are many groups of powerful people who want to keep us locked down. The lockdown was not necessary from a medical point of view, for the virus is not much worse than a strong flu. Mercifully, the Producer didn't unleash upon us a really deadly plague, presuming that the dummy will do. So extreme measures weren't needed. . . For this purpose, we should attempt to decipher why our rulers unleashed upon us this terrible persecution. I do not mean the virus, which is, after all, a natural force (even if this natural force had been forged in hellish lab. American or Chinese). The destroy surplus capacity, lock away unneeded consumers, and lead us to a new Yalta of the Virus Victors. The rulers of our states will have to accept the rules of the game, or find themselves outside the new power-sharing scheme. . . And now we come to the U.S. and China. These two states are the leading protagonist and antagonist of the world. The dummy virus war has come instead of the real U.S.-China war. China and the U.S. faced the choice: real warfare with nuclear strikes destroying and burning our civilization, or acceptance of the dummy war as the lesser evil. The choice was proposed by the U.S. Deep State; it was accepted by the Chinese who followed the script including bats and other mammals in the wet market and lockdowns for millions of their citizens. Painful, but still less painful than a nuclear holocaust. Though the Chinese accepted the role and played it to perfection, they got off too lightly. Their adversary wants to screw China properly; the Chinese are sued for trillions for their part in the game. . . The Russians have been screwed as the price of oil went down in the Coronavirus world. Will they understand their error, or will they insist on playing for the promised Yalta-2? Will the people of America enter the Big Game and foil the plot of the Masters? What will happen in Europe, the object and the prize of the China-U.S. war? Will the Old World ever become a subject of international relations?"

There are a number of increased their wealth by $282 billion just in the first three weeks of the "pandemic" according to a report by the far-left Institute for Policy Studies. Bezos, the owner of Amazon and the fake news hate sheet The Washington Post, is on track to become a trillionaire in several years. Yet there is not a single politician of note in the U.S. that speaks out against such obscene accumulations of wealth by a handful of people. If the U.S. had an open political system instead of the same two nearly identical gangs in perpetuity, a political party organized around nothing but principled opposition to today's robber barons would find a huge level of support. "Depression II," as Pat Buchanan has dubbed it, will likely decide Donald Trump's political fate. He is pushing hard for the country to re-open, but as always he's surrounded himself with members of the Swamp, in the case of Covid-19 Drs. Fauci and Birx and other committed globalists who have been spectacularly wrong with almost all of their alarmist predictions. Trump can hardly admit this now, since in his own words he is a "war-time" president battling an omnipresent "invisible enemy." Admitting that Covid-19 is no stronger than most other flu strains would cost him too much credibility at this point, so he's stuck with 50 governors, many of whom are thrilled with their dictatorial powers and don't want to relinquish them, and a "task force" consisting for the most part of a group of of thousands of small and mid-sized businesses are facing bankruptcy, and the world's biggest economy has been reduced to a smoldering wastelands. And what was gained? Nothing. Check out this excerpt from an article by economist Jack Ramsay: 'The magnitude and rapidity of the shutdown of the real economy in the U.S. is unprecedented. Even during the Great Depression of the 1930s, the contraction of the real economy occurred over a period of several years — not months...once the contraction in the real economy accelerates and deepens, it inevitably leads to defaults and bankruptcies.... The defaults and bankruptcies then provoke a financial crisis that feeds back on the real economy, causing it to deteriorate still further. Income losses by businesses, households and local government thereafter in turn cause a further decline. Once negative feedback effects within the economy begin, it matters little if the health crisis is soon abated. The economic dynamic has been set in motion. The Fed can make a mass of free money and cheap loans available, but businesses and households may be reluctant to borrow, preferring to hoard their cash — and the loans as well. In other words, the deeper and faster the contraction, the more difficult and slower the recovery.' Every sector of the economy is shrinking and shrinking fast. Oil prices have plunged, activity in all 50 states is slumping badly, business confidence is at record lows, causes for the declining prosperity of White Americans without college degrees since the 1970s.”

.. Israel Shamir, in an article appearing on The Unz Review website, speculates on some of the possible geopolitical maneuvering taking place on the global chessboard: “Now it depends on the Sovereign People. If we shall support the spirit of freedom, we shall be free. If we shall support the spirit of slavery, we shall remain slaves, and our children will grow in bondage. The danger is present and immediate, for there are many groups of powerful people who want to keep us locked down. The lockdown was not necessary from a medical point of view, for the virus is not much worse than a strong flu. Mercifully, the Producer didn’t unleash upon us a really deadly plague, presuming that the dummy will do. So extreme measures weren’t needed. . . For this purpose, we should attempt to decipher why our rulers unleashed upon us this terrible persecution. I do not mean the virus, which is, after all, a natural force (even if this natural force had been forged in a hellish lab, American or Chinese). The persecution is the response of the authorities that was totally disproportionate to the threat. The top men were forced to do it; President Trump and President Putin did not want to, but they had to submit. Likewise the three emperors were forced to enter WWI, though none of them wanted to. Just like it was in 1914, there is a whole array of reasons. The Producer seems to be a generic Bill Gates who wants to sell the vaccine and create the new world order navigable only by those stamped with the indelible stamp, the world of alienation, subjugation, total dependence, eradication of individuality. But there is a meta-reason that speaks out against such obsessive accumulations of wealth by a handful of people. If the U.S. had an open political system instead of the same two nearly identical gangs in perpetuity, a political party organized around nothing but principled opposition to today’s robber barons would find a huge level of support.

“Depression II,” as Pat Buchanan has dubbed it, will likely decide Donald Trump’s political fate. He is pushing hard for the country to re-open, but as always he’s surrounded himself with members of the Swamp, in the case of Covid-19 Drs. Fauci and Birx and other committed globalists who have been spectacularly wrong with almost all of their alarmist predictions. Trump can hardly admit this now, since in his own words he is a “war-time” president battling an omnipresent “invisible enemy.” Admitting that Covid-19 is no stronger than most other flu strains would cost him too much credibility at this point, so he’s stuck with 50 governors, many of whom are thrilled with their dictatorial powers and don’t want to relinquish them, and a “task force” consisting for the most part of a group of globalists who want to see him defeated. He does however have the sane half of the country behind him, which gives him a fighting chance at being re-elected, not to mention the gift of Sleepy Creepy Joe Biden as his opponent, though it’s hard to believe the increasingly feeble – and utterly corrupt – Biden will be allowed to remain on the Democrat ticket until the November election.

.. Mike Whitney calls the lockdown “the greatest disaster in U.S. history”: “Donald Trump calls the media ‘the enemy of the people,’ but it’s much worse than that. The media is a national security threat. Just come instead of the real U.S.-China war. China and the U.S. faced the choice: real warfare with nuclear strikes destroying and burning our civilization, or acceptance of the dummy war as the lesser evil. The choice was proposed by the U.S. Deep State; it was accepted by the Chinese who followed the script including bats and other mammals in the wet market and lockdowns for millions of their citizens. Painful, but still less painful than a nuclear holocaust. Though the Chinese accepted the role and played it to perfection, they got off too lightly. Their adversary wants to screw China properly; the Chinese are sued for trillions for their part in the game. . . The Russians have been screwed as the price of oil went down in the Coronavirus world. Will they understand their error, or will they insist on playing for the promised Yalta-2? Will the people of America enter the Big Game and foil the plot of the Masters? What will happen in Europe, the object and the prize of the China-U.S. war? Will the Old World ever become a subject of international relations?”

.. There are a number of economic factors involved in the ongoing attempted totalitarian power grab. In the wake of the forced shutdown of the U.S. economy, an anonymous internet observer astutely commented, “The future is one of austerity for most of the population. There will be a few ways to get ahead economically, and most of them will involve having family ties to an elite. AI (artificial intelligence) and robotics will replace most jobs – coronavirus is causing this to accelerate. A universal basic income is the future. The elites will have an eternal stranglehold over economic activity. They will control the money, control the

U.S. is unprecendented. Even during the Great Depression of the 1930s, the contraction of the real economy occurred over a period of several years — not months...once the contraction in the real economy accelerates and deepens, it inevitably leads to defaults and bankruptcies.... The defaults and bankruptcies then provoke a financial crisis that feeds back on the real economy, causing it to deteriorate still further. Income losses by businesses, households and local government thereafter in turn cause a further decline. Once negative feedback effects within the economy begin, it matters little if the health crisis is soon abated. The economic dynamic has been set in motion. The Fed can make a mass of free money and cheap loans available, but businesses and households may be reluctant to borrow, preferring to hoard their cash — and the loans as well. In other words, the deeper and faster the contraction, the more difficult and slower the recovery.’ Every sector of the economy is shrinking and shrinking fast. Oil prices have plunged, activity in all 50 states is slumping badly, business confidence is at record lows, personal spending continues to shrivel, consumer confidence is dropping sharply, the service sector is tanking, restaurant traffic, industrial production, manufacturing, corporate earnings, business investment, personal consumption, bank lending, imports-exports; are all down, down, down and down. There’s not a glimmer of light to be seen anywhere. The economy is in freefall while people remain hunkered down inside their homes thinking they are stopping the spread of a deadly virus. But lockdowns don’t stop infections, at best they postpone them to a later date, and even that is doubtful. The whole idea

U.S. is unprecendented. Even during the Great Depression of the 1930s, the contraction of the real economy occurred over a period of several years — not months...once the contraction in the real economy accelerates and deepens, it inevitably leads to defaults and bankruptcies.... The defaults and bankruptcies then provoke a financial crisis that feeds back on the real economy, causing it to deteriorate still further. Income losses by businesses, households and local government thereafter in turn cause a further decline. Once negative feedback effects within the economy begin, it matters little if the health crisis is soon abated. The economic dynamic has been set in motion. The Fed can make a mass of free money and cheap loans available, but businesses and households may be reluctant to borrow, preferring to hoard their cash — and the loans as well. In other words, the deeper and faster the contraction, the more difficult and slower the recovery.’ Every sector of the economy is shrinking and shrinking fast. Oil prices have plunged, activity in all 50 states is slumping badly, business confidence is at record lows, personal spending continues to shrivel, consumer confidence is dropping sharply, the service sector is tanking, restaurant traffic, industrial production, manufacturing, corporate earnings, business investment, personal consumption, bank lending, imports-exports; are all down, down, down and down. There’s not a glimmer of light to be seen anywhere. The economy is in freefall while people remain hunkered down inside their homes thinking they are stopping the spread of a deadly virus. But lockdowns don’t stop infections, at best they postpone them to a later date, and even that is doubtful. The whole idea medical point of view, for the virus is not much worse than a strong flu. Mercifully, the Producer didn't unleash upon us a really deadly plague, presuming that the dummy will do. So extreme measures weren't needed. . . . For this purpose, we should attempt to decipher why our rulers unleashed upon us this terrible persecution. I do not mean the virus, which is, after all, a natural force (even if this natural force had been forged in a hellish lab, American or Chinese). The persecution is the response of the authorities that was totally disproportionate to the threat. The top men were forced to do it; President Trump and President Putin did not want to, but they had to submit. Likewise the three emperors were forced to enter WWI, though none of them wanted to. Just like it was in 1914, there is a whole array of reasons. The Producer seems to be a generic Bill Gates who wants to sell the vaccine and create the new world order navigable only by those stamped with the indelible stamp, the world of alienation, subjugation, total dependence, eradication of individuality. But there is a meta-reason for the event. The world was on the brink of a terrible crisis, a crisis that is a natural occurrence for the capitalist world system. Usually these crises are healed by a great war. WWI and WWII came to treat such crises, and they did, leaving millions dead. Let us imagine that the Masters of Universe, those very powerful individuals envisaged a dummy world war that would Asians have been screwed as the price of oil went down in the Coronavirus world. Will they understand their error, or will they insist on playing for the promised Yalta-2? Will the people of America enter the Big Game and foil the plot of the Masters? What will happen in Europe, the object and the prize of the China-U.S. war? Will the Old World ever become a subject of international relations?" There are a number of economic factors involved in the ongoing attempted totalitarian power grab. In the wake of the forced shutdown of the U.S. economy, an anonymous internet observer astutely commented, "The future is one of austerity for most of the population. There will be a few ways to get ahead economically, and most of them will involve having family ties to an elite. AI (artificial intelligence) and robotics will replace most jobs – coronavirus is causing this to accelerate. A universal basic income is the future. The elites will have an eternal stranglehold over economic activity. They will control the money, control the means of production, and control an invincible security apparatus to prevent others from challenging them. In many ways, we are already there. The human era is over." Certainly the super-rich oligarchs who dominate America are prospering. While some 35 million Americans have lost their jobs in record time, oligarchs like Jeff Bezos and Bill Gates actually wrong with almost all of their alarmist predictions. Trump can hardly admit this now, since in his own words he is a "war-time" president battling an omnipresent "invisible enemy." Admitting that Covid-19 is no stronger than most other flu strains would cost him too much credibility at this point, so he's stuck with 50 governors, many of whom are thrilled with their dictatorial powers and don't want to relinquish them, and a "task force" consisting for the most part of a group of globalists who want to see him defeated. He does however have the sane half of the country behind him, which gives him a fighting chance at being re-elected, not to mention the gift of Sleepy Creepy Joe Biden as his opponent, though it's hard to believe the increasingly feeble – and utterly corrupt – Biden will be allowed to remain on the Democrat ticket until the November election. Mike Whitney calls the lockdown "the greatest disaster in U.S. history": "Donald Trump calls the media 'the enemy of the people,' but it's much worse than that. The media is a national security threat. Just look at the way they've handled the coronavirus. The hysterical 24-7 coverage has people so terrified they've locked themselves in their homes inflicting catastrophic damage on the economy. That disaster never would've taken place if the media hadn't focused all their energy on scaring people to death. Now the damage is done, millions of people have lost their jobs, tens been set in motion. . . . The Fed can make a mass of free money and cheap loans available, but businesses and households may be reluctant to borrow, preferring to hoard their cash — and the loans as well. In other words, the deeper and faster the contraction, the more difficult and slower the recovery.' Every sector of the economy is shrinking and shrinking fast. Oil prices have plunged, activity in all 50 states is slumping badly, business confidence is at record lows, personal spending continues to shrivel, consumer confidence is dropping sharply, the service sector is tanking, restaurant traffic, industrial production, manufacturing, corporate earnings, business investment, personal consumption, bank lending, imports-exports; are all down, down, down and down. There's not a glimmer of light to be seen anywhere. The economy is in freefall while people remain hunkered down inside their homes thinking they are stopping the spread of a deadly virus. But lockdowns don't stop infections, at best they postpone them to a later date, and even that is doubtful. The whole idea of isolating the healthy members of the population to counter the spread of a highly-contagious virus is delusional. There's no historical precedent to the policy at all. There was no lockdown during the Spanish Flu in 1918 (when 50 million died), no lockdown during the Asian Flu in 1957, no lockdown during the Hong Kong Flu in 1968, no lockdown during

SARS in 2002, no lockdown during the Swine Flu in 2009, no lockdown during MERS outbreak in 2012, and no lockdown during Ebola epidemic in 2014. Get the picture? There was no lockdown, no time, NEVER. But just ask someone about the lockdown today and they'll announce with absolute certainty, 'It's the only way to beat this thing.' Right, by locking yourself indoors and waiting for the economy to crash, is that it?"

. . . Perhaps the most disgusting policy of all is "social distancing," the mandate that everyone stay at least six feet apart from everyone else and, God forbid, don't accidentally touch someone you aren't related to or you'll likely die! To the extent businesses are re-opening, they sport plexiglas barriers, footsteps on the floor instructing everyone where to stand and in which direction to move, and of course facemasks. Facemasks everywhere are here to stay it appears. Facemasks, which hide most of a person's face and previously were associated with outlaws and scum like Antifa, enforce the totalitarians' desired emotional states of fear, alienation and loneliness. William Sullivan writes ("Social Distancing' is Snake Oil, Not Science"): "Very likely, you already instinctively know that the guidelines suggesting that it's somehow helpful to keep a six-foot space between healthy people, even outdoors, is not based on science, but just an arbitrary suggestion we've been conditioned to ac-

The Nationalist Times needs distributors. If you believe this newspaper should be read by more Americans who are searching for the truth, use the ad on this page to sign up to sell or give away 10 or more copies of each issue.

"Democracy is the pathetic belief in the collective wisdom of individual ignorance."

— H. L. Mencken

"Morality, like art, consists of drawing the line somewhere."

— G. K. Chesterton

The Free Press newsletter

Now in its 27th year. "We hit hard, and keep on hitting!" $30/yr. The Free Press, 6256 Bullet Drive, Crestview, FL 32536

Article Submissions

If you would like to write for The Nationalist Times on a regular, irregular, or one-time only basis, email your article to mail@americanfreedomunion.com. Articles in Word preferred. Typewritten articles may be submitted but not hand-

Caste Football Sports! Race! Politics and more!

Caste Football is the world's only media outlet dealing with sports and race from a pro-White perspective. The Party Line that blacks are the best athletes is a Big Lie.

Caste Football is a popular discussion forum with over 400,000 posts! Visit Caste Football and join the conversation.

www.castefootball.us

Order Extra Copies Of This Issue!

Help spread the word. Extra copies of this issue of The Nationalist Times are available at the following postpaid rates:

1-5 copies $2 each
6-10 copies $1 each
11-20 copies 95 cents each
21-50 copies 90 cents each
50+ copies 80 cents each

Send order to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. Supplies of certain issues may be limited. If ordering a large quantity check on availability.

Are You a Nationalist Times Distributor Yet?

The Nationalist Times is a vital source of information for Americans who want to know what has happened to their country and why. But you won't find The Nationalist Times on sale at your local newsstand or drug store. We count on our readers to spread the word from American to American, in the same way our ancestors did.

We aren't going to turn America's plight around until we get better information in the hands of our fellow citizens. Don't you agree that more Americans should be reading The Nationalist Times? Patriots don't sit around — they take action.

this thing. Right, by locking yourself indoors and waiting for the economy to crash, is that it?"

. . . Perhaps the most disgusting policy of all is "social distancing," the mandate that everyone stay at least six feet apart from everyone else and, God forbid, don't accidentally touch someone you aren't related to or you'll likely die! To the extent businesses are reopening, they sport plexiglas barriers, footsteps on the floor instructing everyone where to stand and in which direction to move, and of course facemasks. Facemasks everywhere are here to stay it appears. Facemasks, which hide most of a person's face and previously were associated with outlaws and scum like Antifa, enforce the totalitarians' desired emotional states of fear, alienation and loneliness. William Sullivan writes ("Social Distancing" is Snake Oil, Not Science"): "Very likely, you already instinctively know that the guidelines suggesting that it's somehow helpful to keep a six-foot space between healthy people, even outdoors, is not based on science, but just an arbitrary suggestion we've been conditioned to accept without evidence. And your gut feeling would be right. There's a reason that 'social distancing' wasn't a buzzword common to the American lexicon prior to 2020. There's very little science behind 'social distancing' at all. 'It turns out,' Julie Kelly writes at American Greatness, 'as I wrote last month, 'social distancing' is untested pseudo-science particularly as it relates to halting the transmission of the SARS-CoV-2 virus. On its website, the CDC provides no links to any peer-reviewed social distancing studies that bolster its official guidance.' . . . At this point, this is little more than common sense, and the truth can't continue to be suppressed for much better in the collective wisdom of individual ignorance."

— H. L. Mencken

"Morality, like art, consists of drawing the line somewhere."

— G. K. Chesterton

The Free Press newsletter

Now in its 27th year. "We hit hard, and keep on hitting!" $30/yr. The Free Press, 6256 Bullet Drive, Crestview, FL 32536

Article Submissions

If you would like to write for The Nationalist Times on a regular, irregular, or one-time only basis, email your article to mail@americanfreedomunion.com. Articles in Word preferred. Typewritten articles may be submitted but not handwritten ones except by prisoners. Typewritten articles should be mailed to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

The Fight Goes On!

The Nationalist Times has been fighting the good fight since 1985, and every year it becomes more difficult to survive financially. The current economic and political environment is a brutal one that is designed to make it and race from a pro-White perspective. The Party Line that blacks are the best athletes is a Big Lie.

Caste Football is a popular discussion forum with over 400,000 posts! Visit Caste Football and join the conversation.

www.castefootball.us

1-5 copies $2 each
6-10 copies $1 each
11-20 copies 95 cents each
21-50 copies 90 cents each
50+ copies 80 cents each

Send order to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. Supplies of certain issues may be limited. If ordering a large quantity check on availability.

Are You a Nationalist Times Distributor Yet?

The Nationalist Times is a vital source of information for Americans who want to know what has happened to their country and why. But you won't find The Nationalist Times on sale at your local newsstand or drug store. We count on our readers to spread the word from American to American, in the same way our ancestors did.

We aren't going to turn America's plight around until we get better information in the hands of our fellow citizens. Don't you agree that more Americans should be reading The Nationalist Times? Patriots don't sit around – they take action. Join the battle. Distribute 10 or more copies of each issue of The Nationalist Times for just 80 cents per copy.

Distribute 10 or more copies per month for just 80 cents each

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

outlaws and scum like America, enforce the totalitarians' desired emotional states of fear, alienation and loneliness. William Sullivan writes ("Social Distancing" is Snake Oil, Not Science"): "Very likely, you already instinctively know that the guidelines suggesting that it's somehow helpful to keep a six-foot space between healthy people, even outdoors, is not based on science, but just an arbitrary suggestion we've been conditioned to accept without evidence. And your gut feeling would be right. There's a reason that 'social distancing' wasn't a buzzword common to the American lexicon prior to 2020. There's very little science behind 'social distancing' at all. 'It turns out,' Julie Kelly writes at American Greatness, 'as I wrote last month, 'social distancing' is untested pseudo-science particularly as it relates to halting the transmission of the SARS-CoV-2 virus. On its website, the CDC provides no links to any peer-reviewed social distancing studies that bolster its official guidance.' . . . At this point, this is little more than common sense, and the truth can't continue to be suppressed for much longer. It's becoming more and more obvious that it's well past time to take a more tactical approach to mitigation, allocating resources and efforts toward

The second half of this Intelligence Report is published as IR2.0, which is mailed first class to all Nationalist Times readers who have subscribed to it.

Free Press, 6256 Bullet Drive,
Crestview, FL 32536

Article Submissions

If you would like to write for The Nationalist Times on a regular, irregular, or one-time only basis, email your article to mail@americanfreedomunion.com. Articles in Word preferred. Typewritten articles may be submitted but not handwritten ones except by prisoners. Typewritten articles should be mailed to The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

The Fight Goes On!

The Nationalist Times has been fighting the good fight since 1985, and every year it becomes more difficult to survive financially. The current economic and political environment is a brutal one that is designed to make it close to impossible for modest-sized pro-American voices to operate.

Leaving money or property to the American Freedom Union, the publisher of The Nationalist Times, can be done in the same way as leaving it to relatives. Bequests should be made to American Freedom Union, LLC, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091.

Distributor Yet?

The Nationalist Times is a vital source of information for Americans who want to know what has happened to their country and why. But you won't find The Nationalist Times on sale at your local newsstand or drug store. We count on our readers to spread the word from American to American, in the same way our ancestors did.

We aren't going to turn America's plight around until we get better information in the hands of our fellow citizens. Don't you agree that more Americans should be reading The Nationalist Times? Patriots don't sit around – they take action. Join the battle. Distribute 10 or more copies of each issue of The Nationalist Times for just 80 cents per copy.

Distribute 10 or more copies per month for just 80 cents each

NAME _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY, STATE, ZIP _____

I want to distribute _____ Nationalist Times per month. Minimum of 10 per month.

You will be billed when you receive your copies. Mail this coupon to: The Nationalist Times, P.O. Box 218, Wildwood, PA 15091. Your extra copies will begin with the next issue.